Mop-up of Watergate could take years

By JANE DENISON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The final mop-up of the Watergate tide now falls to Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski and the courts —a job that will take months and maybe years to finish.

With Richard Nixon's departure as president, the role of Congress to establish his guilt or innocence through impeachment is over with few on Capitol Hill showing any stomach to go through with the ordeal now that Nixon is gone.

"It is no longer up to Congress to pursue the matter of Watergate or Mr. Nixon's involvement in it," House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill said after President Ford took office. "It is up to the courts to pursue the matter if they want to."

The New York Daily News reported Saturday that the Watergate grand jury has put Jaworski "on notice" that Nixon must not go unpunished and may decide within days to indict him. This was denied immediately and emphatically.

"The story is totally false," said a Jaworski spokesman. "There has been no meeting of the grand jury. There has been no contact between our office and the grand jury."

Any indictment would by law have to be signed by Jaworski.

According to the Daily News, which quoted an unnamed source, the grand jurors think Nixon now is "much more indictable" than last March when they named him an unindicted co-conspirator in the cover-up plot. It cited Nixon's release of three previously suppressed tape transcripts last Monday showing he sought to block the FBI investigation of Watergate immediately after the June 17, 1972 break-in.

The grand jury, however, has not heard those tapes and there is no indication when —or if — they will. They were subpoenaed for use as evidence at the cover-up trial of six former key Nixon aides due to start next month, not for the grand jury investigation.

Of the 55 tapes Nixon handed over to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica in the last two weeks under terms of a unanimous Supreme Court order, Sirica thus far has forwarded only five to Jaworski. More are expected to go to him Monday.

The Jaworski spokesman stressed that any decision on whether to indict the ex-President "is not imminent." Jaworski, his vacation interrupted by the week's dramatic events, has returned to his Circle J ranch near Austin, Tex.

Two major trials are pending, three grand juries are still working and further indictments are expected in the weeks ahead. Appeals could stretch Watergate well into 1976 or beyond.

Meanwhile, there were indications that the cover-up trial, due to start Sept. 9, may be delayed. Defendant John D. Ehrlichman asked for a postponement of at least two months so "inflamed passions" could cool. Lawyers for his codefendants, including H.R. Haldeman were expected to make similar pleas.

It was considered possible Jaworski would not object to a brief delay while he studies the new tapes and that Sirica might agree so long as it is not longer than 30 days. The jury will be sequestered and federal judges try not to keep juries locked up over the Christmas holidays.

The cover-up trial is expected to last as long as three months.

AN EMPTY CHAIR

The vice president's chair is empty as its former occupant President Gerald R. Ford holds his first cabinet meeting in the White House Saturday. One of Ford's first tasks will be to name a successor. Seated across the table are, left to right, Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, Ford, and Defense Secretary James Schlesinger.

President asks help in selecting V.P.

Nixon cabinet to stay on for now at Ford's urging

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Moving swiftly to take charge, President Ford spent a long first full day in office Saturday reviewing the nation's foreign and domestic affairs with the Cabinet and National Security Council.

In actions aimed at making the transition from the Nixon administration to the Ford administration smooth and sure-footed, the new President called on Cabinet members to stand with him for the time being and received their unanimous agreement to do so.

Ford also called on national political leaders of both parties to help in the selection of a nominee for the vacant vice presidency, a nomination he hopes to submit to Congress in a week to 10 days.

A commuter to the White House for the several days it will take his family to pack and move, Ford was driven back across the Potomac River to his Alexandria, Va., home in early evening.

After Ford's review of the world situation with his foreign affairs experts, his new press secretary —Jerry terHorst — announced there would be no presidential trips away from Washington for now.

"The most pressing problems that need to be solved are right here in the White House and in Washington," terHorst told reporters.

The new President began his first full day in office by rising early, fixing breakfast for himself and one of his sons, taking a short swim and then being driven to the office — almost like any other commuter.

He had opened the front door of his Alexandria, Va., home shortly before 6 a.m. EDT, clad in baby-blue short pajamas, and look startled to see an array of reporters and cameramen watching from across the street. Later he bantered with them briefly when he came out to look for his newspaper.

Ford spent the day in the White House and the Executive office building. He returned to Alexandria at 6:10 p.m. EDT for "a private evening" at his home, where the family entertained a few close friends at dinner Friday.

The Fords are not expected to move to the White House family quarters before late next week. They have decided not to sell their home on a quiet residential street of middle class homes because the four children don't want to let it go.

In a definite break with former President Nixon's pattern of holding White House worship services, terHorst said Ford and his family would attend church this morning at the Episcopal Immanuel Church-on-the-Hill in Alexandria.

He expects to spend the rest of today working in the Oval Office, and hopes for another private evening at home tonight.

TerHorst said that Ford has asked the bipartisan congressional leadership, the nation's Republican governors, the cabinet, and his staff and friends to submit recommendations by Wednesday for the vice presidency, and disclosed that the President plans to announce a nomination within a week to 10 days.

Ford did not specify any geographical or political restrictions, and hopes for suggestions from "as broad a spectrum as possible," terHorst said.

The press aide said that in asking the cabinet to stay on, the President told them "I believe that is what the country wants." TerHorst said Ford also told them he "does not believe in this business of pro forma resignations," and would meet with the individuals later on a one-to-one basis.

TerHorst announced that NATO Ambassador Donald Rumsfeld will be coordinator of the transition team which is helping Ford assume the duties of the presidency.

Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton will act as the teams's liaison with the cabinet and the agencies, and former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton will deal with personnel requirements, terHorst said. The fourth member of the team is defense adviser John O. Marsh Jr.

Musician's bullet-riddled body found in car wreck

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Owen Brady, coordinator of the city music department and an organist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, was found dying in his wrecked and burning automobile Saturday, his body riddled with bullets.

The mild-mannered, 51-year-old Brady was pronounced dead at 2:25 a.m. after police pulled his body from the car.

Officers at first thought he had died of injuries and burns after the vehicle smashed into the wall of a school building in an area where the Inglewood district borders central Los Angeles.

Further examination showed a number of gunshot wounds in the body.

A homicide officer said it appeared Brady was wounded by someone in the car with him or by bullets fired from the street.

In recent weeks, Brady had supervised a department study of amateur entries in a city contest to choose an official song for the city of Los Angeles.

Brady and two colleagues in the music department listened to 329 entries for the song and were to report to the Municipal Arts Department on Aug. 22. They were instructed to narrow the finalists down to the best 20.

Brady was in good spirits and wisecracking last week when talking to newsmen about the contest.

"We hope to come up with something noteworthy, if you will pardon the expression," Brady said.

One involved in 1972 plane hijack

Four convicts crash garbage truck through prison gate, make getaway

LEWISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Four armed convicts, including a former Mormon Sunday School teacher involved in a bizarre 1972 hijacking, crashed a commandeered garbage truck through a gate at a federal penitentiary Saturday and disappeared into the central Pennsylvania mountains.

State police, FBI agents and local authorities searched a heavily wooded area 15 miles west of here for Richard F. McCoy, 31, and three other convicts. McCoy was convicted of hijacking a United Airlines jetliner April 7, 1972, obtaining a $500,000 ransom and then parachuting at night near Provo, Utah.

The three others, all convicted of armed robbery, were identified by police as Joseph Havel, 60, Philadelphia, serving 10 years; Larry L. Bagley, 36, of Iowa, serving 20 years, and Melvin D. Walker, 35, Morley, Mo., serving a total of 55 years for four bank holdups and one escape.

State police said the convicts had at least one gun and some knives.

"They don't have much to lose," a state police spokesman said. An FBI spokesman said the terrain was some of the most rugged in the state.

Authorities used two state police helicopters, about 30 state troopers, FBI agents, and other law officers in the search.

The FBI said the convicts showed a gun to a prison guard at the first of two back gates to the maximum security prison. The guard opened the gate, the FBI said, and the inmates then crashed the truck through a second gate to freedom.

About 15 miles west, in the small community of Forest Hills, the convicts accosted a man and two women and stole the man's car, the FBI said. The man and two women, who were not identified, were left bound but unharmed.

McCoy, serving a 45-year prison term for air piracy, attempted to escape in Denver before being transferred here. He was captured shortly after that escape attempt.

A one-time Mormon Sunday School teacher, McCoy hijacked the United flight and diverted it to San Francisco where he picked up the $500,000 ransom. He then ordered the plane to fly over Utah and bailed out near his home town of Provo about midnight.

When dawn came, authorities could find no trace of him. It was later determined he had gone home and the next morning attended a National Guard meeting. He had been a Green Beret in the U.S. Army.

His sister-in-law, after learning of the hijacking, tipped the FBI that McCoy had asked her to participate in a hijacking. The FBI checked McCoy out and arrested him. The ransom was found in his basement.

Wise consumer can save up to 40%

Prescription drug prices vary widely in local area

By ROBERT DASELER
P-B Staff Writer

It now pays for the California consumer to shop for prescription drugs in the same way that he shops for bargains in vegetables and meats.

Since Jan. 1 of this year, when Section 4333 of the Business and Professions Code took effect, California pharmacies have been required to post a notice of the prices of the 100 most frequently used prescription drugs.

A random survey of valley pharmacies, relying on the public notice of prices posted in each one, indicates that a shopper can save 40 per cent or more on certain prescription items by seeking out bargains.

As an example, the price of Aldomet, a drug prescribed for people with high blood pressure, is $2.50 for 25 tablets at one pharmacy and $5 at another. Aldomet, a brand-name drug does not vary in quality from one pharmacy to another.

Gid Searle, the pharmacist at Claremont Pharmacy, 202 Yale Ave., Claremont, admits that large chain stores can sell prescription items at lower prices than he does, but he points out that he offers his patrons a number of services not usually offered by large chain pharmacies.

Searle keeps a medication record for each of his regular customers, he offers charge accounts to his patrons, his pharmacy delivers drugs to the homes of customers who want home delivery, and he will give emergency service to his customers at any time of day or night.

In fact, Searle offers all eight of the services listed along with the prices of drugs on the public notice required by Section 4333.

Searle makes a point of remembering his customers, and he is on friendly terms with many of them. These considerations, he asserts, more than offset the lower prices which people may get if they take the trouble to drive to a large chain store.

The differences in prices of some drugs, Searle points out, result from differences in the qualities of these drugs. Generic drugs—drugs sold under a variety of brand names—sometimes vary in quality from one brand name to another. Thyroid extract, for example, is produced by several pharmaceutical companies, and some pharamacists prefer one brand to another.

Differences in quality of generic drugs account for only part of the discrepancies in prescription drug prices, though. Other factors influencing the prices of drugs are the size of a pharmacy and the number of prescriptions it fills in a day and the number of services which a pharmacy offers its customers. Major chain stores can purchase drugs from pharmaceutical companies in larger amounts and at a lower price per item than individually owned, neighborhood pharmacies, as a general rule.

Although the small pharmacy, which may be owned by the pharmacist who manages it, often cannot compete in the pricing of many drugs, it often gives its customers services which the larger drugstores do not. The same public notice which lists the prices of prescription drugs tells the consumer what services are offered by the pharmacy in which it appears.

There are eight services enumerated by the notice. These services are: keeping a personal medication record (the customer's history of prescriptions at that pharmacy), professional consultation with patient and doctor, emergency prescription service, compounded prescription service (the making of compounds by the pharmacist on the premises), health service information, charge account service, prescription delivery, and Medi-Cal prescription service.

Of these services, the personal medication record, the emergency prescription service, the prescription delivery and the Medi-Cal prescription service probably are the most important. Since each of these services represents an additional effort by the pharmacist,

AFTERMATH OF FIRE

Blackened Foothill Freeway embankment, south of Covina Boulevard in San Dimas, tells story of one-acre grass fire Saturday afternoon. Los Angeles County firemen extinguished the blaze quickly after responding at 4 p.m. Firefighters blamed discarded cigarette from passing car for starting fire.

Enough Watergate, Congress eyes home

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress, which hastened its work expecting an impeachment trial, appears ready to leave town for some old fashioned campaigning and let the nation take a rest from Watergate.

The 93rd Congress, which sped through its calendar in anticipation of impeachment debates and trial, already has passed or will shortly pass most of its essential legislation, including most appropriations bills. It also has left its mark or will shortly do so in such areas as pension and budget reform.

The pressure, therefore, is off for now.

But the pressure is on back home where all 435 members of the House and one-third of the Senate must face an election.

The lawmakers must learn whether the voters are pleased or angered by presidential resignation, are swayed toward the Republican camp by a fresh new face in the White House or believe all incumbents are corrupt.

For weeks now, both houses have been acting as if Christmas recess was coming, meeting a full five days and some nights.

Now that impeachment is moot, the House plans to take off two weeks for Labor Day and the Senate one week. The House also likely will take off most of October, and the Senate, which had planned to be into an impeachment trial then, may do likewise.

The post-resignation mood of Congress appears to be "let's go home."

"What the country needs is for all of us to get out of Washington and let the country have a breath of fresh air," said assistant Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia.

"We should just pack it up and say we'll be back in January," said an aide to the Senate Republican leadership.

That mood could change if President Ford calls for a push to enact major legislation in his address to a joint session of Congress at 9 p.m. Monday, but that is unlikely. Ford needs time to formulate a legislative program and to decide whether he wants some of the major bills now pending.

He likely would want to start fresh with a new Congress in January, and in the meantime concentrate on being certain that Republican incumbents are not swept out on an anti-Watergate tide, giving Democrats a "veto-proof" 94th Congress.

Ford's elevation to the presidency itself presents a time-consuming problem to Congress: confirmation by both the House and Senate of Ford's vice presidential choice.

One major hangup to the three remaining landmark bills —tax reform, national health insurance and trade reform —is that all three are under the jurisdiction of one committee in each house: the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee. Finance Committee chairman Russell Long, D-La., has spent much of his time back home running for re-election.

Other problems threaten the remaining major legislation:

—A tax bill should emerge from the House Ways and Means Committee in September. But even if the bill should pass the House, it would face lengthy markup sessions in the Senate Finance Committee where Long has a vested interest in killing one of its major sections —an increase in oil company taxes. The tentative Ways and Means bill could hardly be called tax reform, and even tax reformers now talk openly of waiting till next year.

—National health insurance is in an almost impossible situation. Not only are its proponents squabbling with each other, but the bill must wait its turn in line behind tax reform in both the Senate and House committees. Neither committee is near completion of a bill.

—Trade reform, passed by the House, is tied up in the Senate Finance Committee over Sen. Henry M. Jackson's amendment to deny "most favored nation" status to the Soviet Union unless the Kremlin allows free Jewish emigration. A compromise is possible, but doubtful.

PRESIDENTIAL AIDES

L. William Seidman, 53, left, a Grand Rapids economist, is expected to be President Ford's top economic adviser. Ford appointed him as his management and budget consultant when he became vice president. John Marsh, 47, right, has been named by Ford to help him make the transition from the Nixon administration to his own. He is a former congressman.

Thousands at rock concert

Gate-crashers charge police, snarling dogs

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Several thousand gate-crashers charged through club-swinging security police and snapping patrol dogs Saturday to join 150,000 other fans at a free-swinging rock concert, perfumed with marijuana.

"Come in," one frustrated guard told the non-paying fans, giving up on his efforts at holding them back. "They're not paying me enough to take this."

Several youths were injured running the gauntlet of police and snarling dogs, but none serious enough to require treatment.

Once inside, those who paid $15 per ticket and the gatecrashers settled down to guzzle wine, puff marijuana and listen to the music of such groups as Grinders Switch, the Allman Brothers Band, Black Oak Arkansas and the Ozark Mountain Dare Devils.

The concert, labeled the "August Jam," opened at 11 a.m. for its 13-hour run at the Charlotte Motor Speedway.

Drug arrests mounted during the day and by midafternoon about 50 persons had been taken into custody.

A few drug pushers made the rounds through the heart of the crowd, but the 100 police assigned to the event contented themselves with patrolling the perimeter of the track and did not venture into the area where the drugs were being sold.

Frank Hill of Charleston, S.C., selling plastic raincoats from his knapsack for $1, said those buying drugs weren't always getting what they were paying for.

"I've seen people sell vitamin B12, aspirin and all sorts of things, said Hill, an electrician. "Some people buy a piece of aluminum foil and later find that the drugs they thought were inside are not what they thought."

Several of the fans were taken to local hospitals suffering from apparent drug overdoses.

Larry Presley, one of the concert promoters, said there might be as many as 200,000 persons in the vicinity. He was openly bitter about the gatecrashers.

"I'm sure not happy when our profit is so small because of this," said Presley. "But we'll do okay and they're going to see a good show."

Cabarrus County Deputy Sheriff D. F. Cagle said at one point that fans took over the police security command post near the track, but were quickly ousted.

"They get a little up tight when we make an arrest, but I guess that's expected when you get this type of group together," one officer said.

Hours before the event got underway, cars were backed up several miles in either direction on highway 29. One lane was filled with hikers enroute to the concert.

Thousands of the fans camped overnight around the track in rural Cabarrus County about seven miles northeast of here. Some lined up at water spigots Saturday morning to wash up and brush their teeth.

The rock fans paid $12 in advance for the show and $15 at the gate.

Jazz group's bodies found in air crash

JACKSON, Minn. (UPI) — The bodies of four members of the rock-jazz music group Chase and two crewmen were found Saturday in the wreckage of a small plane near this southwestern Minnesota community.

Jackson County authorities said the plane crashed some time Friday night in a soybean field about 2 ½ miles northeast of here, killing all six persons on board. The wreckage was discovered Saturday morning.

Members of the eight-man group who already had arrived in Jackson from Chicago identified the four dead musicians as leader Bill Chase, a jazz trumpeter who had played with Woody Herman, drummer Walt Clark, guitarist John Emma and organist Wallace Wouhn. Crewmen killed were pilot Dan Ludwig, Chicago, and a co-pilot who was not identified.

Cause of the crash was not yet known.

'Poetic justice,' says Nixon's first political foe, Voorhis

H. Jerry Voorhis, the former congressman whose loss to Richard Nixon in 1946 launched the ex-President's political career, Saturday termed Nixon's fall from power "poetic justice."

But he added that "it would have been better if he had gone through the impeachment process, much better." Voorhis, now 72, and a resident of Claremont, was a five-term Democratic Representative from California's 12th District when he was defeated by Nixon, then a Whittier attorney.

It was a bitter campaign in which Voorhis charged Nixon's supporters with starting a whispering campaign linking Voorhis with leftist causes.

Voorhis linked the "dirty tricks" of the Watergate affair with the tactics he faced in Nixon's first campaign.

"I've always regretted launching his political career...I hope the country will be all right and I think it will be," Voorhis said. "This proves our institutions can survive the onslaught of a group of very clever men, men who sought power over the Constitution and the Congress."

Ford gets message from Russ leader

By United Press International

Soviet President Nikolai V. Podgorny sent a congratulatory telegram to President Ford Saturday, hailing his pledge to work for peace and voicing confidence in continued Soviet-American cooperation. Pope Paul VI and other world leaders sent Ford their best wishes.

Podgorny's cable was the first official Soviet comment on Ford's assumption of office.

Ford also sent a message Saturday to Soviet Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev, less than 24 hours after he was inaugurated. The new U.S. pesident sent other messages to NATO and leaders of nations around the world.

American officials declined to discuss the contents of Ford's message to the Soviet leader. But other Western diplomats said Ford wanted to reassure the Soviets quickly that the departure of Richard M. Nixon as President would not mean any change in the policy of cooperation with the Soviet Union.

Nixon said to be in good spirits as private citizen

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon was pictured as in good spirits and not downcast Saturday but he spent his first full day as a private citizen since his fall from power behind a veil of privacy with his family in their oceanside villa.

The Nixons did not venture from behind the guarded walls of their home and the few visitors during the day were not identified. The former President spent 3 ½ hours working at his office complex.

A member of Nixon's staff who accompanied him to San Clemente said that the former chief executive had not talked with President Gerald R. Ford since he left Washington but that he was expected to do so in the near future.

The spokesman was asked about Nixon's mood.

"I think one way to answer that is to say he has been busy in terms of reading and working on some matters," he replied.

"His spirits are good. He is not downcast. The decision he announced the other night is a decision he is very comfortable with and he is satisfied that in the national interest it was the right step for him to take."

There will be very little information about Nixon's activities in the coming days, he said, because "the President looks at this as a private time — he will be spending the time with his family."

Nixon drove a golf cart from the adjoining Coast Guard station into the grounds of the Spanish style estate Friday after arrival from Washington and literally dropped out of sight.

Nixon was accompanied by his wife, Pat, daughter, Tricia, and her husband, Edward Cox.

Also accompanying him was a small staff that included press secretary Ronald Ziegler, appointments secretary Stephen Bull, military aide Col. Jack Brennan and three or four other assistants.

Also with the presidential party was his long time physician, Dr. Walter Tkach, but Tkach was said to be here in his role as a personal friend. The spokesman said of Nixon's health that "he seems to feel good."

The spokesman would say nothing about any legal activities with regard to the possibility that prosecution for obstruction of justice might now be brought in the courts.

"A number of matters are under discussion," he said.

There were 65,000 telephone calls to the White House in Washington and to the facility at San Clemente since Thursday morning when it became apparent Nixon was resigning. There were also several hundred gifts of flowers awaiting Mrs. Nixon when she arrived here.

Nixon is not expected to make any public appearances this weekend such as attending church on Sunday.

The associate said Ziegler would serve as Nixon's top staff assistant, assisting in the coordination of activities with Washington during the transition period.

Firm's employes evacuated in bomb threat

Sheriff's deputies are continuing an investigation into a bomb threat at a Glendora manufacturing firm which caused the evacuation of all company employes.

Deputies who responded to the Rainbird Manufacturing Corp., 19233 Foothill Blvd. Friday at 1 p.m. searched the building but found no explosive device.

A spokesman for the firm said someone called, warning of "two bombs planted there, one set to go off at 12:55, another at 2 p.m." It was a male's voice, the spokesman added.

Arthur Ludwick, company manage,r ordered the evacuation of employes but no bomb was found.

Mexican fiesta proceeds to aid church program

Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church, Ontario, will host a Mexican Fiesta today at Unity Park, across the street from the church.

The fiesta got underway on Saturday with mariachis, games, folklorico dancing and carnival rides. Proceeds from the two days of festivities will go to help support the Christian Doctrine program and the social service office, located on the church grounds.

Today's activities will begin at noon with a Mass dedicated to Our Lady of Guadalupe. Mexican food will be featured with tortillas, tacos, pon and carnitas available throughout the day, and the roasting of a pig in the afternoon.

Folk dancing groups will perform during the afternoon. The highlight of the evening will be a dance featuring Ernie Flores and his band. The dance will begin at 8 p.m. and a $1 admission fee will be charged.

But maybe a fraudulent divorce?

Can't charge her with killing her mate 18 years ago--police

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Laura Hoyer's husband was dead, his dismembered body safely packed in two boxes, and she sued for divorce and won.

It was 18 years ago when Mrs. Hoyer, 64, asked for a divorce from her husband, Robert, claiming he had cruelly abandoned her. In that same year, shortly before her suit, she had wrapped up the remains of her husband and packed them neatly in two cartons, which she has been toting around ever since.

Not only do records show she won the divorce case, but Mrs. Hoyer also was awarded all the money in the family savings account and $5,000 child support.

Since the mummified body was found last Tuesday in an apartment by two boys, police have been unable to come up with enough evidence to accuse her of murder. She had told them her husband fell down the stairs during an argument and was killed. Afterwards, she hid the body in fear a scandal would arise.

The coroner's report confirms he died of severe blows to the head, but it has not been determined whether the death was homicidal or accidental.

But now authorities are considering charging her with fraudulently obtaining a divorce.

The divorce was granted in March, 1957, five months after she claimed he had left her and taken $4,500 from a joint savings account.

That was 16 years after their marriage in 1941.

Byrd tells of 1 a.m. call from Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr., D-Va., said Saturday he received a telephone call from former President Nixon early Friday, just four hours after the chief executive told the nation he was resigning.

Byrd said he was asleep in his Washington apartment when the telephone awakened him at 1 a.m. Friday and an operator said, "Just a minute, Sen. Byrd, the President would like to speak with you."

"Harry," Byrd recalled Nixon saying, "I'm sorry to call you so late, but I've been kind of busy tonight. I just wanted to know if you feel I took the proper course."

Byrd said he told Nixon, "Mr. President, I feel confident you did what you thought was in the best interest of the country, and I think you made the proper decision."

Byrd, who met Nixon in 1950, said the conversation lasted about five minutes.

"It was a very nice talk," Byrd said. "His voice was very strong. He sounded so much better than he had in the cabinet room earlier in the evening."

Byrd referred to a meeting in the cabinet room at 8 p.m. Thursday, only an hour before Nixon told the nation he was stepping down. At the meeting were about 40 conservative members of Congress.

Byrd said Nixon thanked the group "for support which, as he put it, made possible the ending of the Vietnam war and the return of the prisoners of war, and for making it possible to make appointments to the Supreme Court which he feels will bring it back closer to the center of the political spectrum from a more leftist position."

Byrd said Nixon and others in the room wept at the end of the meeting.

"It was the first time I had seen the President in eight months," Byrd said. "It had taken a heavy toll.

Most Americans don't want Nixon criminal prosecution

NEW YORK (UPI) — A huge majority —79 per cent —of Americans believe that Richard Nixon did the right thing in resigning the presidency, according to a Gallup poll conducted for Newsweek magazine and released Saturday.

But a majority, 55 per cent, does not want an investigation for possible criminal charges against Nixon, the poll showed, as against 37 per cent who did.

The survey also indicated that among six suggested vice presidential candidates, Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater and former New York Gov. Nelson Rockefeller emerged as the favorites.

The preferences were Goldwater 23 per cent, Rockefeller 18 per cent, California Gov. Ronald Reagan 12 per cent, Tennessee Sen. Howard Baker, vice chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, 11 per cent, former Attorney General Elliot Richardson 11 per cent, and Republican National Chairman George Bush 1 per cent.

Newsweek said the telephone survey of 550 American voters was conducted Thursday night and Friday after Nixon's resignation speech.

Asked whether his political enemies unfairly exaggerated Nixon's actions to force him out, 56 per cent replied no and 33 per cent said yes.

Fighting dies out, but Cyprus negotiations are deadlocked

By United Press International

A cease-fire brought peace to Cyprus for the first time in three weeks Saturday but Turkey's foreign minister said the Geneva negotiations for a permanent peace on the embattled island are virtually deadlocked.

British army sources on Cyprus said Britain would keep its troop reinforcements and jets on the island because of the problems at the Geneva talks.

Turkish Foreign Minister Turan Gunes stormed out of the negotiations in the morning, insisting that the Greek and Turkish communities on Cyprus have separate representatives.

He returned seven hours later and the five negotiators met for three hours. But Gunes said Cyprus President Glafkos Clerides, a Greek Cypriot, had agreed to discuss only "a few very minor modifications" in the island's 1960 constitution.

Gunes said Clerides claimed the conference had no power to change the constitution that gave independence to the former British colony.

"If that is so, the conference has virtually nothing more to discuss. We shall have exhausted the subject and the conference could end tomorrow," Gunes said.

"I think the conference will end because of lack of subjects to discuss, unless Clerides changes his mind during the night."

Clerides and Cyprus Vice President Rauf Denktash, a Turkish Cypriot, joined the negotiations for the first time Saturday. They agreed to meet Sunday to discuss the possibility of a new constitution.

Britain, Greece and Turkey scheduled another meeting for today, despite Gunes' pessimism.

Turkey has demanded that Cyprus be divided into separate regions for the 569,000 residents of Greek origin and the 140,000 of Turkish background. Clerides and Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros oppose the proposal.

The sources on Cyprus said army officials canceled next week's scheduled flights home for the estimated 1,000 troops airlifted from Britain to the Mediterranean island shortly after the July 20 Turkish invasion.

Plans to return a Royal Air Force squadron of 12 Phantom warplanes were also canceled, the sources said. The 1960 agreement allowed Britain to keep two sovereign bases on the island.

A United Nations spokesman said Cyprus was quiet with no reports of shooting. The first complete halt in fighting since the Turkish invasion came after Greek and Turkish army officials signed an agreement in Nicosia Friday to separate their armies on Cyprus.

Gunes repeated Turkey's claims that its troops have not violated the standstill cease-fire signed July 30 by Britain, Greece and Turkey. But he said Greek Cypriot forces have ignored the agreement's directive that they withdraw from Turkish enclaves on the island.

Turkey landed an estimated 30,000 troops on Cyprus five days after a Greek-led military coup ousted President Makarios. The invasion forces pushed east and west of the northern port of Kyrenia and now hold an estimated 130 square miles of land.

Scott endorses Rockefeller for post of vice president

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott Friday endorsed former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller to be President Ford's selection as vice president.

Now that Ford has taken over the presidency, the main speculation in the capital was who he would pick to be vice president.

One name that has been mentioned was former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, but a congressional source said Friday that Laird was resisting any active role in the new administration. The source said Laird would be happy to serve as a part time adviser but did not want the full time job.

Scott told a news conference that Ford told congressional leaders after he was sworn in that he would make his selection in "about 10 days."

Scott said Ford had not requested recommendations from congressional leaders yet, but said it was one of the alternatives he was considering.

Rockefeller headed a list of 13 persons Scott mentioned for the post, which Ford held for eight months after being chosen by President Nixon.

Ford is first President to log so many firsts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gerald R. Ford, the first man to succeed to the presidency because his predecessor resigned, has a number of other "firsts" to his credit.

The 38th president is:

—The first man to become vice president and then president without being elected to either office.

—The first president to be born in Nebraska and the first whose home is Michigan.

—The first president born with another name (Leslie King) and the first whose mother remarried (to Gerald R. Ford Sr.).

—The first president to be named Gerald and the first whose wife's name is Betty.

—The first president who was floor leader of his party in the House and the only one to have served in the House 25 years.

—The first president to be named by one predecessor (Johnson) to help investigate the assassination of another (Kennedy).

Students participate in Poultry Congress

Two Cal Poly Pomona students have been chosen to represent California in the youth-student program to be held at the 15th World's Poultry Congress in New Orleans.

Animal science majors John P. Weiszbrod and Edward E. Embly, both of Chino, will travel to New Orleans where they will meet with students and professional poultrymen from all over the United States.

As the congress' California student representatives, Embly and Weiszbrod will participate in activities aimed at formulating future advancements in the field of poultry farming and research.

330 to attend Sharp party

More than 330 persons, including State Controller Hugh Flournoy, have made reservations to attend a "Fracas for Fred" party Aug. 15 honoring Frederick W. Sharp, former city administrator and present executive director of the Pomona Redevelopment Agency.

He is retiring Sept. 1.

The party will be held at the Pomona Elks Lodge, 1471 W. Holt Ave., from 4 to 7 p.m. Reservations may be made by calling 620-2067

Earthquake hits Alaska peninsula

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — A moderate earthquake registering 5.3 on the Richter scale shook the Alaska peninsula in the Iliamna volcano area recently, the Palmer Observatory reported.

An observatory spokesman said the quake was felt strongly in the Anchorage area 150 miles northeast of its center. However, no damage was reported and none was expected, he said.

The earthquake was recorded at 5:38 p.m. Alaska Daylight Time.

PRICE LIST

Pharmacies are now required by law to post a price list such as the one pictured above for the 100 most frequently used prescription drugs. By checking the list you can save money.

Prescription drug prices . . .

each may affect the cost of prescription drugs.

Richard R. Beck, the pharmacist at Hendricks Pharmacy, a block up Yale Avenue from Searle's Claremont Pharmacy, also gives his customers the full range of services listed on the notice and is, at the same time, lowering many of his prices. Beck purchased the store in February of this year and since then has been endeavoring to make his prices more competitive.

Vern Hesseltine, the pharmacist at the Thrifty Drug Store at 157 E. Foothill Blvd., Upland, emphasizes that one important function that a pharmacist should perform is advising the customer about how to take a particular medication.

In some areas, the effect of filling when he dispenses it to an indigent customer, unless the regular price of that drug for other customers is less than $4.42.

Since the cost of pharmacists of handling Medi-Cal prescriptions is higher than the cost of ordinary prescriptions, because of the additional paper work, pharmacists maintain that they need to receive the full $2.42 addition to cost for a drug. Therefore, some pharmacists are reluctant to charge their regular customers less for prescription items than they charge their Medi-Cal customers, because, if they do, they may lose money on their Medi-Cal prescriptions.

This is particularly true of pharmacists in low-income areas where there are many Medi-Cal customers, according to Tom Pierick of the Cave Pharmacies in Pomona.

Another service which adds to the overhead costs to many pharmacies is prescription delivery. With rising gasoline and labor costs, it is increasingly expensive for a pharmacist to employ a delivery person to take drugs to the homes of customers. But this service is extremely important to many patients, especially those who are bedridden or restricted in their ambulation.

"It's good to establish a rapport and a relationship with your neighborhood drugstore, because you never know when you may need it," points out Dr. Edward D. Seinfeld, a Pomona physician.

Dr. Seinfeld says that he does not recommend pharmacies by name to his patients, but he is a firm believer in the importance of services rendered by neighborhood pharmacies.

"These are professional people," Dr. Seinfeld emphasizes. "They have their ethics. They have their reasons for their fees."

Dr. Seinfeld also approves of the state law requiring pharmacies to post their prices for prescription drugs, but he does not believe that the price of drugs necessarily should be the determining factor in the choice of a pharmacy.

David R. Massey, the director of the pharmacy at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, readily concedes that some prescription drugs available at the hospital pharmacy are not competitively priced for outpatients. With seven full-time pharmasists and a large stock of medications, the hospital pharmacy does not seek to win the patronage of steady out-patient customers.

"To have a medication refilled here repeatedly would result in a higher over-all cost due to higher overhead," Massey says.

For example, a woman who takes birth control pills probably would save money by refilling her prescription at a retail drugstore rather than the hospital pharmacy. The birth control pills which she purchases at a retail outlet will not be inferior in quality and may be lower in price than those she could purchase at the hospital pharmacy.

The hospital pharmacy supplies all of the drugs needed by patients at the hospital, and meeting the needs of inpatients is its primary function. Massey asserts that his pharmacy is competitive in the field of in-patient prescription prices.

The hospital pharmacy also remains open longer than most retail pharmacies. It opens at 8 a.m. and closes at midnight. Massey currently is considering the cost implications of keeping his pharmacy open 24 hours a day.

Another aspect of service available at the hospital pharmacy is the advice that the pharmacists there give doctors about the compatibility of drugs. The pharmacy frequently receives calls from parents who fear that their children have ingested poisons, and the pharmacists give advice to these callers. They also give advice to doctors upon request in cases of drug overdose.

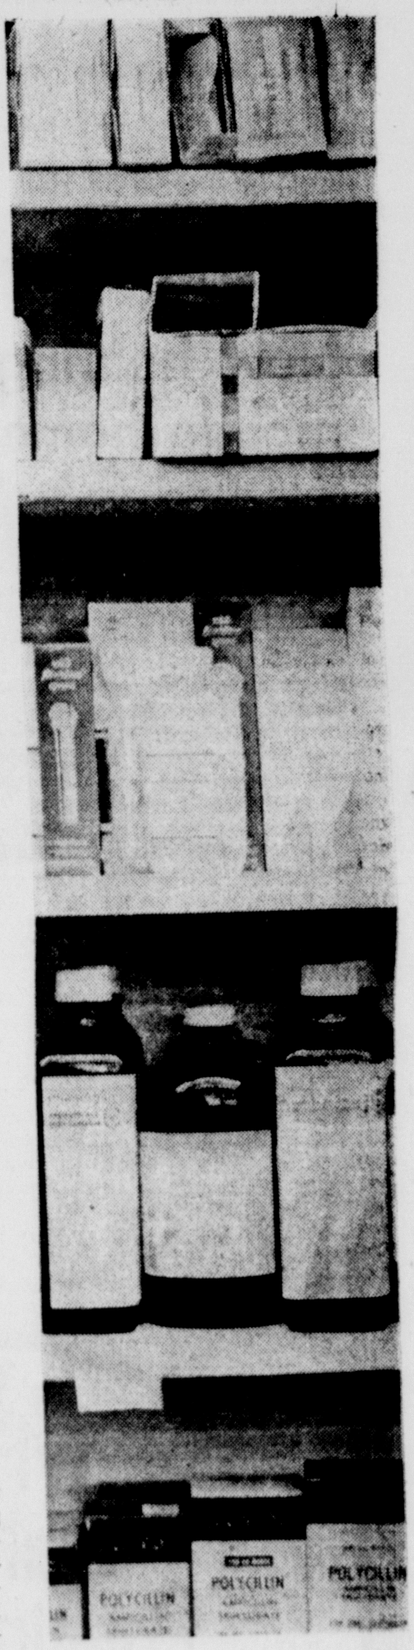
The consumer who shops around will find differences in both the prices and the services at these pharmacies. Longs drugs, for example, does not offer emergency prescription service or prescription delivery. The Thrifty Drug Store in Upland does not offer prescription delivery, personal medical record, emergency service or charge account service. Hendricks Pharmacy, however, offers all eight listed services, including those not offered by Longs or Thrifty. Gid Searle at Claremont Pharmacy also offers all eight services. Hamilton Drug Store offers seven of the eight services, excluding only keeping a personal medication record.

In a comparison of the prices of 12 brand-name prescription drugs at 10 pharmacies, the prices at a major chain store outlet were on an average 37 per cent less expensive than the same prescription items at a retail pharmacy close to Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The 12 prescription drugs used as a basis of comparison were: Achromycin V, 250 mg., an antibiotic and a form of tetracycline; Aldomet, a drug prescribed to lower blood pressure; Darvon, a pain reliever and a codeine substitute; Diabinese, a drug used to treat mild diabetes; Diuril, a diuretic also used for high blood pressure; Lomotil tablets, used for diarrhea; Orinase, a drug for diabetics; Ortho-Novum, 2 mg., a birth control pill; Valium, 5 mg., a tranquilizer and muscle relaxant; Orande, an antihistamine; Vibramycin, 100 mg., an antibiotic; and Emprin Compound with codeine number 3, a pain reliever.

At the 10 pharmacies surveyed, the price of 25 Aldomet tablets varied as follows: Pomona Valley Community Hospital, $4.50; Hamilton Drug Store, $5; Hendricks Pharmacy, $3.95; Claremont Pharmacy, $4.50; Thornton Central Drug, $3.95; Huntington Pharmacy, $4.45; Sav-On Drug Store, $2.89; Thrifty Drug Store, $2.83; Cave Pharmacy, $4.40; Longs Drugs, $2.90.

Thrifty Drug Stores sell 100 5-mg. Valium tablets for $7.73, but Hamilton retails 100 5-mg. Valium tablets at $15.35. At Walter E. Thornton's Rexall Drugstore, 5396 Riverside Drive, Chino, 100 5-mg. Valium tablets sell for $11.95. At the Claremont Pharmacy, Gid Searle sells them for $10.75.



Jeff Gorman, the pharmacist at Hungtington Pharmacy and the president of the Ontario Area Pharmacy Association, warns against using any particular item or sampling of items as a guide to the price structure of a pharmacy. Gorman and other druggists point out that some pharmacies will take a loss or merely break even on certain popular drugs to win the patronage of shoppers. The prices of other drugs will be raised to compensate for the failure to make any profit on what the pharmacists call a "loss leader" item, the attractively marked-down product.

This practice, applied to prescription drugs, could result in a deceptively low price for a popular drug, like Valium, but relatively higher prices for other drugs. At the present time, however, it is illegal for pharmacists to advertise prescription drugs.

Officials at the California State Board of Pharmacy state that any violation of Section 4333 of the Business and Professions Code should be reported to them. Any pharmacist who does not post a notice of the prices of the 100 prescription drugs on the board's list, or any pharmacist who refuses, directly or over the telephone, to state the price of any prescription drug which he sells, is in violation of the state code.

Complaints should be sent to the California State Board of Pharmacy, 107 S. Broadway, Room 8010, Los Angeles, 90012. A complainant may also call the board at (213) 620-3860.

Historic tree to get tender, loving care

A historic carob tree in Kuns Park in La Verne is to receive some "tender loving care" in order to try to prolong its life.

Planted in 1910 by Henry Kuns, a La Verne pioneer, the tree was marked a few years ago by the La Verne Historical Society with a mosaic marker created by Margery May, Bonita High School art teacher.

Prompted by the City Beautiful Committee, the Parks and Recreation Commission and Ed Porter of the city staff asked the City Council to do something about preserving the tree which formerly had a 50-foot spread.

The city staff called in an expert who recommended the tree be cabled and the two remaining limbs be propped up. Also to be encouraged is growth of sprouts now forming at the site where the other limbs were broken off.

Before moving yourself, consider the pitfalls

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — A couple of friends and a taxi cab may be all it takes to move into that first furnished studio apartment, but moving is a job that becomes more complex as possessions multiply.

If you're one of the 40 million Americans who will be packing up and moving to a new apartment or house this year, at least consider the pitfalls before you tackle the job on a do-it-yourself basis.

Still vivid in this writer's memory many years later is a move "just down the block" conducted by a procrastinating male parent and a reluctant teen-age daughter during the illness of the lady of the house.

The problem here was not the absence of professional help. The movers had been called — and performed well, moving all the "big stuff" from one third floor walkup to another. Father and daughter could easily manage the odds and ends — the fragile lamps not to be entrusted to the movers, the clothing, books, precious fishing gear, all the otter miscellanea we had not got around to packing.

A hundred trips, and what seemed like a hundred million stairs later daughter, at least, had a life-time horror of do-it-yourself moving. Let the movers do it, right down to packing the last ash tray, even if you have to do without the new carpet or drapes or both to pay for it.

For some folks, of course, do-it-yourself is necessary and practical. For the most part these are young couples with willing, and strong, young friends, a highly developed sense of organization and not too many possessions — certainly no baby grand pianos, eight-foot sodas or solid oak armoires.

If you are among them, the professionals offer some tips:

—Backstrain is a very real hazard of self-moving. It takes know-how as well as muscle to move heavy items. Plan how you will handle each item. Use brain rather than sheer brawn. When you lift, use leg muscles, not arms and back alone. Make use of mover's dollies. Even an old carpet can be used to slide rather than lift heavy furniture. Don't pack cartons too heavily. Use small boxes for books, for instance, and china.

—Along with the physical exertion, moving is hard on the nerves. Be sure you are temperamentally suited to handle the job. Make preparations carefully and don't leave too much for the last minute. You need to be cool, calm and collected to get through the many hours of hard work and inconvenience and the unexpected things which are bound to crop up..

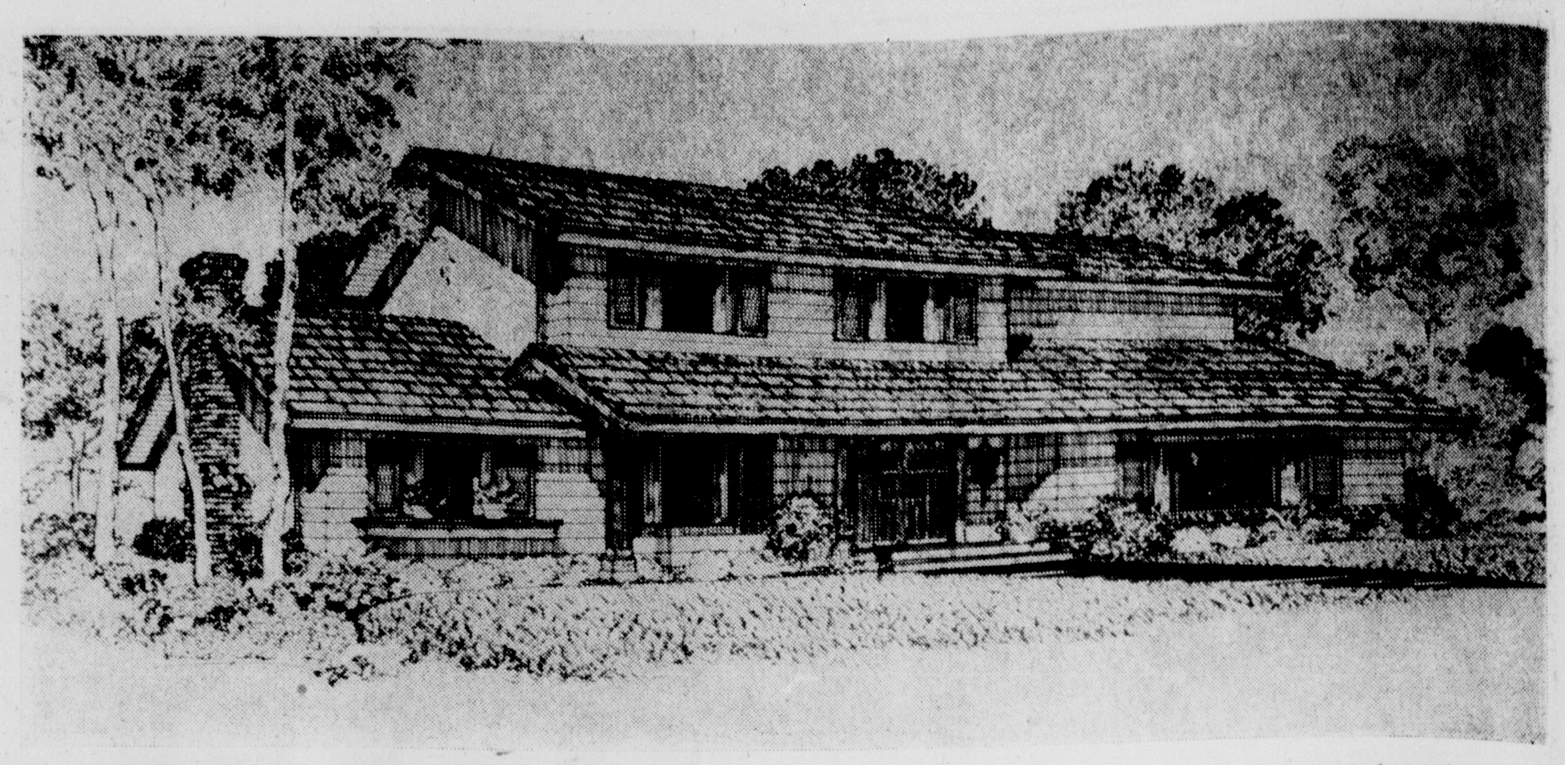
—Make allowance for inexperienced help. Evaluate their strength and stamina before getting friends involved. Allow plenty of time. Don't push them, or yourself, too hard. Take rest breaks, but forget the beer or liquor until the job is done. Even if the helpers are good friends, a little gift of appreciation will be welcome.

—Maneuvering a truck or trailer in traffic and into and out of parking spaces can be very tricky —and dangerous. Be sure your driver is up to it.

—Read the truck rental contract carefully, especially the small print. Many rental agreements require that you pay for special licenses that might be needed, localtruck fees and repair costs on the equipment if it breaks while in your possession.

—If your move involves distance, be prepared for any eventuality. Carry sufficient cash to cover possible breakdown. Be aware of parking restrictions for trucks and limitations on the routes they can use. If overnight accommodations will be necessary, you may find some motels do not allow trucks.

—Don't forget to look into insurance—on your own property and against the possibility you might cause an accident or damage someone else's property while moving.



Lewis Homes:

Work starts on new Prestige Series homes

Ground has been broken for the third and final unit of Lewis Homes in the Upland Prestige Series at the southwest corner of San Antonio Avenue and 22nd Street, Upland.

Staked out for 34 lot sites, the new unit will bring the $5 million development to its full 106 homes.

Randall W. Lewis, marketing director, said the last phase of the houses hs been ordered into construction earlier than had been originally anticipated.

"Although construction has not yet been completed in our second unit, more than half the houses are spoken for," said Lewis. "This rapid sales pace indicated we should revise our timetable to catch up with buying activity at the Prestige Series.

"The earlier start on the final unit also gives us, and our buyers, a hedge against future increases in building costs.

One-and two-story plans in the new unit will offer up to 2,766 square feet of living area. The houses will be priced from approximately $48,000 to $58,000. This price will include air conditioning, three-car garages and shake roofs.

Houses will have wet bars, fireplaces with lighters, self-cleaning ovens and wall-to-wall carpeting.

A year-end completion date is anticipated, Lewis said. Prices in the second unit range from $44,500 to $52,950.

One-man sub

The "Turtle" was a one-man submarine, the first to be put into military use, designed and built in America in 1775 for use against British warships during the Revolutionary War. It measured 7½ feet long by 6 feet wide.

New hearing set on mobile home park

The San Bernardino County Planning Commission has continued a public hearing on a proposed mobile home park in the Chino Hills to Sept. 12 and called for readvertising to increase the area of the development.

Marvin Krieger of the county planning staff reported the approval of site and development plans submitted by Wayne Pederson was postponed until the developer readvertises and brings the staff and commission a new legal description of the area involved. The density for the 28½ acres development is currently higher than county standards and it will be necessary to include part of the Western Hills Golf Course property in the development to balance the density factor.

The new plan will include an open space area which will be part of the Western Hills course. The developer plans 98 spaces in the park to be located about 1,000 feet northwest of Carbon Canyon Road and 2½ miles west of Pipeline Avenue.

In other action, the commission approved a zone change from single-family residential to multiple-family residential on property on the north side of 19th Street, approximately 648 feet east of Carnelian St. in Alta Loma. After approving the zone change, which makes the area zoning consistent with the county general plan, the commission approved site and development plans for the construction of 172 apartments and related recreational facilities at the site.

Steve Pleasant, senior planner in charge of zoning, said the environmental impact study indicated possible problems in the future with noise from the extended Foothill Freeway which will be located adjacent to the development. However, it was noted that this could be mitigated through design considerations of the developer with insulation of walls and no windows on sides near the freeway.

The Greater Alta Loma Investment Company submitted both the requests for the zone change and site development.

Sale held on Cinnamon townhomes

Developers of the Cinnamon Creek townhomes in San Dimas will host a special sale Sunday from 10 a.m. to midnight at the Valley Center Avenue project.

Sales office for the project is located at 720 S. Valley Center Ave.

The townhomes are priced from $28,990 with five per cent down payment required with conventional financing.

Each home, said Phil Moore, director of marketing for the builders, Kaufman and Broad Inc., features a private entrance to a wood-fenced patio in front and an enclose garage in the rear.

One and two-story designs have two and three bedrooms, split level stairways, vaulted ceilings and balconies off master bedroom suites. The townhomes also have built-in kitchen appliances.

Homes being sold before completed

Katella Realty currently is conducting pre-sales of $50,000 to $75,000 homes in Walnut.

The homes, built by the First Los Angeles Corp., are still under construction in a neighborhood to be called Country Club Hills.

Each house includes a built-in range, oven, dishwasher, waste compactor and tile countertops.

Burglars loot apartment of jewelry, art

PALMS (UPI) — Police estimated that burglars made off with about $58,465 in jewelry, art work and other items from Lawrence Harris' apartment.

Harris told officers he returned home early Sunday morning and found a $30,000 pearl ring, $18,000 in paintings and a $4,000 mink coat plus some other items missing from his apartment.

Authorities said a screen on the balcony of Harris' second floor apartment had been cut and a sliding glass door forced open.

Name picked

America was named for Amerigo Vespucci (1454-1512), an Italian reputed to have made four voyages to the New World (1497-1503). German Geographer Martin Waldsmeemuller first used the term "America" designating the New World in honor of the explorer, on a map in his book published in 1507.

Canoeing grows at very fast pace

NEW YORK (UPI) — More people have been bitten this year by the canoeing bug, and this segment of recreational boating is growing at a tremendous pace.

There's no accurate count, but there's probably more than a half million canoes now gliding around the nation's waterways — and it's easy to see why.

The initial cost is moderate. Upkeep is simple and economical. There are no fuel problems. They can be cartopped easily from one waterway to another.

More and more recreational areas are establishing canoe trails where paddlers often have the choice of gliding serenely through the placid waters of a lake or stream or fighting the white water rapids of a raging river.

Canoe racing groups have been formed in many states and they stage annual meets, some of which draw hundreds of competitors.

The state of Florida has available a booklet, "Florida Canoe Trail Guide," which sketches the attractions of 16 river canoe trails now in the state's canoe trail system.

One trip is a 66 mile journey on the Peace River from just east of Fort Meade downstream to a point near Arcadia.

"The Peace is an ideal river for canoeing," the booklet states. "Dense forest borders the waterway along most of the trail with the only mark of civilization being an occasional bridge, powerlines and some pasture land. Rarely, a house a visible from the river."

Texas is another state which caters to canoeists, and one of the finest trails there is a 17 mile stretch of the Colorado River from Bend to Post Oak Creek. "...towering bluffs, scenic canyons, and beautiful water make this trip enjoyable for any canoeist," says the magazine Texas Rivers and Rapids.

The growth in popularity of the canoe has prompted manufacturers to offer scores of accessories to make life as pleasant as possible for the paddler.

One eliminates the paddle altogether. It's a rowing rig that includes an oarsman's seat and oarlocks that clamp seasily onto the gunwales without any tools.

And then there's a bracket for portside attachment of a small outboard motor to ease, as the manufacturer puts it, "a long journey upstream or across a broad lake to the small and primitive waterways you can fish best by canoe."

There are even rigs available to convert a canoe to a sailing craft.

For anyone interested in the sport who doesn't want to get too involved, canoe rentals are availagle at hundreds of marinas and boatyards across the nation —by the

Split-level home has many features

Are you having difficulty trying to decide on whether to build a one or a two-story home? Then why not consider a split-level home which offers many of the features usually found in both of these designs.

Steps lead up from the garage level to an attractive entry court. The court is partially shielded from the street by a wall which is enhanced by turned posts and an arch in which an ornamental iron gate has been located. Beams extend from this wall to the kitchen wall.

Double doors open to a wide entry from which there is access to the kitchen, living room and stairs which lead down to the garage and family room and up to the bedrooms above the garage.

The living room and dining area are in one huge room. This way you can utilize as much space as you require for dining. Sliding doors open to the rear yard. Similar doors open from the family room and the bedroom on the bottom level, and from the master bedroom to a deck. These doors plus the patio enhance indoor-outdoor living.

Theree bedrooms plus two baths are on the second floor. Another bath is on the bottom floor. Doors open from the front two bedrooms to a roofed balcony.

This same basic exterior plus a Colonial exterior are also available in a three bedroom floor plan, at a difierent price structure, and are illustrated in the book, Ranch and Modern Homes.

Complete working drawings for plan 41106 can be purchased for only $12.67 for the first set and $7.42 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until December 11, 1974. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.06. A large reproduction rendering of the exterior is available for $1.06. The following home plan books are also available: Distinctive Homes — $1.59; Prize Homes — $1.59; Hallmark Homes — $1.59; Town & Country Homes — $1.59; Homes by Hiawatha — $1.59; Ranch & Modern Homes — $2.39. All six books — a $10.34 value — for only $8.22. Orders for less than three books, please add an extra 20c per book for postage and handling. Prices include sales tax. Send all orders to: Hiawatha Estes, P.O. Box 404-PO, Northridge, California 91324.

Coordinator named for Lewis Homes

Doris S. Wilson has been appointed coordinator of new building projects for Lewis Homes of California, it was announced by president Richard A. Lewis, Upland.

The position was created to expedite inter-departmental coordination on the company's expanding operations, Lewis said.

Mrs. Wilson will process transactions on new Lewis Homes projects in Chino, Ontario, Upland, Alta Loma, Claremont and La Verne.

Mrs. Wilson holds a degree in architecture from the University of Arizona. She is a licensed real estate broker.

Lewis Homes, founded in 1956, has built more than 5,500 homes in California, Nevada and Utah. Schedules call for the completion of 1,050 more during the coming 12 months, Lewis said.

Men's wear potpourri

By WALTER LOGAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Men's shirt collars have changed but little in the past 10 years or so and fashion experts see smaller collars as the next development to complement the new European influence of body-fit styling. Some of the advanced fashion shops already are showing them.

Most collars now have four inch points and rise at least two inches in the back. Some of the newer ones are more spread and less than three inches long. Others have gently rounded tips and a few have even turned up with old-fashioned collar points.

The once popular reversible topcoat appears ready to stage a comeback this fall. Nino Cerutti, who designs for Hart Schaffner and Marx, showed a classic tweed and gabardine reversible this summer. And Tom Fallon, the new young designer for Cortefeil de Espagne, returned from Spain with a collection of reversibles that paired gray flannel and beige cotton poplin.

Everyone's heard of athletic supporters, of course, but Burlington Socks-Adler has come up with the first support athletic sock. As a sports sock it has a full-foot cushion to absorb the shock of necessary acrobatics involved in the sporting life. But it also is made of orlon, stretch nylon and Lycra Spandex that supports the calves. They also have hunting and camping socks with a wide-track fluorescent orange stripe for high visibility protection, worn over the pants, of course.

Another new sock is the "tube sock" which is one knit without a pre-formed heel pocket. Thus the sock conforms to each wearer' foot for perfect fit. When it is lying flat it looks more or less like a cricket bat or one of the bats used in fraternity hazings. Put it on and it becomes sock-shaped. Most popular is a white sports sock with colored stripes at the top.

What did you buy him for Father's Day? The Menswear Retailers of America checked sales for last June and reports the most popular items were knit sports shirts, "sports shirts" not otherwise identified, dress shirts, short sleeve and dress shirts. Slacks finished in a dead heat with neckties. Only a few people gave him suits for Father's Day.

In the old days when you thought of After Six you thought of formal wear, but not any more. After Six has become a big conglomerate in the field of men's wear and you can find almost anything for Fall. Bert Paley, Ltd., for example shows a butter-soft umber glove leather in a belted, double breasted trench coat for fall. Malcolm Kenneth showed one in sandtone gabardine with a passport pocket for world travelers. Harry Fischer shows a wrapped and sashbelted camel polo coat for fall. Lebow Bros showed an outstanding sports jacket in soft blue, green, rust and beige plaid coordinated with green gabardine trousers. The newest thing in formal wear was the first appearance of the silk-like Qiana fabric in a ribbed tuxedo. And since no one wants to get bogged down by a name they took all their leisure wear and called it Before Six.

Most young men seem to prefer their blue jeans to look old and faded. Wrangler takes it a step further and shows a patchwork leisure suit in a faded corduroy that almost looks old enough to be old money. Another outfit was a bit more formal —an unconstructed bold plaid jacket shown with matching pants. The jacket was really an outer shirt but it was shown worn over a sports shirt which was worn over a turtleneck. They used to call it the layered look.

Group meets to discuss proposed "turnover" tax

The Mt. Baldy Apartment Association will hold a meeting at the Pomona First Federal Savings and Loan Association, Claremont, on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the proposed $25 "Turnover Tax."

Formal invitations to attend Wednesday's meeting have been given to the Montclair and Pomona city council and planning commission members. The public is invited to attend.

The cities of Pomona and Montclair are considering the passage of the turnover tax. The only city in California to have such a tax is Pasadena.

The "turnover tax" provides for an inspection fee of $25 for every sale of a rental building and a $25 fee for inspecting every rental unit before it can be re-rented after a vacancy.

Once an inspection is made, the owner may be given notice of any building, electrical, plumbing, health and safety code violation, which must be brought up to standard.

A violation of the new proposed ordinance would call for a $500 and a jail sentence of six months.

20 pythons are stolen

HERMOSA BEACH (UPI) — Twenty pythons valued at $800 were stolen Thursday from the Hermosa Reptile and Wild Animal Farm.

Police said the snakes, in a glass case, are one month old and harmless. Pythons are not poisonous, but kill by constricting their victims. The stolen baby pythons are harmless because they are not big or strong enoagh to cause injury by constricting.

Now is the best time to buy a home

A Pomona building developer believes that this is the best time for a family to buy a home.

Roy Leventhal of Crowell-Leventhal, builders and developers, asserts that continuing inflation will make buying a house more difficult and more expensive in the future than it is today.

"It's a good investment," Leventhal said.

Not surprisingly, Leventhal also maintains that an "excellent value" in housing can be found at his company's Fontana development, Heritage Homes.

Leventhal said that because the dollar buys more today than it will tomorrow, it is wise to buy a house now.

2 oceanographers say 'little ice age' is here

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI) — If you think winters are getting harder and longer you may be right.

Two Oregon State University oceanography scientists, after a three-year study of drillings through the ocean floor, say we may be entering another "little ice age."

"Since 1940 the average air temperature in the northern hemisphere has fallen about 1.3 degrees fahrenheit," said Dr. Ross Health, who with Dr. Ted Moore is making the study. "But it's enough change to make very bitter winters."

Heath said that the little ice ages seem to occur every 300-400 years. The last little ice age peaked in the 16th Century and did much damage in Europe, Scandinavia and Greenland, he said.

Settlements in Greenland during the 12th Century, when the last little ice age began, were wiped out, he said. In Europe there were failures of wheat and grape crops and advancing glaciers wiped away villages in the Alps.

After the 16th Century, Heath said the temperatures gradually warmed, apparently hitting a peak about 1940.

The last full ice age was 11,000-12,000 years ago, with these seemingly recurring about every 100,000 years, according to data gathered from the cores from deep beneath the ocean, Heath said. Intermediate-strength ice ages appear to be in cycles of 2,500 years, and the little ice ages coming at the more frequent intervals.

"Maybe it is easier to understand if you recall the poem that goes something like —fleas have fleas, and those fleas have little fleas," Moore said. "All those climate changes are superimposed on each other."

The two scientists obtain their information by examining the ocean drillings that reach down to 80 feet.

"The ice ages affect plants and animals," Heath said. "When they die, sink to the ocean floor and form sediment they can be studied. It's like a little history book."

The core samples are taken off the southern Oregon coast about 100 miles at sea, off Santa Barbara, Calif., and some off the coast of South America. Other schools using funds from the National Science Foundation are examining the floor of the Atlantic Ocean.

Heath said the most noticeable result of a little ice age on North America would be harder winters. A full ice age would produce an ice sheet down into the Midwest.

The research is designed to forecast the warming and cooling trends and alert nations, whose grain and food production might be affected. Or more currently, Heath said, to forecast heavier use of petroleum during harder winters.

"Hopefully, we'd be able to tell farmers where the best place to grow wheat would be 25 years from now, or that they should store a crop surplus because of the approach of extreme cold in the area," Moore said.

European fuel crisis coming to a halt

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

Americans planning to tour Europe by automobile will have to pay more for gasoline but indications are that the fuel crisis on the continent is over.

That's the consensus of a recent (July) survey by UPI men to the scene in the more popular European tourist destinations.

In Italy, for instance, regular gas now sells for around $1.68 per gallon as compared to 78 cents before the Arab oil embargo. It's $1.50 per gallon in West Germany as compared to 51 cents; $1.40 in Holland as compared to 54 cents; $1.27 in Britain as compared to 61 cents; $1.25 in France as compared to 79 cents; and $1.24 in Switzerland as compared to 55 cents.

But all driving restrictions have been lifted and fuel rationing plans dropped.

Touring by car is probably the best way to see the "real" Europe outside the major cities and other tourist centers. You can fix your own pace and itinerary. There's no worry about public transportation schedules and you can always linger an extra day or two at some unexpectedly delightful place you might chance upon.

I remember the charming inn at Chaumont-sur-Loire in France and the delightful old hotel in Germany's Rothenburg-ob-der-Tauber.

If you are planning to spend a month or more, you might want to check into whether you might save money by buying or leasing, rather than renting, an automobile.

Rental car services are available in most of the bigger cities. You can make your own travel arrangements (travel agents can help) or take one of the hundreds of fly-drive packages offered by airlines and travel agencies with such major rental firms as Hertz, Europacar and Avis, among others.

Packages usually include air transportation, a car with unlimited mileage and, sometimes, hotel accoomodations. You will generally pay for gas and insurance.

In some countries —such as France which collects more than 20 per cent —you also will pay car rental taxes. So you might save some money by renting a car in another country if your itinerary permits But check, since some companies charge an extra fee if you pick up the car in one country and leave it in another while others do not.

You will need a valid U.S. passport for identification and crossing borders. Other necessary documents will be provided when you pick up the car.

Most European countries will recognize your local driving license but an International Driving Permit can often help speed formalities at the borders. The IDP carres pertinent data in nine languages and can be obtained in the United States from any American Automobile Assn. office. All that is needed is your license, two passport-type pictures and $3. You do not have to be a member of the AAA to avail yourself of this service.

Helpful also —and available free —is a 24-page color brochure "See the Real Europe" published by Hertz. Included are driving and road tips and other pertinent information.

Copies of the brochure may be obtained by writing to Hertz Corp., Leisure Marketing Dept., 660 Madison Ave., N.Y. N.Y. 10021 or ask your local travel agent.

Judge rules against use of psychosurgery

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — A federal district court judge has outlawed involuntary behavioral modification, including psychosurgery, without prior notice or a hearing for inmates at the U.S. Medical Center for Federal Prisoners at Springfield, Mo.

Judge John Oliver said modification programs such as frequent transfers from prisons and lobotomies for troublesome prisoners violated the U.S. Constitution's requirement for due process in such matters.

The Springfield program, dubbed START, was initiated in 1972 to control what prison officials termed "a small but highly destructive group of inmates that are found in any correctional system."

The program was terminated in March of this year, and prison officials argued the challenge by several prison reform groups was moot. But Oliver, backed by a U.S. Supreme Court decision, decided to rule on the program because of the chance it would be reinstituted in some other institution in the future.

March of time

If Earth's total age, now estimated by geophysicists at about 4.5 billion years, is taken as a single 24-hour day, today's ocean basins are scarcely an hour old. By the same measure, the cave dwellers were hunting their prey less than a second ago; the past 500 years is but a hundredth of a second, and a 50-year working life is only one thousandth of a second.

Will Africa's massive drought end this year?

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor

DAKAR, Senegal (UPI) — Samba Ba, a graying 50-year-old farmer, stood under the shade of a crude thatch shelter, drank precious water from a rusty can, sprinkled a few drops on his parched feet and told how the great Sahelian drought has touched his life.

One hundred miles to the southwest, in this capital city in west Africa, the director of an unprecedented, 101-day international weather research project said meteorologists should know in a few weeks if the catastrophic six-year dry spell will end this year.

"According to the statistical probabilities, this year should be normal again," said Dr. Joachim Kuettner, who oversees the project from a makeshift office beside Dakar's Loff airport.

"It's very unlikely that another year will follow," he said. "We will see."

Some areas of the Sahel had an increase in rain in recent weeks and if it continues, officials say, there will be some relief.

But Dr. Robert M. White, chief of the U.S. National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) recently toured the drought area, said, "It's going to take a substantial amount of rainfall over a number of years to correct the situation which took a large number of years to develop."

If the rains don't come soon, Samba Ba said he, his wife, five children and three elderly relatives will have to abandon the three thatch huts where he has lived all his life. He is a peanut farmer, but hasn't had enough rain to grow a crop in three years.

Samba Ba's settlement of Kir Peulh is on the southern fringe of the drought area. He has not suffered the severity of the sun-bleached regions farther north and east in the stricken belt below the Sahara Desert known as the Sahel, which stretches 2,600 miles in a narrow band up to several hundred miles wide across parts of Senegal, Mauritania, Mali, Upper Volta, Niger and Chad.

Nevertheless, the land on which Samba Ba once grew peanuts and the forage grass, millet, is virtually bare of vegetation except for some trees and shrubs that somehow have withstood the ravages of drought.

Corn, purchased at a nearby village from the proceeds of selling an occasional goat, is the main source of nourishment for his family. Their water comes from a well a half-mile away.

There is no reliable way to estimate how many people have been affected by the famine resulting from the combination of drought and man's misuse of the fragile land between the Sahara to the north and the wetter lands to the south.

But Francis Dale, U.S. representative to U.N. organizations in Geneva, said during a recent visit to the Sahel that as many as 100,000 people are believed to have died, and the lives of another 3 million of the 24 million in the region may be endangered.

The weather research project known as GATE, or GARP (Global Atmospheric Research Program) Atlantic Tropical Experiment, is sponsored by the World Meteorological Organization, a specialized U.N. agency, and the Intjnational Council of Scientific Unions. Scientists, ships, planes, buoys and satellites from 66 nations are involved.

Its goal is to gather enough data across one-third of the earth's tropics to enable scientists to close a major gap in their understanding of the role the tropics play in shaping global weather patterns. It is only a coincidence that the study is being conducted during a dry period.

Additional research is planned in other areas of the world within the next few years.

"It's our hope that when we put together these various pieces of information that they will add up to a significant increase in our ability to forecast the weather, a significant increase in our understanding of the climate and the ability then, perhaps, to give somebody some advance notice of the kind of thing that is happening up here," said NOAA's White.

The tropics are important because half the total sunshine that strikes the earth hits the equatorial region, much of it in the ocean.

The area is the only part of the globe that receives more solar heat than it radiates into space, yet the heat radiating from earth is surprisingly uniform around the globe. This means heat from the tropics is transferred to the polar regions, which receive far less sunshine.

Sea currents carry about a third of the oceans' heat to the higher latitudes, and the remainder goes into the air with evaporation from the sea surface. The humid air moves to higher, cooler altitudes and then releases its heat by condensing into clouds.

These clouds often grow into long bands or rings of clouds, which sometimes form huge clusters of clouds that release their energy explosively into the upper air winds.

The meteorologists are paying most attention this summer to the short-lived cloud clusters because they are suspected of having a major function in earth's global weather patterns. There appears to be a direct link between the clusters and "waves" of atmospheric pressure that move easterly across the Atlantic and sometimes develop into tropical storms.

To monitor these tropical weather developments, the project is using 40 ships, 13 planes, dozens of instrumented buoys, several satellites and 1,000 land stations to measure weather conditons in a broad band of the tropics from the eastern Pacific across Latin America, the Atlantic and Africa to the western Indian Ocean.

To measure the smallest weather systems, 14 ships from the Soviet Union, the United States, Canada and West Germany are concentrated in an area about 1,200 miles west of Dakar. They are controlled by a special operations center at the Dakar airport manned by scientists and U.S. Coast Guard and Russian radio operators working side by side.

One phenomenon monitored by the far-flung array of weather stations is a swath of cloudiness parallel to, but a few degrees north of the equator across the Atlantic. This is called the intertropical convergence zone, where northeast tradewinds meet the southeast tradewinds.

Kuettner, the GATE project director, said this zone appears to be related to the Sahelian drought. The zone, which moves north in the summer a few degrees and south in the winter, has been too far south for the past four or five years, he said.

Summer is supposed to be the rainy season for the Sahel, with rain-bearing southwesterly winds blowing from the tropical Atlantic. Kuettner said a displacement of the zone by only one degree can be catastrophic to the semidesert lands in the six drought-stricken nations.

Measurements during the past few weeks showed the zone was one to two degrees farther south than normal. The zone is believed to be moving north now, as expected, but the big question is whether it will move far enough to offset the southward dislocation.

"If it does, everything will be back to normal," Kuettner said. "Within a few weeks we will know."

The current dry period is the worst in at least 50 years in the Sahel, but weather researchers say there is little evidence to indicate any definite trend toward a permanently drier climate in the region.

Nevertheless, the drought has aroused concern in all six countries that the Sahara is advancing southward, slowly turning once arable land into desert.

But drought is not all to blame, the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID) reported recently.

SUMMER PHOTO CONTEST ENDS SEPT. 1st

Three weeks remain in which local photo enthusiasts of all ages, may enter the fun filled photo contest "Summer Happiness Is," sponsored by Gordon Ayers Camera Shops of Ontario and Pomona.

This contest offers children, adults and grandparents alike, an opportunity to photograph their respective ideas of what summer happiness really is! The photographs must be taken in July or August, 1974, and may be either black and white or color prints of any size from 2½" x 3½" to 16" x 20" mounted or unmounted.

Ideas might include someone enjoying a long cool drink, a nap in the shade, standing under a waterfall, building a treehouse, a family picnic, kids taking a shower bath in the lawn sprinklers, etc., etc.

"Summer Happiness Is" is the latest photo contest offered by Gordon Ayers, a well known local photographer and teacher of photography since 1948, who has done much to help local camera owners get the most out of their cameras and hobby.

Valuable prizes include a 35MM camera, photo enlarger and lens, electronic flash unit, and four instamatic cameras.

Entry forms and details are available at all three Gordon Ayers Camera Shops - 117 West Holt, Ontario, 228 Pomona Mall West, Pomona, and 600 North Indian Hill, Pomona. Adv.

Pine bolt cabinet

By DOROTHY HAMMOND

QUESTION: Some years ago we inherited this 39-drawer pine bolt cabinet, which we have just refinished. It is an excellent storage cabinet for a multitude of small things we have acquired over a period of years. This piece was originally used in an old hardware store until about World War I. Since many of the wooden pulls were missing, we have replaced these with new porcelain pulls. Could you tell us what pieces like ours sell for today? Mrs. M.C.T.

ANSWER: When refinished, from $250-$300.

QUESTION: Recently we found an interesting old iron tool — a branding iron, once used for branding cattle. It is 30 inches long, is handwrought, and the iron ends have been cinched up into a beautiful old hand-whittled wooden handle, on which the letters "R-C" have been carved.

Our son has told us that there are collectors for such tools. If so, would you please tell us how valuable this one might be? J.N.

ANSWER: There is much interest in branding irons nowadays — especially the early examples. They are most popular in the Southwest, selling in the $25-$40 price range.

★ ★ ★

QUESTION: Have you any idea what a beautiful old .57 calibre Kentucky Flint Lock rifle might be worth? It is quite long (61 ½ inches) and very slender, having a curly maple stock. The metal is dark brown, and there is much brass decoration on the butt. As far as any of us know, the gun is still in workable condition. It once belonged to a relative on my husband's side of the family. Mrs. F.R.

ANSWER: Prices usually start around $300, and go upward.

QUESTION: During the past year we have collected two pieces of unusual stemware known as Libbey's Animal glass. Each of the fine crystal bowls and feet on these goblets is joined by a pressed animal-form stem in the shpae of a bear. Anything you can tell us about this glass will be appreciated, as we have been unable to find any information other than what the anitque dealer told us. Mrs. O.T.

ANSWER: A. Douglas Nash created this pattern, which is known as "silhouette." Eleven animals are included in this famous glass menagerie — antelopes, bears, monkeys, cats, squirrels, rabbits, elephants, camels, kangaroos, giraffes and greyhounds.

Shortly after launching this line in 1933, the Libbey Glass Company had financial difficulties, being taken over by the Owens-Illinois Glass Company in 1935. Hence, the line was only produced less than two years, which accounts for its rarity. In 1933, twelve pieces could be purchased for $10 — today, it is sought by collectors and one piece is fetching around the $100 figure.

For further information read "Libbey's Famous Glass Menagerie" by Carl U. Fauster, in the February, 1972, issue of HOBBIES. This magazine for collectors can be found at most public libraries.

QUESTION: We have a very old early Canton 10½" plate with a beautiful millifiore-like border. Several figures — men and women — make up the center decoration which is typically oriental. This plate is perfect. Do you have any idea what its value might be? Mrs. J.E.Y.

ANSWER: Approximately $190.

QUESTION: My husband travels a lot, usually frequenting the antique shops during the evening hours. Recently he found an unusual piece of cut glass — a footed compote with the most unusual cut we have ever seen. I will enclose a rubbing, which shows the deep-cut cross-cuttings which are separated by bands and three round medallions on which are engraved baskets of flowers and a cornucopia. The piece is unmarked. Thank you for any information concerning this little compote. Mrs. R.S.

ANSWER: You have described the Sheraton pattern, made by Thomas G. Hawkes Examples of this pattern are considered rare.

The Champ egg layer

That marine snail called the tethys is about a foot long. And when it lays eggs, sir, it lays eggs. About 40,000 a minute, in fact. In four months, it can lay 400 million. Do you realize that's two tethys snail's eggs for every man, woman and child in this country?

CALL YOURSELF a Seasoned Citizen, too, if you recall the Civilian Conservation Corps affectionately known as the CCC. Lads who joined that Great Depression outfit nearly 40 years ago gained an average of six-pounds-plus within two months after they signed up.

THE HARD FACTS

Q. "Where's the longest man-made ice skating rink?"

A. In Canada's Ottawa. It's four and a quarter miles long and up to 120 feet wide with 14 million square feet of ice surface.

Q. "HOW MANY CARS did Fred and Augie Duesenberg make between 1920 and 1937?"

A. Exactly 573. About 300 are still running, incidentally.

Q. "HOW SMALL is the Mississippi River at its smallest place?"

A. Maybe 12 feet wide, a foot and a half deep. At the source, the outlet of Lake Itasca.

AS A YOUNGSTER, he broke an arm once, then a leg, too. They healed. But not quite right evidently. When he went up in an airplane, they hurt, those mended breaks. The pain was too much. The Air Force washed him out of pilot training. And henceforward x-rayed all flight candidates. There are no Air Force pilots now with improperly healed bones, I'm told. Altitude changes are too painful for them.

DOCTORS

Consider doctors who die between the ages of 25 and 39. One in every four is known to be a suicide. Think of that! In the general population during those years, only one in 11 deaths is listed as suicide. Studies also show a significantly large number of doctors' wives undergo psychiatric treatment.

"MISTLETOE" means "all heal."

DURING WHICH year of a citizen's life does said party learn the most? The first year, unquestionably. As far as education goes, the law of diminishing returns sets in sometime before the first birthday. The brain boys insist this dubious contention is true. Remarkable!

Oil pumping too expensive to recover all

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Oilman calculate they've discovered 434 billion barrels of oil in the United States since they started drilling a century or more ago.

But by pumping out what they've found, they feel they'll be able to recover only about 136 billion barrels. There's more oil—lots more—but they can't get it all out.

"Rising crude oil prices have increased the potential for supplemental recovery," says Sam M. Paine, general manager for production od Shell's southern exploration and production region.

"This means water flooding, thermal stimulation or steam injection, liquefied gas floods — these have all improved recovery.

"But 65 per cent of all the oil that has been discovered remains in the ground even after these techniques are applied.

"So the industry has made extensive investigations into methods to provide ways of producing more oil by other methods.

"The increased amount we anticipate will be recovered is large in absolute terms —15 to 25 billion barrels, representing a 12 to 20 per cent increase in the ultimate oil recovered," he says.

Tom F. Hart, who works with Paine, is the general manager for exploration for Shell's southern region. Hart, too, is hopeful about industry moves toward secondary recovery — the milking of older, established fields.

"It's expensive, but you don't have to find it —it's there already," Hart says.

"Most of the potential oil structures in the Gulf of Mexico off Louisiana and Texas have been identified. Some of the potential oil and gas structures off Alabama and Florida have been, too.

"Most of the oil and gas structures off cLouisiana and Texas have been identified and purchased. Some of the oil and gas structures off Alabama and Florida have been identified and purchased.

"But none of the oil and gas structures off the Atlantic seaboard have been purchased. Louisiana-Texas is in its old age, mature. Florida is in its adolescense and the Atlantic region hasn't been born yet," Hart says.

Hart fels that in addition to working over existing fields, "offshore exploration must move to new frontiers—the Atlantic, off Southern California and the whole of Alaska."

He says that all of the obvious potential oil and gas structures have been identified onshore.

"But the onshore search is for much more subtle hydrocarbon accumulations than offshore. Onshore, large fields can be quite subtle."

Paine says that the industry is working and doing research on several more sophisticated recovery techniques such as using injection of gas, water, light hydrocarbons, carbon dioxide, and other inert gases to displace oil from reservoir rock.

"The injection of light hydrocarbons and inert gases is still in its early stages, but the technique that may yield the highest recovery from light oil reserves is chemical flooding.

"The potential is large in all of these, but there are long lead times," Paine says.

As for energy self sufficiency, Hart feels that with continued efforts to find more oil and gas field plus input from tar sands, oil shale and other sources like coal and nuclear energy, the nation "has a fighting chance to be self-sufficient by 1990."

He says the industry "has received what we consider important new incentives to explore for oil and gas — the price increase, essentially it's doubled —and we have already seen an upsurge in exploration as a result of the new incentives.

Family has responsibility for restoring old mansion

By LENORE WALLACE
P-B Staff Writer

A little plaster, paint, hard work and lots of love is the way a Montclair family is restoring the old San Dimas mansion at 101 E. Foothill Blvd.

The house built in the early 1920s has been ravaged by vandals this past year who all but destroyed the interior of the structure.

A news story describing the destruction and the fact that the San Dimas City Council was considering condemning the structure because it was a public nuisance, sent Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lamoureux of Montclair into action.

"It's the kind of house we have always wanted to live in," Lamoureux said. He explained how he and his wife, Pat, and four children, visited the mansion the day the story appeared.

The family decided on the spot that they wanted to have a part in the restoration of the old house and also wanted to live there.

The family has since entered into an agreement with the owners, Apartment Management Associates, Inc. of Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. Lamoureux will restore the property at their own expense and in return will have a long-time lease to live in the house.

The Lamoureux family was one of several families who offered to restore the property in exchange for the opportunity to live there, according to Linda Lawar, a representative of the owners.

Lamoureux said he and his wife were shocked when they saw the beautiful old house for the first time and that vandals could have done so much damage. The floors of the house on both stories were covered with glass from the 45 windows in the house along with other debris.

"We have hauled away 7½ tons of trash from the property, each of us working every day at the property," Lamoureux said.

Lamoureux is a steam engineer for Beverly Hospital in Montebello. An energetic man, he is also completing his education attending Cal State L.A. where he will get his degree in a few months in an environmental specialty.

"I had hoped to graduate in December but now because of all the extra hours spent working on the house, I may have to delay graduation until next June," Lamoureux said.

But he feels the sacrifice is worth it. "You can't replace the beautiful feeling we all share having a part in restoring this house," he said.

He and his wife have been pleased with the response of the community and efforts by individuals to help repair the house. Many young people in the area of the house helped clean up the yards and the hard work of cleaning debris from the interior of the structure.

La Verne's chief of Police Jack Baker has been very helpful in assisting the family in obtaining the red tile to replace tiles vandals tore off the roof in places. David Carls of Pomona, a close friend of the family, is donating his time to design and replace all of the leaded and stained glass windows and doors in the house.

Lamoureux said people have responded from all over the valley and have offered lumber, paint and their time to help restore the house.

A 24-hour guard is on the property at all times but the family hopes to move in to the house as soon as they can get the water turned on. A legal dispute over easements has caused a problem with getting water service to the property. Lamoureux said he is hoping that one of the residents on the east side of San Dimas Avenue will grant an easement on their property to permit the water line to be connected.

Meanwhile the family is working daily to try to bring the house back to its original beauty.

Lamoureux sat recently with his children on the front porch of the house and talked about his plans for the future there. He wants a horse for the youngsters, to plant a garden and grass under the 100-year-old oak trees in the front yard.

He's hoping that with all the donations of time and material from people in the community, he can keep the costs down to a $5,000 amount. He wants the community to share in the restoration of the house and plans a party and open house when it is completed.

Anyone wanting to help with the project can contact the family at 599-4002.

$10,000 blaze is blamed on cigarette butt

A fire spread quickly through a home at 206 E. Maple St. in Ontario destroying a bedroom and a living room. Damage to the structure and contents was estimated at $10,000.

Fire Inspector Rick Lebell said the fire was reported at 9:19 a.m. by William D. Hooper owner of the home. When firemen arrived, the fire had already engulfed half the interior of the two-bedroom wood frame home.

Lebell said it appeared that an ashtray containing a smouldering cigarette had been thrown into a paper bag while the family was cleaning the house. The paper bag was left in the bedroom and a short time later the fire started up the bedroom wall and into the living room.

Members of the Lamoureux family pose inside the front room of the San Dimas mansion. The debris that completely covered the floors has been hauled away revealing hardwood floors that will be refinished. The dark marks above the fireplace were made by vandals who threw paint on the walls throughout the house. David Carls, in the background, is designing leaded and stained glass windows.

Bus service shutdown possible by Monday

Unless a contract agreement is reached today, bus transportation in most of Southern California will be halted at 12:01 a.m. Monday in a strike by mechanics and drivers for the Southern California Rapid Transit District.

The district's bus service, which is extensive in Pomona and valley cities in Los Angeles County, will be completely shut down if a contract agreement is not reached by RTD management and representatives of the Amalgamated Transit Union and the United Transportation Union.

The two unions represent 3,295 drivers and 728 mechanics. Both unions have already concluded strike votes.

The district and union officials have been in negotiations on a new contract since April. The previous contract expired on May 31.

Issues include wages, length of contract, sick leave, health and welfare provisions, pensions, vacation periods and operating procedures.

The union representing the mechanics has demanded a 15 per cent wage increase, while the drivers' union is asking increases totalling 46 per cent over the next two years.

District officials have branded the demands as "excessive and contrary to the best interests of our passengers and the tax-paying public."

The district bus service serves approximately 650,000 riders per day in Los Angeles, Orange, San Bernardino and Riverside counties.

"We will be working all day to try and avoid the strike," promised an RTD spokesman. "We are keenly aware of our responsibilities to the thousands of people who depend on us for transportation and are trying our best to avoid a situation that will work undeserved hardships on these people."

HEARTLINE

800-543-2393

Heartline is a service for senior citizens. Its purpose is to answer questions—fast. It costs you nothing. Call Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. or write Heartline, 8514 North Main St., Dayton, Ohio, 45415. Remember, Heartline pays for all calls on its toll-free number . . . 800-543-2393.

Heartline: I retired at the age of 70. Am I entitled to any sum of money for the five years I worked past 65, or will my children receive it? I could use the money as I have some repairs to make on my property. — C. C. B.

Answer: Your Social Security benefits will be higher due to the fact that you worked longer, but there will be no lump sum given to you for the extra years you worked.

Heartline: After a will is drawn up by a certain attorney, do you have to call on him when a person passes away, or can you employ an attorney of your choice? — H. S.

Answer: Any attorney can be employed to administer over the will. It does not have to be the attorney who originally drew up the will.

Heartline: I am on Social Security. I would like to know whether my Social Security would be affected if I won some money in a lottery. — T.O.

Answer: You would have to pay taxes on any lottery winnings, but they would not affect your Social Security benefits.

Heartline: I have heard people talking about SSI. What is it? — M. M.

Answer: SSI is Supplemental Security Income. It is additional income for people over 65, or the blind or disabled. There are several qualifications to be met in order to receive these benefits. We suggest that you contact your local Social Security office.

Heartline: Does inflation make my food stamps go up in price? — R. R.

Answer: No. What determines your food stamp allotment is your income, the price you pay for shelter, and the numbers in your family.

Heartline: My wife is my common-law wife. Is she entitled to any Social Security benefits? — E. B.

Answr: Yes, her benefits would be figured the same as for any other wife.

BLS representatives initiate rental survey

Starting this month, representatives of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, U.S. Department of Labor, will be visiting households in the Ontario, Riverside and San Bernardino areas, to gather information on housing facilties and rental costs.

According to Bruce Hanchett, acting assistant regional director for the Bureau of Labor Statistics in the Pacific region, the rental survey is part of the comprehensive revision of the Consumer Price Index. The revision is currently being undertaken by the bureau and is expected to be completed in 1977.

The survey in Ontario will continue through September. During the first stage of the survey BLS data collectors will list housing unit addresses in the sample neighborhoods. In the second stage they will randomly visit selected dwelling units and interview occupants in order to obtain information concerning the type of occupancy (rental or owner), the type and amount of rent, age and type of structure and the type of kitchen facilities.

In the final stage of the poll, respondents will be asked to provide information on the exact amount of rent and the kinds of equipment and services included in the rent.

BSL data collectors will bear credentials identifying them as employes of the bureau. All information gathered from respondents will be kept confidential and used only for statistical purposes.

College gives 191 degrees to grads at commencement

Azusa Pacific College awarded 168 master of arts degrees and 23 bachelor of arts degrees at commencement exercises Friday.

Dr. Clinton W. Jones, chairman of the social sciences division at the college, gave the commencement address. Dr. Malcolm Robertson, executive vice president of the college, conferred degrees.

Others taking part in the ceremonies included Dr. Dwayne Bell, assistant to the president; Dr. John Carlson, assistant dean of graduate studies; and the Rev. Martin Cox, representing the board of trustees.

Council to examine 'dial-a-ride' proposal

A proposal for a "dial-a-ride" transportation system will be reviewed by the Pomona City Council at its Monday, 8 p.m. meeting.

The system, which would serve the cities of Pomona, Ontario, Claremont, Upland, Montclair and Chino, is being proposed by Paul's Yellow Cab Co., Inc.

The proposal previously was brought before the Pomona Council which took no action.

The council will hold a hearing, continued from Aug. 5, on the notice of owner to demolish a substandard building at 960 W. 1st St.

There will also be a hearing on the sale by the Redevelopment Agency of a block bounded by Garey Avenue, Mission Boulevard, Thomas Street and 4th Street.

The block will be sold by the Pomona Development Co. for an office-financial center.

The Spanish Speaking Management and Construction Corp. is seeking an extension of a 180-day exclusive right of development in an area south of Holt Avenue and east of White Avenue.

Councilmen will discuss representation on the Local Agency Formation Commission and the request of the Pomona Valley Municipal Water District for support of an amendment to the state water code.

Two residents operate youth work program

Two Diamond Bar residents, in cooperation with the Walnut school district's recreation office, are operating a volunteer youth employment service in the Diamond Bar-Walnut-Rowland Heights area.

They are seeking jobs for young people for the remaining weeks before school starts.

Boys and girls 13 to 19 are available to carry out a wide variety of assignments, ranging from baby sitting and housework to delivery service.

Mrs. Alice J. Stoeck (595-2397) and Gerry Nishioka (595-4361) would appreciate receiving job orders from employers and also will take calls from young people who need work.

In Walnut, Bob Bray of the recreation office will take calls at 595-1261.

Mrs. Stoeck said approximately 50 young people had been placed in jobs since the service started a month ago, but more jobs are needed.

Crafts display

Crafts made by youngsters attending summer recreation programs in the city will be on display beginning Monday at the city hall in San Dimas.

Awards will be presented to the best entries.

A matter of life and speed limits

There are few simple choices in this complex technological world. Often the question of what will bring the greatest good to the greatest number comes down to trying to decide what will cause the least harm to the least number.

Congress, for example, is considering making permanent the emergency 55-mile-per-hour speed limit on highways. A flood of data shows that not only has it saved fuel but it has brought about a significant reduction in deaths and injuries from traffic accidents.

Obviously, a lowering of the limit to 45 or 35 would save even more resources, both material and human. The ideal situation would be no traffic deaths at all. But long before we achieved that goal, which would require the banning of motor vehicles entirely, we would reach a point where the benefits would begin to be offset by other undesirable effects, such as the serious disruption of the economy.

Another example is the current controversy over polyvinyl chloride — PVC — a chemical used in an extremely wide variety of modern products, from food packaging to automobile parts to plastic heart valves to phonograph records.

Last January it was discovered that angioscarcoma, a rare form of liver cancer, had been the cause of death among some 19 workers in the United States and Europe involved in processing vinyl chloride, a gas, into PVC.

The workers had been exposed to the gas for anywhere from 14 to 27 years before the cancers appeared, raising the possibility that more cases would begin turning up.

Because of this, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration of the Department of Labor proposed an emergency standard, effective April 5, setting a maximum exposure level of 50 parts per million of vinyl chloride in the air. The previous level had been 500 parts per million.

Then in May, the OSHA proposed a permanent standard to reduce the exposure of vinyl chloride workers to a "no detectable level."

The Society of the Plastics Industry, claimed that there was no possible way to meet such a standard and that it would threaten the very existence of the industry. The OSHA, as is customary, held hearings in Washington at the end of June.

On one side, a number of PVC manufacturers or users of PVC, both large and small, testified that they would be forced out of business if the "no detectable level" were adopted. One maker of plastic tubing for medical uses warned that desperately needed equipment in kidney dialysis and heart surgery might become unavailable.

On the other side, organized labor strongly backed the proposed standard. "This country survived for nearly 200 years without polyvinyl chloride and we can survive in the future without it," said Peter Bommarito, president of the United Rubber Workers and chairman of the health and safety committee of the AFL-CIO.

Labor Department spokesmen disputed industry claims that the proposed regulation would stop vinyl chloride production and throw out of work as many as two million people in the plastics and other industries. The department did acknowledge the existence of some marginal firms might be jeopardized if they were forced to raise prices to pay for safety measures.

The upshot of the hearings was a decision to delay the standard until Oct. 5 while a study of its technological and economic feasibility was made by the OSHA.

"What we in OSHA have to do," said its director Daniel P. Boyd, "is to arrive at a practical solution based on a subjective, but detailed, analysis of all the factors under consideration."

In other words, just what is the balancing point between the health threat of vinyl chloride and PVC to workers and the public and the economic threat to the industry?

In still other words, what should this particular "speed limit" be?

Sen. Morse's epitaph

The death of Oregon's Wayne Morse, former U.S. Senator and once again a candidate, adds a highlight to the current efforts of Congress to reestablish many of the prerogatives it had over the years abdicated to the executive branch.

He and the late Ernest Gruening of Alaska cast the only two votes against the Gulf of Tonkin resolution on August 7, 1964. That resolution was used by President Lyndon Johnson as, in effect, a declaration of war in Southeast Asia.

It was typical of Morse. He never hesitated to attack what he disapproved, including his own parties (being at various times a Republican, Independent and Democrat). His parties usually reciprocated.

In the old-fashioned term, Morse was a "ferninster" — an against-er. His espousal of populist, unpopular causes will be a major part of his epitaph.

Natural gas price rise next winter

WASHINGTON — The cost of heating homes and buildings with natural gas will skyrocket next winter, because the giant oil companies allegedly have withheld news of major discoveries in order to drive up prices.

In a secret report to Chairman Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., the Senate Commerce Committee staff has suggested that the oil companies are "simply lying" about the available gas.

"Having succeeded in tripling prices for oil in little over a year," charges the report, "the oil industry is evidently determined to match its achievement on the natural gas side of its business."

Not only have the oil companies indulged in "false reporting of the success of offshore drilling" in order to boost rates, suggests the report, but the Federal Power Commission has "done its best to appease the producers" at the expense of the consumers.

The FPC, which fixes the rates consumers pay for natural gas, is supposed to protect them from profiteering. But President Nixon installed as chairman a reluctant regulator named John Nassikas, who has helped the oil companies increase their gas profits. We proved this in 1971 from documents that he had kept under lock and key.

Meanwhile, here's what has been going on in Louisiana's fabulously rich offshore gas fields:

From 1969 through 1971, the oil companies found gas from 7.9 to 9.4 per cent of the time when they made exploratory drillings. Then in 1972, just as the FPC began preparing its findings in a rate case, the success ratio dropped dramatically to 2.4 per cent.

In 1973, it plummeted all the way down to one per cent, even though offshore drilling was producing as high as 24.2 per cent success in other parts of the country.

"Either the oil industry has entirely lost the ability to locate new deposits of. . .gas in the most promising territory," states the secret report with brutal simplicity, "or it is simply lying about what it has found. The first explanation seems extremely unlikely.

"The less success the industry shows in its exploration, the higher the price it can demand for its gas," the report points out. Once the price is set, new developmental wells may produce "prolific quantities" in the same areas where exploratory wells "reportedly found nothing."

Even the FPC's natural gas planning chief, Gordon Zareski, conceded to us that he has "never seen such a gross aberration" as the figures submitted by the oil companies on their Louisiana drillings.

The day after we inquired at the FPC why they had accepted the oil industry's figures without any question, the FPC suddenly dispatched a letter of explanation to Magnuson.

The American Petroleum Institute, which furnished the FPC with the dubious figures, defended them. A spokesman told us: "Some years you hit it and some years you don't. Nobody would like to find gas more than we would. It has been very disappointing."

Footnote: Like the FPC, the Federal Energy Administration relies on the oil industry like a blind man relies on his seeing eye dog.

The FEA is preparing, for example, to stop allocating residual fuels for 90 days. This will benefit Exxon, which now controls the lion's share of the home heating market in the Northeast. With the dropping of the allocation program, Exxon won't have to supply small, independent competitors.

The manager of the FEA's residual fuels section, who helped draft the decision to end the allocation program, is John Vernon. He came to FEA from Exxon.

Vernon insisted to us, nevertheless, that he had "no significant input" into the decision benefitting Exxon. He had severed "all ties" with Exxon and "absolutely did not have" a conflict of interest, he said. "I look at my job like I joined the Army," he said. "I'm sworn to defend my country."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: An investigation last year found that 28 states had misused $43 million in federal funds earmarked to help educate poor children. Now, a year later, only $50,000 has been repaid by four states. Instead of repaying the federal treasury, states have been given the option of using the misspent funds for new local programs to help disadvantaged students. But only two states have expressed interest in reapplying the money for this purpose . . . A closed-door conclave has concluded that some 12 million of America's 72 million cats and dogs are destroyed annually in control centers. Another 15 million are estimated to be at large, some in wild dog packs, others carrying disease, but most of them merely suffering from exposure and starvation. The pet experts recommended increased spaying, castration and research on birth control measures . . .

The FBI has busted a Washington "spy shop" whose proprietor, Robert Dorsen, claims that G-men were among his steadiest customers. Under a 1968 privacy law, the agents seized some miniature microphones and telephone taping devices. An FBI spokesman said the bureau's records show no purchases from Dorsen's German Hi-Fi Center, although individual agents may have patronized the place . . . . Our exposes of microwave damage to radar operators caused the Veterans Administration finally to give benefits to two ex-GI radar men. Now we are happy to report that the Labor Department has given a similar award to a Federal Aviation Administration specialist, Chris Speros of Atlanta, whose cataracts resulted from his federal radar work.

Just in jest

According to some authorities, you are what you eat and drink. But of course, there are exceptions which are always necessary to prove any rule.

Among the more interesting exceptions are those folks who insist on being one of the gang even though it takes a bit of deception to maintain that reputation. They are the ones who parade around at parties, talking loudly and taking special pains to punctuate their remarks by a perilous wave of the hand that is holding their drinks.—a non-alcoholic drink that is colored and flavored to look and smell like the real thing.

On second thought, maybe there are no exceptions—Maybe we ARE what we eat and drink. After all, don't counterfeit drinks make counterfeit people?

Gulps 5 live frogs to win Irish title

BALLYCUMBER, Ireland (UPI) — John McNamara, 42, won $24 and the title of All-Ireland Live Frog Swallowing Champion Sunday. He gulped five live frogs in 65 seconds.

Watched by 5,000 spectators in the County Offaly village of Ballmber, McNamara beat five other competitors.

The frogs were swallowed with mouthfuls of champagne.

"I have never done this kind of thing before," McNamara said. "I feel all right—in fact I've never felt better. More people should do it."

Two competitors backed out at the last minute.

Another was disqualified — for chewing.

Pool appeals to President

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford teased reporters Friday about the presidential press center being located over what used to be the White House swimming pool.

"Many of you know my great interest in aquatic activities — but I haven't made a decision yet on whether to tear up the floor and use the pool," he said.

Ford has been in the habit of swimming every morning and evening —year round —in the heated pool at his Alexandria, Va., home.

Elimination of youth fare hurts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — College students flying to school this year or planning to wing it back during the holidays will find the trip costs a lot more than it used to.

Youth fares, once a real boon to travelers between the ages of 12 and 21, are gone. They disappeared June 1 as the result of a legal challenge which claimed the fares discrimniated against the over 21 set.

The airline industry hated to see them go. Among other things it says traffic across the Atlantic has declined because students who once could make the trip for half price standby or two-thirds price reserved are not now so willing to go.

But there is no continental U.S. travel anyway. Some carriers have asked that youth fares be restored for transatlantic flights, however, to compete with foreign airlines which are still offering discounts, or to curb the growing practice among students and others of flying to Canada and then departing for Europe. Even with the added trip north of the border Canadian flights across the Atlantic are still cheaper than those originating in the United States for those under 21.

The following comes from a reader in Harrisburg, Ill.:

"I read in a paper where a company was advertising sewing machines, where you send them $10 a month till you get it paid for, then they were supposed to send you the machine.

"I sent $10 to them and then I read not to deal with this company as they weren't on the up and up. I wrote and asked for my $10 refunded and they never did answer my letter.

"Is there any way I can get my money back?"

She identified the company as Market Development Corp., Contest Award Division, Cincinnati, Ohio.

It appears you may be out of luck, along with a lot of other people. According to the Ohio Attorney General's office, the company filed for bankruptcy after being hit by suits from several states as well as actions by the Federal Trade Commission and the U.S. Postal Service.

Its bankruptcy petition claims that it owes a lot more than it has —by a margin as high as six to one. Even if there is a settlement, Ohio officials say, the consumer is usually at the bottom of the list and the least likely to collect.

There are two things, however, you or anyone else involved with this firm can do to perhaps get some money back, or at lease assure your name is on the list of creditors should a settlement come.

The first is to contact your state attorney general's office to determine if your state is one of the several which has filed suit against the firm. If so your name can be added to the list of complainants.

Secondly, go to an office supply store, stationary shop or similar outlet and buy a "proof of claim" form. This form simply lists what you bought, what you spent and other particulars. Send this form to: Court of Bankruptcy, 719 U.S. Post Office & Courthouse Building, 5th and Walnut Streets, Cincinnati, Ohio 45202, attention of Ed Schulzinger, receiver in bankruptcy.

Again, neither action will guarantee a refund: but you will have standing should a settlement be made.

Ohio officials say the firm was involved in several operations, including letters to individuals telling them they had won a "free vacation" if they sent in a small sum of money for handling charges. The winner got back a certificate but found out he had to pay his own way to Florida, Nevada or wherever the vacation was.

One sewing machine deal, Ohio officials add, involved notification that you had "won" $100 off a $169 machine — which, it turned out, was only worth $69 to begin with.

Pass on your questions, complaints or suggestions. We can't promise an answer for each one but will reply as time and space permit. Direct inquiries to Buyer's Billboard, UPI, 315 National Press Building, Washington, D.C. 20045.

Bicycle sales in 1973 totaled 15.4 million, says the Bank of America.

Leslie King became Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Gerald Rudolph Ford was born in Omaha Neb., July 14, 1913, and christened Leslie King. When his parents divorced, his mother took her infant son to Grand Rapids, Mich., where she later married a business man, Gerald Rudolph Ford Sr.

The elder Ford adopted the boy and gave him his name —Gerald Jr. — a fact Ford didn't learn until he was a high school senior.

Ford was washing dishes and serving hamburgers in a Grand Rapids restaurant for $2 a week when his real father, who had become a rancher in Wyoming, walked in and introduced himself.

"That was quite a shock," Ford said later. "I'd never thought about it. I couldn't care less. From my earliest my stepfather was my real father."

Bumper stickers out of hand

By ERMA BOMBECK

The other day I pulled up to a traffic light and observed the car in front of me.

There must have been eight stickers in the window proclaiming stands on controversial issues, plus four bumper stickers that provided ultimatums from "LOVE IT OR LEAVE IT!" to "SAVE PRECIOUS AIR, STOP BREATHING."

"What kind of car is that?" asked my son.

"It's a 1974 Opinion," I said.

The bumpers of American cars have not only become billboards for every social ill you can think of, some of them are getting downright ugly.

It all started off as a happy showcase for a sticker that said simply, "SMILE" or "HAVE A GOOD DAY." You could tear the fender off a car with a "SMILE" or "HAVE A GOOD DAY" and really feel rotten about the accident.

But a strange hostility swept over me the other day in the church parking lot. I actually raced a car to a parking space with a bumper sticker that read, "VOTE NO FOR THE SCHOOL LEVY."

Wearing your emotions on the rear end of your car can create some problems. A friend of mine found herself recently behind a car that had sat through two traffic lights. Finally, on the third green, she honked her horn. The driver came back and said, "So you think he's guilty, do you?"

"Who's guilty?" she asked.

He pointed toward his bumper sticker. "Your president. I purposely put 'HONK IF YOU THINK HE'S GUILTY' on my bumper just to see you people face to face."

My friend was so angry she rushed out and bought a bumper sticker, "DON'T BLAME ME. I VOTED FOR McGOVERN," and another one beside it that read, "HONK IF YOU WANT A PUNCH IN THE MOUTH."

Frankly, I think the whole thing is getting out of hand. I saw a man with a bumper sticker that read, "THIS IS A MAFIA STAFF CAR" cut right in front of another car with a sticker that read, "STICK IT IN YOUR EAR, FELLA." I even found my husband the other night in the dark garage putting a bumper sticker on our son's car that read, "THIS CAR SHOULD BE CONDEMNED."

I don't know where it is all going to end. Maybe letting it all hang out on the bumper of our car is the answer to all our frustrations. But until tempers settle down, I think I'll stick with my bumper that reads, "DRIVE DEFENSIVELY. BUY A TANK."

For Sunday, Aug. 11

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Someone with whom you have a strong emotional tie will have a hand in getting your something that will add to your possessions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Charm, humor and tact will be tools that you'll skillfully use today to win others over to your way of thinking and doing things.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You've been unwisely hesitant about asking a favor from one who can help you in something confidential. Try now.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The one thing you don't want to be today is a loner. Get with your group— there are a few pleasant surprises.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Authority over others is now back firmly in your hands. Lead by example. You'll have a host of followers.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Use gentle measures on those you come in contact with. You'll find these measures far more powerful than issuing forceful commands.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Someone is going to treat you very kindly and do something for you she wouldn't do for others. She doesn't want it broadcast.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something you're going to have to decide upon now will prove to be a wise decision if you base it on unselfishness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today you'll find it to be very rewarding if you give some time to a labor of love that you're presently interested in.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You have won over a very helpful ally as evidenced by her willingness to co-operate just when you need her.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)Why don't you make some of those artistic little changes around the house you've been think of while you're in a creative mood?

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Someone is making pleasant plans of a social mature. You figure in them prominently. You'll hear of this shortly.

Your birthday
Aug. 11

New ways will open this year so that a secret ambition of yours can be attained. It's more of a pleasurable thing than one of a business nature.

For Monday, Aug. 12

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're apt to be careless with your use of both spoken and written words. Be especially wary of what you put on paper.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're the type of customer a sharp salesman would love to get his hands on at this time. He could sell you things you don't need.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You'll have meager results to show for your efforts today. You have too many irons in the fire. Do less, but do it right.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're curious about a lot of things at this time, but you're not likely to ferret out accurate information.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Several of your outside interests will be clamoring for attention at the same time. They'll also tug sharply on your purse strings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something you're hoping to achieve now is held in a delicate balance. A few wrong moves could topple everything.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your ideas will not be well-thought-out today but you'll put them to use anyway, hoping you can get by with half-measures.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is not a good day to get yourself too involved in another's problems. Although you'll try to be helpful, things will misfire.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'd be better off waiting until tomorrow before making any important decisions. Today your judgment is a bit questionable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're likely to be napping on the job. That wouldn't be so bad but you'll also be careless with the way you handle equipment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're apt to overrate your luck now. If you do, it will spell trouble. Stay away from risky involvements.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you expect others to bail you out of today's problems you'll have a long wait. Everyone will be too busy sorting out their own affairs.

Your birthday Aug. 12

Expect a lot of increased activity this year in areas you've only touched on previously. New acquaintances will be made. Perhaps you'll take a series of short trips as well.

"ULCER GONE" SAYS

Louis Pleshe, "I had an ulcer 30 years. Life was miserable all those years. Tried lots of diets and doctors. None helped me. Had just about given up when I saw Dr. Wing. After taking his treatments 10 weeks I feel wonderful. It has been over 6 years now and I have not taken any medicine nor had any reoccurance."

New York Stock Exchange — week's high, low, close

NEW YORK (UPI) -- Following are weekly prices on the New York Stock Exchange at close.

All sales in hundreds (00) omitted except for those destanated (z) which are traded in 10 share lots and carried in full. DIVIDENDS: are annual unless otherwise identified; (a) plus extra; (z) declared or paid so far this year, no regular rate; (c) payment on accumulated dividends; (e) paid last year; (e) cash plus stock; (b) annual rate plus stock dividend; (h) paid this year—latest dividend omitted; (i) per cent in stock paid in 1972; (k) per cent in stock paid in 1973; (q) in bankruptcy-receivership or reorganization(s) capital distribution; (x) exdividend; (wi) when issued; (wt) warrants.

(H) indicates new high for the year; (L) indicates new low for the year.

P-E ratio: The price of a stock as a multiple of per-share earnings derived by dividing the latest 12-month earnings figure into last sale price.

Crude oil futures market could bring stability

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) To an energy-consicous economy, announcement of a futures market for crude oil comes as a harbinger of stability in world oil prices.

Success of the market, to be opened by the New York Cotton Exchange Sept. 10, in time could stabilize world oil prices to the benefit of industry and motorists and homeowners. It might even reduce prices from present levels.

But Don Conlin, president of Petroleum Associates of the New York Cotton Exchange, Inc., which will operate the new market, is making no rosy short-term predictions.

"We have been working on the project 18 months and we believe it's time has come," he told United Press International, "but the attitude of the major oil companies toward it so far is neutral. They say they may use our market but they also may go on handling their pricing the way they have for years."

Conlin is convinced the independent oil companies, the refiners, the international oil traders —and speculators —will use the new exchange right from the start. And he thinks the majore ultimately will see the wisdom of taking advantage of the hedging opportunities of a futures market such as traders and users of cotton, grains, sugarand other major commodities enjoy.

The futures contract on the new market will run up to three years with four delivery months and the trading unit will be 5,000 barrels of crude deliverable at the Dutch port of Rotterdam.

"We don't expect many deliveries of physical oil to result from our operations," Conlin added. "The oil futures market will be a pricing mechanism just as the more than a century old cotton futures market is. Fewer than one per cent of all cotton futures transactions result in physical deliveries of cotton. The trades are hedging operations by people in the cotton world for the most part and some are plain speculations. So it will be with oil futures. But you must have a physical trading unit, delivery point and delivery dates to give the trading reality."

An advisory committee drawn from all segments of the oil world has helped frame the market's trading rules and fix the standards for oil that can be delivered under the contract. "It's based on light Persian Gulf oil but, with appropriate adjustments in the price, almost any oil in the world will be eligible," Conlin said.

A futures market in crude oil is urgently needed, Conlin said, because the events of the past two years have shown the long-term contract pricing procedure practiced in the industry for so many years has broken down and the resulting skyrocketing prices have the entire global economy still reeling from the shock. The fact that crude oil demand at last has begun to decline and prices have dropped a little means the moment is ripe to launch futures trading, he said.

"Today the long-term contract (in oil) does not exist," says a statement by Conlin's group. "Even a 30-day guaranty of price is almost impossible to find and the refiners are becoming resigned to weekly and even daily price changes "such as occur in cotton, grain, sugar and other commodities. That would appear to be a logical reason for a futures market.

Noting the big oil companies began as long as three panies began as long as three years ago to predict the 1973 energy crisis, the Cotton Exchange group says if a futures market in crude had been created two years ago it could have cushioned tte cruel impact of sharply rising oil prices on the world.

"With the law of supply and demand working freely without government price controls as they only can on a futures market, the price would have risen, but slowly," the group says, "as it became obvious that increased consumption was threatening to overtake world production."

The Cotton Exchange group said a big reason for the pricing chaos that occurred in the past year was that no one, not even governments or the biggest oil companies, and certainly not the oil and gasoline consuming public, had accurate information about the extent of the looming shortage. Only a few people could make even a good guess.

"A petroleum futures market," Conlin said, "would have made the combined knowledge of all sources generally available on a daily basis through price changes reflected in the futures market." Traders, refiners, producers and users all would have been alerted much earlier to what was happening in the oil world and would have taken steps to protect themselves. The producing industry would have known better how to plan.

Although no manufacturer, no producer and no government can accurately predict the public reaction to price swings, the cash register tells what that reaction is and so does a futures market, said the Cotton Exchange group. The futures market is subject to price pressures at both ends—from the producers and processors who want prices to rise and consumers resisting the rises.

Conlin refused to predict how soon the new futures market might build up a trading volume sufficient to have any real influence on the pricing of physical crude oil in the domestic and international industry.

But he said everybody in the oil world could benefit from a successful futures market.

"Even a major oil company," he said, "can have problems in raising capital when its only basis for wanting to expand crude production is the predictions of its own marketing department unsupported by any outside sources. The futures market would provide that support because the prices at which contracts were being traded would be set by the combined knowledge of everyone in the oil industry and the industries that deal with the oil companies."

Conlin said any idea that an oil futures market could be used by ruthless speculators to run prices up or down to false levels is out of date. The law of supply and demand and the self-interest of the producers and users of oil would prevent it, he said.

Not only oil operators but airlines, banks and many other businesses that use petroleum products may ultimately avail themselves of the hedging facilities of the new market, said James P. Murphy, a vice president of Inexco Oil Co. of Houston.

Conceivably, Murphy said, if there had been an oil futures market in the past two years, some of the airlines might have protected themselves from huge losses due to skyrocketing fuel prices by selling oil futures when they saw the prices were going up.

"I hope the Arabs, the West Germans and the Japanese will avail themselves of the new futures market. If they do and we get a few hundred million dollars worth of futures trading volume, we in the oil business will have a solid information base for estimating future pricing trends. We can see how knowledgeable people are really betting their money on oil prices and we'll be able, for example, to go to an insurance company and borrow money on the basis of this information."

Murphy said the need for an oil futures market has developed suddenly. "For 18 years the price of oil was stabilized by import controls and long term contracts and everybody in the business knew what the price would be for the next three years. Now that's all in the past."

Stocks soar, then retreat as Watergate drama ends

NEW YORK (UPI) — As the curtain fell on the Watergate drama this week, the stock market soared on rumors, then retreated on the reality of the first presidential resignation in U.S. history.

Results for the week on the New York Stock Exchange was a gain of 24.72 points in the widely followed Dow Jones industrial average, an indicator of blue chip stocks where much of the action centered. Activity picked up, with most of the increase on the upside.

Rumors that President Nixon would voluntarily leave office swept Wall Street early in the week, carrying the market 45 points higher in the first three sessions. A flurry of White House denials failed to dampen investors' hopes that a new administration would devote its full attention to the nation's economic ills.

But on Thursday, with Nixon's resignation virtually assured, traders cashed in on their gains and sent the market into a skid. The selling continued through Friday as the financial com weighed the impact of Nixon's Thursday night address announcing his decision to step down.

Reaction on Wall Street to Vice-President Gerald Ford's succession to the presidency generally was favorable, but the financial community remained cautious about his economic policies, which are a complete unknown.

Analyst Saul Smerling of Standard & Poor's Corp., noting the shock value of Nixon's resignation already has worn off, said "aside from any short-term flurries, the market is going to sit back and see what economic programs will develop. The market may well need some time to consolidate."

Even on Thursday as the country awaited Nixon's expected resignation in his scheduled television address, two gloomy economic reports jolted investors and fueled concern over inflation.

The Labor Department's announcement that wholesale prices had climbed at a 44.4 per cent annual rate in July accounted for some of Thursday's market weakness. After the close, the Federal Reserve disclosed that business borrowing at 12 major New York City banks rose $73 million in the week ended Wednesday, raising the prospect of still higher interest rates and setting the tone for Friday continued market slide.

But one economic verdict this week indicated inflationary pressure may be leveling off. The Fed revealed consumer installment credit rose by $1.09 billion in June, down sharply from a $1.26 billion increase in May.

Now that impeachment has been removed from the "three I's" —Wall Street jargon for the inflation, interest rates and impeachment which have dogged the market for the past ten months —investors should tailor their moves to resolution of purely economic problems.

The Dow Jones industrial average gain of 24.72 left it at 777.30. The blue chip indicator rose 23.78 points in its best gain of the week Wednesday on news Nixon's GOP supporters in Congress had mutinied and the President's resignation was imminent.

The market plunged 21.16 points before closing early on Nov. 22, 1963 when President Kennedy was assassinated and soared 20.58 points the day after President Johnson announced he would not seek another term in office.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was up 2.27 to 80.86. Of the 1,961 issues traded, there were 1,337 gainers, 416 losers.

Sales totaled 66,066,920 shares, heavier than the 55,549,010 the week before, and compared with 62,029,790 a year earlier.

The most active issue was Clorox Co., with 1,117,800 shares changing hands. It closed up 1 at 9 ¼. Polaroid was second, down 1 ½ to 26 ⅜ on 687,400 shares.

Marcor Inc. was third, ahead 3 ¾ to 27 ⅛ on 647,000 shares. Mobil Oil reached agreement to make a cash tender offer for Marcor at $35 per common share and $70 for each share of the company's Series "A" preferred stock. Mobil lost ¾.

The biggest mover was Revco, down 10 ⅞ to 13 ½. The discount drug chain dropped dramatically following a preliminary earnings report that failed to meet earlier predictions and disappointed Wall Streeters.

Superior Oil, a volatile issue that often shows wide swings, lost 9 ½ to 145 ½.

Williams Companies gained 5 ⅜ to 62 ⅝ after reporting its second quarter net jumped to $2.17 per share from $1.54 a year ago.

America mean friendship. Although some are not so friendly. America also means love and beauty. Some of the prettiest forests are in America. And means memories of great people.

Dina Clark

Chino

America really doesn't mean anything anymore, because its so full of litter and junk. So try cleaning it up so it will be America again. All America means right now is a bunch of litter. So pitch in and clean it up every body wants to be proud of America.

Roberta Starns

I think America is a great place to live. I think it is wonderful. I love Arizona state the best! It is so beautiful. I go there all the time. It's flowers and beauties are so pretty. The world could be better if there wasn't pollution. That is one thing that should "stop" right now!

I think we should throw all the cars away and put everybody on bikes. Besides that would be fun. America is a wonderful place to live, and every American should love "it". I do!

Kim Heckman
Age 11
Chino

America means alot to me all the shops and stores and places to work. The hospital saves many people from dying, the school which teaches me, the nice trees we have and all the flowers mean alot to me. Almost all the time I think about America and how glad I live there. America is about the best place you could live in.

Angela Peck
Chino

What it Means to me is that if I didn't live here I would not be able to eat the banna splits or have glasses of milk to wash down the banana splits. It is a beautiful place to live and spend vacations at. We have beautiful weather. And if you spend some time in New York. Then you can go to Carson City in Nevada. There are alot of things to do and if the Statue of liberty could talk she could of told you so her self. President Lincoln was so good I bet he would of told you to. He had very good manners. So I am very proud of America.

President Ford's wife prefers home to social activities in Washington

By United Press International

Before Gerald R. Ford was selected as vice president 10 months ago, he was considering retiring from Congress in 1976 at the request of his wife.

Then, after Ford replaced Spiro Agnew, his wife declared she would not want to become First Lady. "It's for a personal, selfish reason—for a few years I want Jerry to myself," she said.

Now, with her husband becoming the nation's 38th president, Elizabeth Bloomer "Betty" Ford is no longer adamant. She has put off retirement plans.

Despite the years of raising their four children and managing the family's finances while Ford was working long hours in Congress and making speeches across the country, Betty Ford acknowledges that "Of course, Jerry is the boss in this family."

A former dancer in the Martha Graham troupe and a one-time model, Mrs. Ford is still attractive at age 55, with a slim figure and shiny chestnut hair. She speaks slowly and softly, always smiling and friendly.

Reflecting her dance background, she is more interested than her husband in high cultural events. Recently she had to almost drag an unwilling vice president to a performance of the New York Metropolitan Opera when Ford wanted to swim in the backyard pool instead.

When she gets a break from answering the ever-increasing mail arriving at their 20-year old brick house in Alexandria, Va., Betty Ford likes to work in her back yard garden growing flowers and vegetables.

Sports used to be a hobby, be had to give up strenuous activity nine years ago because of pinched nerve in her neck, an injury that still causes her constant pain and one that is aggravated by constant stress.

In an effort to relieve the stress and frustrations she said were brought on by wondering whether she was doing a good job as wife and mother, Betty Ford saw a psychiatrist for two years.

"The psychiatrist suggested that I shouldn't give up everything for Jerry and the children, that I also had to think about things that mattered to me."

"We're exceptionally close to one another," she says of her three sons and a daughter. During the times Ford was away from home for days at a time, it fell to Betty to make the necessary day-to-day decisions and enforce family discipline.

Although she helped Ford on the campaign trail in 13 elections, Mrs. Ford has not been as active as some political wives. She has preferred to stay at home with her close-knit family and entertain small gatherings of friends rather than plunge into the Washington society scene.

One of her faults, apparent not only to Ford but to the public on occasion, is her habit of showing up late for social events. The vice president several times has glared her down or commented in public on her lateness. But Mrs. Ford, acknowledging her own tardiness, reminds people that Jerry Ford was late for their wedding 25 years ago.

"Jerry keeps telling me that if he ever gets a heart attack, it won't be because of long hours or hard work but because I'm always late," she once said.

But her social grace was particularly welcomed by the Martin Luther King family last month when Mrs. Ford attended the funeral of the senior Mrs. King, who was shot to death. The government had not designated any high official to attend the funeral, so Betty Ford went, out of her own compassion for the family.

She has always been active in civic affairs, serving as a cub scout den mother, a Sunday school teacher and head of the local cancer fund drive. After Secret Service agents spent considerable time and effort last fall to make their modest suburban home more secure, the Fords thanked their neighbors for putting up with the inconvenience the work caused.

The Ford's in 25 years of marriage have four children: Michael, 24; Jack, 22; Steven, 18; and Susan 17.

Though she said she never made a secret of it, many people were surprised to learn last fall that Betty Ford had been married before. She was divorced after four years from Grand Rapids, Mich., furniture company agent William C. Warren on grounds of extreme mental cruelty and incompatibility.

What kind of president does Betty Ford thinks her husband will make? "Excellent," she says, "as good as any."

And it is her conviction that a Watergate scandal could not happen under her husband because, she says, he would be too involved in the day-to-day workings of his administration not to know of wrongdoing.

TODAY'S Women

Visiting Nurse Association

Develops homemaking program

By VONNE ROBERTSON
Asst. Women's Editor

A mother comes home from the hospital with her newborn baby to face the additional responsibility of a toddler's care.

A wife is confined to a wheelchair, unable even to care for herself, much less a home.

A working mother has a youngster at home in a body cast as the result of an accident.

Where do these families turn for help?

The Visiting Nurse Association of Pomona-West End has 25 homemakers on its staff who are excellently qualified to meet any conceivable home situation.

Less than two years ago, the agency which serves the Pomona Valley and West End communities, began its homemaking program. During the first month in operation, four homemakers worked a total of 52 hours.

Now the 25 women who range in age from 25 to 68 serve between 1,800 and 2,000 hours a month, providing round-the-clock care seven days a week.

Each of the homemakers has had over 100 hours of classroom training in adult education or heath aide courses plus inservice training. Each works under the supervision of a registered nurse and can serve part time or up to 40 hours a week.

After a call for assistance is received at the agency headquarters in Montclair, Mrs. Minnie Walker, R.N., coordinator of the program, visits the family to determine the type of help needed and the amount of time required.

A compatible homemaker is selected for the family. Certain workers are delighted to care for babies and toddlers, some prefer to work with invalids while still others are more skilled in housekeeping, shopping and transportation roles.

"The family determines how often and for how long they need help," states Mrs. Walker. The minimum is a two-hour visit. The time varies from 24-hour help to a short visit once a week.

"We even have a sleep-in program," adds Mrs. Walker.

"In once case a widow returned home from the hospital and feared being alone nights at first. A homemaker stayed from 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. for two weeks.

Occasionally a homemaker is requested just to sit with an invalid so that the husband or wife can get out of the home for a while. Frequently, in the instance of long-term illness or handicap, the homemaker provides the extra hand needed to lighten the family's responsibilities.

The homemaker will shop for food, prepare meals, do light housekeeping, laundry, ironing, mending, personal care for invalids, and infant and child care. They are not expected to do heavy housekeeping, yard work or skilled nursing care.

While the agency is still serving one family that has needed help since the program started in 1972, the average time is two or three months.

At present, the homemaker program is not covered under insurance or Medicare and Medi-Cal programs which do pay for other services of the Visiting Nurse Association such as registered and licensed vocational nursing care, physical therapy and home health aide visits.

Mrs. Jane Hull, R.N., executive director of the VNA, says, "We are seeking financial aid from clubs and organizations to establish a revolving fund to help families in emergencies.

"It would also be financially advantageous for businesses and industries to provide homemaker care funds rather than to have a valuable employe absent because of a crisis in the home," Mrs. Hull adds.

"We find that often both husbands and wives work and so do the in-laws or other capable relatives. While they are unable to leave their jobs to assist in emergencies, they are willing to pay for competent care," the director says.

The Visiting Nurse Association of Pomona West End is approved by the National Council for Homemakers-Home Health Aide Services, Inc., and a member of the California Association of Health Services at Home, with Mrs. Hull as a board member.

The agency is licensed by the California Department of Public Health and a member of the United Way of Los Angeles County and the West End United Way. It cooperates with Los Angeles and San Bernardino County Health Departments and community and private health care agencies in meeting the needs of those seeking assistance.

Information concerning the homemaking program, including brochures printed in Spanish, is available by calling 621-3961.

ASSISTING PATIENT

Willie Fruga Sr., Pomona, has help with his physical therapy from Mrs. Virginia Porter, left, who is supervised by Mrs. Minnie Walker, R.N., coordinator of homemaker program at VNA. Mr. Fruga suffered a stroke in 1972 and has made excellent progress.

Engagement forms are not accepted if they are received less than six weeks before the wedding, and wedding forms should be returned within two weeks after the wedding with a picture of the bride only.

Snapshots, polaroid and color pictures are not acceptable for wedding pictures, although most color photos will be accepted for engagement announcements.

Performing arts groups need aid

By PATRICIA McCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you like music or the theater maybe your favorite charity ought to be the local symphony, opera, drama or dance company.

Inflation is widening the ever-present earnings gap—that between what a given production costs and what it takes in—and causing fiscal fidgets among performing groups across the nation. Particularly theatened are the 166 special groups with annual budgets ranging from $100,000 to $20 million.

The special 166 are the subject of a new Ford Foundation report six years in the making and entitled: "The Finances of the Performing Arts".

In 1970-71, according to the Foundation's survey of the performing groups and troupes, some $66 million in private and government contributions had to be added to the $91 million earned at the box office, That was to close the earnings gap and enable the groups to meet their operating costs of $157 million. Half of the companies had not taken in what they paid out.

The scene generally is one of "a deepening national uncertainty about how performing arts groups are to be supported," McGeorge Bundy, Ford Foundation president, said.

W. McNeil Lowry, vice president of the Foundation's Division of Humanities and the Arts, said "the incapacity of arts organizations to earn their way is not yet recognized even by some...who are regularly asked to contribute to their support.

"It is not generally understood," Lowry said, "that like colleges and universities, the very nature and the artistic freedom and goals of arts groups make it both impossible and undesirable for them to limit spending only to what they might earn from the sale of tickets..."

The Humanities and Arts Division has made grants to date of $264 million to artists and artistic organizations.

Richard C. Sheldon, director of the arts' finances project, made this point:

"One salient implication (of the study) is that private patrons, national foundations, corporations and federal, state and municipal programs all must increase their support substantially just to maintain the 1970-71 position of the performing organizations in the study."

A steady widening of the earnings gap in the next decade is predicted. The earnings gap of $66 million in 1970-71 is expected to go to $180 million in 1980-81. Inflation, the authorities figure, will have a powerful effect, making the gap even wider.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Aggression outlet

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: Do all marriages wear out after 20 years? Mine has and one of the reasons is that my wife never stops nagging. If I make love to her, she nags, and if I don't make love to her, she nags. It's never really big complaints, just little ones that sidestep what I think she really wants to say. The more she applies this Chinese torture, the more I hit the bottle and, you guessed it, this means only more trouble.

About four months ago, she joined some women's group and she attends meetings once a week. Now this whole problem's been getting worse. Nothing satisfies her. I can't help what I am and since she knew what I was before she married me, it seems crazy for her to want a fairy prince overnight. I may be a male chauvinist, but neither my mother nor my sisters (and I have three) ever thought of me in those terms. I like real women who don't try to take over what men should be. I'm scared because I think our marriage is getting worse. It's reached a point now where neither one of us is happy. H.N.

Dear H.N.: Nagging and alcohol can be symptoms of the same problem. You are quite correct when you suggest that your wife's nagging sidesteps the real problems.

Nagging is a weak form of aggression usually practiced by men and women who are afraid to express their anger in an honest, direct way. Both alcohol and nagging can be used as a temporary escape from the source of the irritation. By nagging, a person lets his hostility seep out and often, the person who has a bit too much to drink uses this as an excuse to let out some of his real feelings. If there is too much repercussion, he can always fall back on the cushion that he didn't really mean it but was just drunk.

Alcohol and nagging makes it more difficult to solve the real problems because they are never faced head-on so there can be no constructive discussion of the real issues.

Marriages don't have to wear out after 20 years if each spouse makes an effort to add new life and vigor to the relationship. If a couple can communicate openly and honestly, if each has worked through the years at a genuine understanding of the other partner, marriage can ripen and improve with the years. Several major studies of marriage in America indicate, however, that time is a corrosive factor in sexual adjustment, that sexual frequency and pleasure tend to decrease in many marriages as the years pass. The result often is boredom, joylessness and frustration. Nagging destroys the partner's desire for sex. A frustrated person who reacts to real or imagined sexual deprivation by constant complaints only makes the situation worse.

If the meetings your wife attends are related to the women's movement, communication between you should become easier and more honest. Women's groups usually encourage more open discussion of problems and once your wife is able to bring her feelings out into the open, she will not feel the need to nag. Nagging stops once the person is strong enough to stand honest confrontation and secure enough to stick with the confrontation until some resolation is achieved.

You can help make your marriage grow by allowing for change. By keeping an open mind and listening to the thoughts of others, we can change at any age. There is no reason for anyone to remain exactly the same.

Past matrons set salad bar lunch

The past matrons of Star of the West Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, will meet for a salad bar luncheon at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Members planning to attend the meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Jochimsen, 2523 N. Mountain Ave., Claremont, are requested to provide their own table service.

Liskey and Holzinger vows are exchanged

MRS. DENNIS B. LISKEY

Marriage vows were exchanged between Miss Lynne Louise Holzinger and Dennis Burton Liskey at an afternoon ceremony Saturday read in Our Lady of the Assumption Church in Claremont.

The double-ring service was read by the Very Rev. Msgr. William J. Barry and the Rev. Wilber Liskey, grandfather of the groom.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Holzinger of Claremont, chose a gown of antique white slipper satin covered with a coatdress of Chantilly lace which flowed into a chapel train. The long fitted sleeves and collar were embroidered with seed pearls. The gown has been worn by the bride's mother at her wedding. A four-tiered illusion veil was caught to a crown of Chantilly lace and pearls. The bride carried pale blue baby roses surrounded by baby's breath. She was escorted by her father.

Miss Lisa Holzinger was her sister's maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Mrs. Pamela Trembly, Miss Barbara Kutyla, Miss Laura Holzinger and Miss Terryl Ann Holzinger, another sister of the bride. Miss Patricia Roach was in charge of the guest book.

The groom's cousin, Terry Ann Liskey, was the flower girl and ring bearer was Matthew Holzinger, brother of the bride.

Daryl Liskey was his brother's best man. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Liskey of La Verne. Ushers were Dennis Wolf, Dan Robertson, Mark Schechter and Scott Holzinger, brother of the bride.

Following a reception in the home of the bride's parents the couple left on a tour of northern California. They will reside in La Verne.

Sandi Leslie is wed at evening services

Miss Sandi Leslie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Leslie of Santa Ana, and Larry B. Burns Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. L.B. Burns of Diamond Bar, were married in a Saturday evening service at the Presbyterian Church in Orange.

The bride carried a bouquet of white roses and gardenias and wore a floor-length gown of chantilly lace.

Mrs. Penny Minchella was matron of honor and Miss Deena Leslie was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Ginger Leslie, Robin Wilson and Peggy Burns.

Christie Wells was flower girl and Darron Wenzel was ring bearer.

Serving as best man was Steve Minchella while ushers were Nyal Leslie, Tom Burns, Larry Schreiber and Steve Reyas.

A reception was held at the Newporter Inn, Mr. and Mrs. Burns will honeymoon at Arrowhead. They will reside in Tustin.

MRS. LARRY B. BURNS JR.

Current, new and prospective members of the Upland Junior Woman's Club will be competing for first place ribbons Aug. 22 in the annual Junior Olympics.

Local contestants will compete in jump rope, hopskotch, jacks and relays at the home of Mrs. Margaret Troje, social chairman.

A salad luncheon at 11:30 a.m. will precede the games.

Any woman between the ages of 18 and 35 who would like to join in the fun and meet new friends in the area are invited to call 985-5747 or 985-8932 before Aug. 22.

Cook book highlights appetizers

Try something different and bring out the fondue pot when entertaining in the near future. Cooking at the table is always enjoyable, especially when sampling a new fruit, cheese or vegetable fondue snacks.

Better Homes and Gardens new book "Snacks and Appetizers," contains a variety of ideas for mouth-watering fondue snacks.

Many foods, even leftovers, make suitable and interesting fondue dippers. For sweet chocolate and fruit fondues, try dipping fresh or canned fruit, angel cake, pound cake, brownies, cookies, marshmallows and pretzels.

For cheese and other fondues, dip Frech or Italian bread, hard rolls, breadsticks, bagels, English muffins, cooked seafood, cherry tomatoes and cooked vegetables.

When thinking of snacks, what foods first come to mind? Chips and dip? Popcorn? Cheese and crackers? Cookies? Why not change the thinking and try something a little different.

Tacos, soft pretzels, homemade sherbet, cereal mixes are but a few of the exciting recipe ideas found in the 112-page cook book.

Try a Pink Squirrel Fondue from the new book.

PINK SQUIRREL FONDUE

- 1 7 oz., 9 oz., or 10 oz. jar marshmallow creme
- 3 tablespoons creme d'almond
- 1 tablespoon white creme de cacao
- 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- Banana or strawberry dippers

In saucepan combine marshmallow creme, creme d'almond, white creme de cacao and lemon juice. Cook and stir over low heat until heated through, about 2 minutes. Transfer to small fondue pot; place over fondue burner. Spear dipper with fondue fork; dip into fondue, swirling to coat. Makes 4 to 6 serv-

MODELS — Patti Wells, Whitney White and Courtney White pose in fashions they will wear for the mother-daughter luncheon and style show set Thursday at Orlando's by Pomona Valley Christian Women.

Luncheon and show

Charted by women

A mother-daughter buffet luncheon is planned by Pomona Valley Christian Women's Club when the group meets at 11:30 a.m. Aug. 15 at Orlando's.

"Sugar and Spice" will be the theme for the day.

Young children and teenagers will model sportswear, dressy dresses and school apparel from Teeka's Teens and Magic Cradle of Claremont.

Music will be provided by several gifted children and will include solos on the violin and trumpet.

Speaker will be Mrs. Richard King, who is Miss Mary Ann of Romper Room on television Channel 13. Mrs. King is a graduate of the University of Oklahoma. She began her affiliation with Romper Room in Wichita, Kan., and in 1966 accepted the position she now holds in Hollywood. She is the mother of two daughters and very active in her church.

Reservations may be made by calling 593-1254 in the Pomona area.

WCTU charts program

La Verne Woman's Christian Temperance Union has scheduled a meeting at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Hillcrest Chapel in La Verne.

Mrs. Musa Gatom of Nigeria will discuss "The Status of Women in Nigeria." Mrs. Gatom has come to the valley to join her husband who is studying at Claremont School of Theology.

Mrs. Harold A. Royer will lead the devotions. Mrs. Royer and her husband were missionaries in Nigeria for 40 years. Mrs. Royer was a missionary educator.

Mrs. Truman Northup, a resident of La Verne and organist for the Glendora Church of the Brethren, will sing.

CAPT. DANIEL DIRKS

WCTU to mark centennial

The Salvation Army band will play at the Pomona-Claremont Woman's Christian Temperance Union's centennial celebration at Palomares Adobe Thursday.

A potluck picnic is scheduled at noon and a program will follow.

Capt. Daniel Dirks of the Salvation Army will lead the devotions, and greetings will be extended by Mayor Ray Lepire of Pomona.

Mrs. Ester Depew, state WCTU president, will install officers.

The picnic and program are open to guests.

Return from meet in Toronto

Two members of the PBX Club of Pomona have returned from the 18th annual International PBX Club convention held in Toronto, Candada, at the Royal York Hotel.

They are Mrs. June Crane and Mrs. Raylene Scott. There were 21 representatives from California attending. The PBX Clubs sent 382 women to the conclave from Mexico, United States and Canada.

Mrs. John Neice, a representative of the Bell Canada Telephone Co., was one of the speakers.

The convention was climaxed with the installation of Mrs. Helen Brown of Montgomery, Ala., as president for 1974-75.

'Bicentennial Minutes'

Historians team up on TV

By FRANK S. SWERTLOW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prof. Richard B. Morris of Columbia University is a minute man for CBS.

Morris is one of two historians who advise CBS on its "Bicentennial Minutes." The other is Prof. John C. Miller of Stanford University.

"The minutes concentrate on one event, not necessarily political —it could be social," said Morris, "but the overall effect is that it gives the feeling of the times, which led from peace to tragedy."

The minutes premiered July 4, 1974. They continue until July 4, 1976 —for a total of 732 minutes dealing with some aspect of life here and abroad during the years that led to the Declaration of Independence.

The minutes, which are aired in prime time, usually feature a well-known actor or actress who reads about some aspect of colonial life.

The first minute was narrated by Charlton Heston, who was ushered in with an appropriate fife-and-drum rendition of "Yankee Doodle." He then read from George Washington's diary. Over the next two years the minutes will be spotlighted by an array of celebrities ranging from Walter Cronkite to Zsa Zsa Gabor.

"During the summer of 1774 things were simmering," said Morris in his book-lined office at Columbia. "People were preparing for the Continental Congress in September and something was cooking there every day. That was the beginning of the events that led to the American Revolution."

Morris had just returned from a trip to Europe where he visited several countries to help prepare for the U.S. bicentennial celebrations abroad.

"A lot of people forget that France gave us the Statue of Liberty for our centennial. The American Revolution had a meaning for them 100 years ago. Now, we have to alert them about the bicentennial."

Morris, who has written extensively about the American colonial period, said the founding fathers would be disturbed by the current political situation in the United States.

"The fathers would be disillusioned by all the political corruption in the country. Why every day you read about a governor or a lieutenant governor or a senator being involved in graft or perjury or conspiracy.

"And they would not be happy about the mess in Washington."

But Morris said that Americans should have faith in the system of government because corrupt politicians are still held responsible to the law.

"There is enough strength in our political structure that we can convict these men. These men aren't too big that they can't be held accountable for their crimes. That is what impeachment is all about. The president is not too big to be held accountable. That's what the founding fathers wanted."

Morris then thumbed through a pile of bicentennial scripts, which CBS sent him to check for accuracy. He was pleased by what he read. "The research was very well done," he said.

Morris was an original member of President Lyndon Johnson's Bicentennial Commission, but he and the other four historians on the committee were dropped after President Nixon took office. They were fired July 4, 1969. "Nixon wanted his own team," he said.

And he admitted he was not an admirer of the work of the Nixon commission. "They didn't have any historians until recently," said Morris. "And the man they put in charge was Bud Wilkinson, a football coach."

GUERRILLA GUNNER — Michael Cristofer, left, as a guerrilla terrorist, kidnaps a British diplomat, played by Joseph Maher, and his wife, Susan Brown, in Christopher Hampton's "Savages," opening Thursday at the Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center. The Los Angeles production is the American premiere of the London hit. It goes through Sept. 29.

Airy subject

Oxygen is the most abundant element of our environment. It constitutes by weight, half the earth's crust, 8-9ths of water, 2-3rds of human and animal bodies, half of plant tissues and 1-5th of the air.

HELEN REDDY, Capitol Records artist, is appearing through Aug. 20 at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas. Her current hit single is "You and Me Against the World," from her album, "Love Song for Jeffrey."

Band leader finds jobs hard to find

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — No matter what the critics thought about "The Great Gatsby," one thing seems certain — the public loves the sound track of the film's music.

Nelson Riddle, the man behind the music, says he has already gotten a gold record for "The Great Gatsby" album.

"It's my first gold record since 'Lisbon Antigua,' " Riddle says. "And that was 17 years ago. Let's see. If I have to wait another 17 years for my next gold record, I'll be 70 I sure hope I don't have to wait that long."

But Riddle, ever the realist, isn't holding his breath. In fact, he's a little depressed about the situation.

Jobs, he says, are hard to come by these days. The trend in Hollywood is toward youth and he's not as callow as he once was.

"I'm 53," he says. "I'm not one of the young ones any more. I'm finding it harder and harder to get assignments from movie companies. 'Gatsby' was my first film job since 'On a Clear Day You Can See Forever.' "

The success of the "Gatsby" music ought to be reflected in the demand for his services, however. His score certainly was a tremendous boost to the film. He says what he tried to do was to be authentic to the period.

For his orchestra, he tried to get the old, original musicians from the "Gatsby" era. It wasn't easy to find them, and, once found, many of them were incapable of any active playing any more.

Riddle found Matty Matlock — but he was so crippled with arthritis he was unable to play. He found Manny Klein, from the old Ted Lewis band, but he'd had a stroke and could no longer play.

The one star of those days he found who could still play was pianist Jess Stacy.

"Jess and I were in the Tommy Dorsey band together in the early '40s," Riddle says, "and he was no kid then. But he's still great."

So that's Jess Stacy you hear on piano when you see the film or listen to the record. Most of the others are younger men, faking the style of the '20s, but they fake beautifully.

Riddle says he had hoped that his success with the "Gatsby" music would lead to other, similar assignments on other, similarly nostalgic movies. So far, however, nothing. He was bypassed by the producers of such films as "Day of the Locust," who hired other composers.

One thing Riddle enjoyed particularlf about the "Gatsby" job was that he worked closely with his son. Chris Riddle is 24 and plays the trombone, the same instrument that Nelson started out playing. Chris now works with Nelson and they both like it.

Riddle feels "Gatsby" was "bumrapped" by the critics.

"I'd like to see the things they like," he says, "if they call this film garbage. They liked "Sleeper" and I saw it and I don't think Woody Allen is even a comedian."

Richard & Mary play at Griswold lounge

The husband and wife singing duo, Richard & Mary, is performing in the Indian Hill Lounge at Griswold's in Claremont Tuesday through Saturday nights. Their repertoire includes folk, country and pop music, and ethnic songs in five languages.

Richard Byford was born in England 29 years ago and traveled around the world singing and entertaining. After leaving college, he served an apprenticeship as a journalist before winning a scholarship to the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Arts. Since leaving the Academy, he worked as a stage manager, assistant director, actor and stuntman as well as musician and entertainer. He has performed on TV and radio in England, Holland, Yugoslavia and Sweden.

Mary (Vicenzi) Byford was born in Milwaukee and moved to California at the age of 12. She has played Guinevere in "Camelot," and Mother Superior in "The Sound of Music."

She majored in music at UC Riverside and has made many solo appearances throughout Southern California.

Richard and Mary first got together in 1971. He was singing at the Mission Inn, Riverside, when she and a group from UCR came in and offered to sing during an intermission. Three weeks later Richard & Mary took to the stage and haven't stopped since.

ATTACKING THE FORTRESS—"The Army of Shah Ramin Attacking the 'Iron Fortress' " is one of the works of Turkish art that will go on exhibit Aug. 13 at the county Museum of Art in Los Angeles. The miniature paintings and other works are from the collection of Edwin Binney III. This painting by an unknown artist dates from about 1620.

Binney Collection

Turkish art works slated at county Museum of Art

An exhibition of more than 80 Turkish miniature paintings, manuscrips and decorative art works from the collection of Edwin Binney III will go on display Aug. 13 at the county Museum of Art in Los Angeles.

The exhibit in the Ahmanson Gallery will continue to Jan. 5.

Binney, fellow for research in Indian and Islamic art at the museum, is internationally known for his outstanding collections of Indian and Persian paintings and has assembled one of the largest private collections of Turkish paintings in the world.

Examples of the Turkish pictorial arts outside of the Topkapu Saray Library in Istanbul are extremely rare. The Binney Collection is extensive in its range, representing a historical continuity from the beginning of Turkish painting through its decline in the 19th century.

The four major division in subject matter are well represented in the collection: literary subject matter from Persian and Turkish texts; royal portraiture; historical subjects, and individual scenes from the life of Muhammed. These four categories are supplemented by two volumes of the Koran as well as two royal "tughras." The tughra is an ornamental, stylized monogram of the reigning sultan.

European rulers used a seal to legalize their edicts and had a Lord Keeper of the Great (or Privy) Seal, but in Constantinople the head scribe of the royal library alone was able to duplicate the complex arabesques of the legalizing Tughra.

Turkish calligraphy is also well represented in the exhibition. One of the most important examples is a rare 15th Century manuscript of the Mantiq al-Tayr. This is one of less than ten known manuscrips illustred with Turkish miniatures that can be dated before about 1500.

Turkish craftsmen were noted for their excellence in metal work and particularly for their ceramics. The decorative arts work includes a 16th century gilded metal spout, two ceramic tiles and a 16th Century plate with floral decoration from the famed center of ceramic production at Isnik, and two examples of Turkish textiles.

An extensive, illustrated catalog written by Binney is available in the museum bookshop for $3.50. Free guided Docent tours are offered on Aug. 14 and Sept. 11 at 12:30 p.m. Admission to the exhibition is free. The museum is located at 5905 Wilshire Blvd.

LOBBY EXHIBIT — Anna M. Shotwell looks over her painting of an Indian woman, one of an exhibition of her oils being held this month at Pomona First Federal Savings & Loan Association, 399 N. Garey Ave., Pomona. A retired psychologist, she is a member of the Pomona Valley Art Association.

Painting exhibition on at First Federal

The oil paintings of Anna M. Shotwell are on exhibition this month in the Lobby Gallery of Pomona First Federal Savings & Loan Association, 399 N. Garey Ave., Pomona.

Mrs. Shotwell has had art instruction in several Pomona adult education classes but is largely self-taught. She is a member of the Pomona Valley Art Association and has painted mainly since her retirement from the psychology department at Pacific State Hospital nine years ago. She had been employed at the hospital for 21 years.

A native of Missouri, Mrs. Shotwell received her B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees in psychology from Northwestern University. She was an instructor in psychology for eight years at the National College of Education in Chicago and was employed for a period in Louisiana in an institution for the retarded. She taught courses in mental deficiency for eight years at UCLA.

Photography exhibit set at museum

Photographs of desert animals, birds, reptiles, insects and flowering plants by Dr. Hans Baerwald of Desert Hot Springs go on exhibition today at the Edward-Dean Museum in Cherry Valley.

A photographer of animals since boyhood in Germany Dr. Baerwald has been instrumental in making Desert Hot Springs the first city-wildlife preserve in California. A strong believer in the preservation of wildlife, he says, "I am trying by word and picture to make people conscious of their endangered heritage."

Dr. Baerwald was born in Berlin in 1907. His father was an amateur and later a professional zoologist and an importer of animals connected with the Berlin Zoo and Aquarium. Because of this, young Hans was often at the zoo, and from the age of 12 equipped with a box camera, he commenced his photographic career taking pictures of zoo inhabitants.

This interest in animals led him to the study of veterinary medicine and a doctor's degree from Berlin University.

In 1939 Dr. Baerwald immigrated to the states. He opened a small animal clinic in Milwaukee, Wis., and during his years there served on the board of the Washington Park Zoo and did freelance photography and zoo assignments for the Milwaukee Journal. During World War II he served in the U.S. Navy.

In 1952 Dr. Baerwald and his wife came to California where he gradually turned to professional photography. Eight years ago they moved to Desert Hot Springs, where they have lived ever since.

The Baerwald photographs will remain at the museum through Aug. 25. On Aug. 11 and 18, at 3 p.m. Dr. Baerwald will give informal talks about his work. They will take place in the North Gallery.

Art League instructor to lecture

Artist Joyce Pike, instructor at the Art League of Los Angeles, will demonstrate oil painting at a meeting of the Associated Artists at the Ontario City Library, 215 E. C St., at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Mrs. Pike, a native of San Fernando, started her career at the age of 13. She studied with Serge Bongart, Ann Kendell, Hal Reed and numerous others, and took many art classes at Los Angeles Valley College.

Mrs. Pike has received many awards in major art shows and has had several one-man shows throughout the valley. Her work is shown in Morro Bay at the Red Door Art Gallery and in the Clyde Zulch Gallery in Corona Del Mar. She teaches painting in all media and subject matter at the Art League. She also demonstrates and gives private classes all over the Southland and at Morro Bay.

Members are asked to bring a new painting for the "painting of the month." The public is wlcome to attend.

State Senate okays midwifery measure

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A Senate-passed bill legalizing midwifery, which has been illegal in California since 1949, has reached the Assembly floor.

The measure (SB1332) by Sen. Anthony C. Beilenson, D-Los Angeles, cleared the Ways and Means Committee—its final committee hurdle—on a 19-0 vote Wednesday

Photography exhibit being held at HS&L

An exhibition of portraits by Claremont photographer Bill Carpena is being held through September at the Home Savings & Loan Association office, 100 Pomona Mall West.

The hours are 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday.

Carpenda began his portrait art as a hobby in 1955 and studied under Bunny Shepard. He also attended the New York Institute of Photography, the Fred Archer School of Photography, the Art Graph Academy and Brooks Institute of Photography.

He is a member of Professional Photographer West and the Royal Photography Society of Great Britain. He also works as a volunteer at Casa Colina Hospital and with other handicapped children.

Susan Hertel exhibiting at Griswold's

An exhibition of recent paintings by Susan Lautmann Hertel is being held this month at Griswold's Art Gallery, Claremont.

Mrs. Hertel, a graduate of Scripps College, did additional study at the Kann Art Institute and for a time was mural assistant to Claremont artist Millard Sheets. She is the mother of five and a horse breeder, goat raiser and yoga teacher, as well as a practicing artist.

Mrs. Hertel has exhibited widely including the Pasadena Art Museum, Otis Art Institute and Westwood Gallery, and has won numerous awards. In 1965 she was voted one of the Outstanding Young Women in the United States for her work as an artist.

Her work includes a title mural at Webb School, Claremont; stained glass murals at Home Savings & Loan Association buildings in Arcadia, Encino, Santa Monica, Santa Ana and Hollywood, and a tapestry in the office of the Scripps College president.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Libertad de prensa sufre bajo gobierno militar de Peru

Por PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Libertad de prensa en America Latina, algo que dia a dia crece en fragilidad, ha recibido otro golpe bajo el gobierno militar de Peru.

El Presidente peruano General Juan Velasco Alvarado envio tropas y policia especializada en desordenes a asumir control de ocho de los periodicos independientes del pais "en el interes nacional" y anuncio que de ahora en adelante ellos seran editados por varios grupos sindicales.

Esto fue la ultima en cierto numero de acciones demostrando la sensibilidad del gobierno de Velasco a la critica y ha colocado a Peru al aldo de los gobiernos de Brazil, Chile Y Uruguay en su determinacion de eliminar la libertad de palabra y de prensa.

Bolivia practica indirecta censura. Argentina no tiene censura pero aplica presion a los periodicos de los cuales desaprueba a traves de demostraciones obviamente inspiradas por el gobierno.

Desde que tomo el poder en 1968, el regimen de Velasco gradualmente ha aumentado su censura de las noticias.

Hace dos anos asumio el control sobre el periodico La Cronica.

A fines de marzo de este ano detuvo por varios dias a cinco lideres de APRA, el partido politico de mas fuerza en Peru. El 23 de marzo, el fundador del partido, Victor Rual Haya de la Torre, dijo durante la reunion de 35,000 simpatizantes que el esperaba "que el derecho de la gente a elegir su propio gobierno sera respetado pronto."

El 30 de mayo, Velasco forzo la renuncia de su comandante naval y ministro de la marina, Vice Almirante Luis Vargas Caballero, porque Vargas habia pedido mas libertad de palabra en Peru.

Velasco dijo que Vargas habia violato una regla gubernamental en contra de las declaraciones politicas de miembros del gabinete. Velasco afirmo que solamente el y su primer ministro, General de la armada Edgardo Mercado Jarrin, estaban permitidos a hacer decalraciones politicas.

Entre los periodicos que el gobierno a tomado en su poder en la accion del 27 de Julio estaba El Comercio el cual fue fundado en 1839 y ha sido uno de los periodicos independientes de mas tadicion en el hemisferio.

A traves de muchos anos el periodico ha peleado con las mas de las dictaduras peruanas y ha criticado el presente gobierno.

Editorialmente, ademas, he aplaudido algunas de sus acciones.

Cuando Velasco y sus partidaros militares tomaron el poder en 1968 ellos fueron considerados como izquierdistas, nacionalistas y antiamericanos.

El mismo Velasco ha insistido que su gobierno es peruano indigena, abriando un paso entre el capitalismo y el comunismo. Utimamente, se dice que el esta particularmente irritado por los cargos hechos por los periodicos de que su gobierno dia a dia esta bajo la influencia de marxistas.

Una de sus metas declaradas es la de atraer dentro de la economia peruana a los indigenas que forman cerca de la mitad de la poblacion de Peru.

Fue hasta febrero de este ano que la paz finalmente llego a las relaciones de Estado Unidos y Pero despues de cinco anos de disputas sobre la expropiacion de Peru de propiedades americanas. Peru accedio a pagar un total de $150 millones en compensacion a las reclamaciones de companias americanas de cera de $300 millones.

Human robot

Make 'Robert' smile and win certificate

A new twist in grand openings will be presented Friday and Saturday at Montclair Plaza when "Robert," Lord Rebel Industries' "Mechanical Man", will perform and award gift certificates to person who can make him smile.

Robert, who is really Bob Montoya, a 30-year-old Redondo Beach bachelor, makes personal appearances throughout the state for the Lord Rebel chain of men's stores.

Like a mechanical robot, Robert turns his head, moves arms up and down, straightens up, and slumps forward, again motionless. Green eyes stare blankly, the face frozen. With slow, stiff-legged movements, Bob comes down from his stand and walks among the crowds he invariably attracts.

"Most people look at me not knowing if I am real or not," said Montoya. "The reactions of the people when I move toward them is surprising and I have to train myself not to laugh at their expressions," he stated.

Gin-drinking parrot deserts Royal Navy

PORTSMOUTH, England (UPI) — The Royal Navy appealed to Portsmouth pubkeepers today to help catch a "deserter" who likes pink gins.

The deserter, named Fletcher Christian, is a parrot that flew off from the patrol boat Tenacity in Portsmouth harbor.

"Fletcher has a very peculiar diet," said Tenacity's captain, Lt. Chris Earls. "After months at sea he has found a taste for curry and pink gins. I don't think he'd know what bird seed is if he saw it."

Leaded gasoline 'out' for 1975 auto buyers

DETROIT (UPI) — Buyers of 1975-model cars this fall will have to use unleaded gasoline and automakers are going to make it difficult to use anything but the lead-free fuel.

Nearly all of the 1975 models will be equipped with catalytic converters — muffler-like devices that will help eliminate harmful exhaust emissions. Even those without the converters will be designed so it will be difficult—but not impossible —to use leaded gasoline.

And, even if you do figure a way to get the leaded gasoline into your tank, you may have difficulty finding a service station willing to pump it into your car. The government will be imposing fines of up to $10,000 on service stations that pump leaded fuel into a 1975-model car.

"If the owner of a '75 wants you to put leaded gasoline in that car, say no," warned Charles Shipley, executive director of the Service Station Dealers Association of Michigan.

"If you have no 'lead free' and the driver of a '75 insists that he has to get a sick child or a sick wife to the hospital, call an ambulance or the police. Don't sell him leaded gasoline.

"If you are temporarily out, or for any reason do not have the lead free, make sure that nothing else is put into '75 models. Gasoline that is carried on service trucks for out-of-gas calls should be lead-free at all times."

Now, after that, suppose you do find a gas jockey not afraid of a fine. He'll still have a job getting that leaded fuel into your new car.

Precautions have been taken by engineers to "fuel-proof" fuel tanks against being fed the wrong kind of gasoline.

First, there will be the warning "Unleaded Fuel Only" in a prominent spot over the fuel inlet.

In addition, the new car's fuel filler neck will have a nozzle "restrictor" accommodating only the smaller diameter new fuel nozzle which gasoline stations will be using to dispense unleaded fuel under government regulations. If an attempt is made to introduce the old larger nozzle into the new filler neck, it won't fit. If the fuel flow is activated, the restrictor prevents insertion and the deflector causes the automatic nozzle shut-off device to stop the flow.

"This should discourage the use of leaded fuel in cars equipped with catalytic converters," said one industry engineer who admitted, however, "if anyone is determined not to pay the extra two or three cents for the unleaded gas, he'll find a way to use leaded fuel."

While leaded fuel will "poison" the catalysts, it won't harm engine performance. What will happen if the catalyst is ruined is it will no longer control engine pollution.

Despite the higher price of unleaded fuel and the extra $150 car buyers will fork over for the 1975-model emission control devices, unleaded fuel could wind up saving the motorist money.

General Motors resident Edward N. Cole has been pointing out to groups around the country that unleaded gasoline is an attractive automotive fuel because it can bring about significant reductions in maintenance costs by extending the life of spark plugs, engine oil and exhaust system components.

Cole also says another major factor contributing to the increasing widespread use of unleaded gasoline is the health consideration raised by environmentalists as to lead additives.

"The only reason they aren't more militant about it is that they know lead has to be removed anyway to accommodate modern emission control systems," Cole said.

"Even though petroleum refiners can point out—quite properly—that adverse health effects of airborne lead emissions from gasoline have never been scientifically documented, the fact remains that it has become an important concern and removing lead from gasoline removes that concern."

Long-term study

More than 59.6 trillion gallons of fresh ground water may be stored in Missouri's aquifers (water bearing formations), based on long term studies by the Missour Geological Survey & Water Resources.

On offshore resources

Truman proclamation gains respectability

CARACAS (UPI) — The United Nations Law of the Sea conference may be the only place Harry S. Truman's name pops up more often than Richard Nixon's these days.

All this, thanks to the late U.S. president's proclamation of Sept. 28, 1945, laying claim to seabed mineral resources of a continental platform out to a depth of 100 fathoms (600 feet).

At that time, it was becoming apparent that the submerged extension of the land mass was potentially rich in petroleum and minerals.

Other nations with wide continental platforms, in some cases extending hundreds of miles out to sea, caught on quickly. Mexico announced a similar claim a month and a day after the Truman proclamation.

Today more than 70 nations are extracting or exploring for oil in the ocean seabed of the continental shelf and the steeper continental rise dipping to the ocean depths beyond. Some 20 per cent of world oil production now comes from offshore sources, a figure expected to jump to 35 per cent by 1985.

By the time maritime experts got together at the first sealaw conference in Geneva in 1958, more than 40 countries supported coastal state sovereignty over the continental shelf out to a depth of 65 feet or as far out as a nation was able to exploit the resources of its submerged land mass.

But long before the 1958 Geneva convention and one which followed in 1960, several nations with little or no continental shelf used the Truman doctrine to bolster offshore claims although they had no continental shelf but only deep seas along their coasts.

In 1952, trying to redress the inequities of nature, Ecuador, Peru, and Chile laid sovereign claims to the living resources 200 miles offshore.

This outgrowth of the Truman proclamation was at first considered an international heresy but has gained increasing respectability. Today an overwhelming majority of the 148 nations meeting at Caracas to update the law of the sea favor some version of the 200-mile economic zone.

Such an extension of coastal state jurisdiction will place an estimated one-third of the 140 million square miles of world oceans under control of individual countries. Parts of the the continental shelf will jut out beyond the 200-mile zone such as off eastern Australia, Argentina and Canada.

Does acceptance of a 200-mile zone mean the continental shelf is shelved?

Yes, say spokesmen for 30 landlocked nations at the Caracas conference. Any extension of national control beyond 200 miles, they argue, will leave less of the seabed to be exploited by an international authority also under discussion at the sealaw meeeting.

These geographically disadvantaged states have been promised a major share of revenue from deep-sea mining of manganese, nickel, copper and cobalt by the proposed authority.

"The shelf concept is a form of colonial usurpation, biased in favor of the technologically advanced states," Mooki V. Molapo from tiny Lesotho — completely surrounded by South Africa — told a recent session of the 10-week Caracas gathering.

Loses own life trying to save that of canine

DETROIT (UPI) — A 64-year-old Detroit man was killed because he tried to keep a man from slashing a dog's throat, police said.

They said Joseph Peoples' efforts to save the dog were unsuccessful, and the man then turned to him and warned: "Shut up old man or I'll kill you too."

He left, but returned later with four friends and repeatedly stabbed Peoples in the chest, police said.

When a witness tried to telephone police, one of the assailants began firing a gun at random. Three persons were wounded and hospitalized in serious condition.

Police said they had arrested three suspects.

Study OK'd for pipeline

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Interior Department said today it will permit a Toronto, Canada, firm to make on-site studies in connection with a possible pipeline construction in the Arctic National Wildlife range in Alaska.

The study authority granted to the Alaskan Arctic Gas Study Co. does not amount to a commitment that suggests any unilateral approval of pipeline construction.

The Interior Department and the Federal Power Commission are considering five pipeline routes, two of them across the Wildlife Range and the information sought by the study company will be needed to determine the impact of a pipeline there.

Ward will offer 'new image' in advertisements

The Montgomery Ward Department Store will have a new look in its advertisements this month. This will include a youthful, aggressive and revitalizing image change added to the present company image.

According to Edward S. Donnell, chairman and chief executive officer of Wards, "it's our intent to update advertising to more accurately present the new look of our modern stores, our colorful interior displays and decor, and the higher quality merchandise lines that are being offered to our customers throughout the company's nationwide network of retail and catalog stores."

The new "call-out" technique, the use of lighter and breezier headlines and copy, and more readable type faces are being used to create advertising that "talks to people, rather than talking at them." The "call out" technique highlights consumer benefits and special features of merchandise presented in larger illustrations.

The new advertising approach has taken two years of development research and marketing research before it was extended to all markets.

According to Fred W. Bliesner, national retail sales promotion and advertising manager, the new look reflects a "greater sophistication in copy and format, and more effective use of white space and elimination of reverse type."

"In retail advertising, Bliesener said, "impact sometimes can be lost in a sea of look-alike ads. But, our new ad style will be distinctive because it employs a fresh, orderly, format and easy to read type faces."

Headlines, subheads and prices are presented in a modernized version of previously used classical type. The selection was made after careful research was concluded on the readability of different types.

Another nuance of Ward's new advertising approach is a "base-line," or essentially an editorial statement at the bottom of each ad next to the Montgomery Ward signature.

The new look is also being extended to Ward's TV commercials; using a type face and presentation style consistent with the new print approach and replacing the old consrvative show and tell approach previously taken by many advertisers.

Most fire victims very young or old

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — While firemen battle flames and doctors care for burn victims, Irving Einhorn collects fire souvenirs—smoke, scorched clothing and charred pieces of wood, brick and plastic.

Einhorn, director of the Flammability Research Center at the University of Utah, distributes his finds among a staff of 58 professors, students and technicians for chemical analysis and medical research.

Their findings on the causes and effects of fires are translated into recommendations on national safety standards for clothing, furniture, houses, buildings, cars and even airplanes.

During the five years since the center opened, the group has kept detailed files on state and national fire victims and circumstances.

The data indicates the majority of fire victims belong in the very young or very old age groups, most blazes begin with children playing with matches or gasoline or adults smoking in bed, and smoke kills more often than the fire itself.

Smoke Kills

Records of fires in Salt Lake City since 1972, for example, show 21 of 25 child blaze victims were burned while experimenting with matches or gasoline. Among adults, smoking in bed comprised the most common single cause of fires.

"Smoking accounts for 30 to 40 per cent of all fires," Einhorn said, "with improper use of flammable liquids a close second."

Except for car and airplane crash fires, smoke kills many more persons than flames in fires, he added.

"In a building, most of the people are dead before the fire gets to them. Carbon monoxide, the heat, the decrease in oxygen, the combustion products and smoke combine to be the number one killer in fires," the mathematics and engineering professor said.

Armed with such findings, the center has successfully persuaded the federal government to set national standards for fire resistant materials in mattresses and for safety areas in new buildings—such as the Federal Building in Seattle and the Transamerica structure in San Francisco—where persons can find relief from smoke and heat.

Fire Detectors

Some of the newer buildings also have elevators which won't stop on a burning floor and fire detectors not only to alarm potential victims but also to blow smoke out the windows.

Prodded by the University of Utah researchers, Utah has become the first state to pass legislation requiring safe cellular plastics for insulation purposes.

The center's latest recommendations call for legislation requiring fire detection devices in private homes, pressurized exit ways where smoke won't enter in public buildings, and automatic fire suppressing devices and safety areas in high-rise structures.

Einhorn's staff also wants federal requirements for fire resistant materials in clothing, houses and cars.

"In addition, we want safer materials used in carpets, children's sleepwear and furniture," he said in an interview.

Lab Is Basis

The basis for all these recommendations lies in the laboratory, Einhorn said.

The chemical analysts work with samples of smoke and materials collected from the scene of the fire, examining the chemical composition of smoke emitted from various burning materials, such as wood, plastic or paper.

"We look at the basic chemistry of the naterial which originally ignited to determine the gaseous products from the flaming combustion of that material," Einhorn said.

"We study the chemical nature of smoke to learn what mixture of gases are emitted in the various types of fires."

Here the medical research team takes over, probing into the physical and psychological effects of these combustion byproducts on the human system. The researchers determine the effects of smoke inhalation on the victim's brain, central nervous system, vision, muscular functions and various organs. The effects vary with differences in duration of exposure, type of burning material and even the victim's clothing.

Smoke components

Studies examine responses to the various smoke components, such as carbon monoxide, and autopsy reports or life-long records of surviving victims.

"We look to our data to discover the cause of the fire, how the person caught on fire, whether the severity of his burns depended on the nature of his clothing and, if the patient survives, the long-range effects of the burns and smoke poisoning," Einhorn said.

The psychological effects of fires on the victims are unique, accordinng to the research center director, because "if you cut your hand, it will heal, but the physical and psychological problems of a burn victim, who often suffers disfigurement, are not so easily removed."

Graffiti lead aids arrest

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Police said an examination of graffiti on the walls of a school led today to the arrest of Ernest Ranger, 20, on suspicion of murder.

Ranger was accused in the stabbing death of Abelardo Marquez, 24, who was killed last week while tending bar at a weeding party held at Our Lady Queen of Angels School.

Investigators Kent McDonald, David Dorman and Sal Hoyos were assigned to the case and began checking out graffiti which was sprayed on the walls during the party.

The investigators compared the scrawlings with similar graffiti in local neighborhoods, leading to the arrest of Ranger.

Police said two other persons were taken into custody as material witnesses and three others were being sought in connection with the murder.

Measurses asked to aid real estate industry

WASHINGTON — Real estate faces a severe crisis unless the government restricts the growth of the nation's money supply to curb inflation, reports the National Realty Committee (NRC), a non profit organization of owners, developers and operators of real estate.

In an NRC policy statement, directors described the Federal Reserve Board's expansionary monetary policy as a direct cause of the "disastrously" high interest rates which reduce mortgage credit on which the entire real estate industry depends.

In addition to urging the Federal Reserve Board to signify it wil lreduce the rate of monetary expansion, the committee recommended two other courses of action to Congress:

—A deduction to each taxpayer or taxpaying household of $2,000 to $3,000 of funds each year in savings accounts, life insurance policies and annuities, or government bonds. This would encouage the flow of funds into the savings pool essential to real estate investment.

—Enactment of the mortgage investment tax credit now before Congress to stimulate real estate investment by allowing tax credits to mortgage lenders.

"These legislative actions are imperative and demand immediate attention if a crisis of catastrophic proportions is to be averted in the real estate industry," said NRC officials.

The statement pointed out that growth of mortgage debt plummeted from 13.8 per cent in the first quarter of 1973 to 6 per cent in the first three months of this year.

"The meaning is clear," said Albert A. Walsh, committee president and former chairman of the Naw York City Housing Authority. "Under current money conditions, growth of mortgage debt—in all sectors of real estate, residential, commercial and industrial — is sinking inexorably toward zero."

OLD WEST NOT DEAD ... RIDE 'EM COWBOY!

Rodeo theory is one thing and putting it into practice is another. In Montana, where rodeos are serious business, the practicing can be done at a unique rodeo school. On the rough-and-ready campus at Bigfork and Flathead Lake, the textbooks are prime stock and the majors are bulldogging, calf roping, barrel racing and the like. Above, a would-be bulldogger learns there is not a gentle way to pin a sturdy steer. Lower left, a near miss still means a big letdown. Right, technique can be perfected.

But haven for fish

Most successful housing project just a junkyard

HONOLULU (UPI) — Peeking out of glove compartments and breeding under car seats are the contented tenants of one of Hawaii's most successful housing projects.

Artificial reefs created from wrecked cars have increased marine population by more than 400 per cent.

Dumping cars into the Pacific Ocean two years ago during a cleanup project called the "great automobile roundup" has produced a bumper crop of fish.

Eddie Anderson, a dynamic insurance company executive who headed the project in the face of tough opposition from environmentalists, is a satisfied man today, citing an overwhelming increase in species of fish whose numbers were dwindling dangerously.

Some of these fish are found only in the Hawaiian Archipelago, and were in danger of extinction, Anderson said.

"Before we dropped in the cars, there were 103 pounds per acre of fish in the area of the reef off Waianae and 37 pounds per acre in the area of Maunalua Bay," Anderson said.

Divers found that with the artificial reefs, the Waianae fish count jumped to 2,631 pounds per acre and 1,585 pounds per acre at Maunalua Bay.

"The number of species has more than doubled," Anderson said.

He spearheaded a three-month roundup of abandoned vehicles after convincing Mayor Frank Fasi of Honolulu that the cars could create a breeding ground and home for fish.

"Islanders and tourists have a great appetite for fish and supplies of the most popular fish were rapidly decreasing," Anderson said. "Since the use of automobiles to create artificial shoals has been successfully tested elsewhere, I was convinced this was the way to remove unsightly abandoned cars from the landscape and replenish the fish population."

Environmentalists didn't think much of Anderson's plans. They charged that not only would the cars kill the fish but would poison them for eating and have a dangerous effect on the chemical composition of the water and sediment in the area.

"I had a real fight on my hands," Anderson said, "but the mayor was convinced and within three months 2,000 derelict automobiles were towed to holding sites, processed, loaded on barges and dropped into the ocean at three locations off Oahu in 80 to 160 feet of water. Processing included removal of the battery, all fluids, tires, the engine, transmission, axles and chassis."

With its goal of "more fish for the table and fewer cars to mar Hawaii's beauty", the automobile roundup inspired such support from community groups and the military that the entire operation cost the city nothing. Labor and equipment to collect, process and haul the cars to the reef sites were donated by private individuals and companies as well as the military. The estimated value of the massive voluntary effort was estimated at $97,350.

Later, damaged concrete pipes and old tires were added to the artificial reefs.

It was only a matter of time before Anderson began to hear about the overwhelming results of his campaign. A year later, divers from the state Division of Fish and Game found the fish populations at the sites quickly increasing, and recent checks revealed the numbers have soared.

The fish breeding and swimming in and out of the car bodies were found to be healthy and good to eat.

"The cars are mostly a breeding ground," Anderson said. "The rate of attrition for young fish is normally very high because of predators. But in a car there are lots of places to hide, like glove compartments and under seats, until they reach a larger size."

Although the cars start deteriorating, coral which forms on them drops to the ocean floor and starts creating another reef. The concrete pipes and tires show little signs of deterioration.

Wide climate range

Fish inhabit a wide range of water climates from below freezing ones in the Antarctic to hot springs elsewhere that reach 100 degrees Fahrenheit.

Man hopes to refloat oldtime whaling ship

NEW YORK (UPI) — "We need something spectacular to celebrate the Bicentennial," said Alex Byron.

With those words, the Buzzard's Bay, Mass., man set out this week for Canada's Hudson Bay in an effort to refloat a whaling ship sitting under more than 30 feet of icy water since 1870.

Byron intends to sail the ship, the Ansel Gibbs, from its grave off Marble Island in the Bay's northeast sector into New Bedford, Mass., once the hub of the whaling world, on July 4, 1976.

The ship apparently still has its original cargo aboard, "including some brandy and rum that the crew used to keep warm up there," said Byron.

"I will drink a toast to the beginning of the third century of our independence out of that rum and brandy," he said.

The archaeological hunt led by Byron is named the Suzanne C. Byron Expediton, after his wife, who will not be able to go along because she has a 14-week-old son to take care of.

"But she was able to pinpoint the location of the ship," Byron said, "without even going there. She just pored over some ships' logs and there it was."

Byron said that after it is restored, the ship will become the property of a joint U.S. Canadian trust and will shuttle between New Bedford and as yet undetermined port in Canada as a tourist attraction.

"The Suzanne C. Byron Expedition is a symbol that the American people are tougher and made of better stock than Madison Avenue and The Computer give 'em credit for," he declared.

The last entry in the ship's log, Byron said, will read "And so ends this voyage of 104 years, 197 days. Thank God."

Japan leader to visit U.S.

TOKYO (UPI) — Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka wants to visit the United States to confer with President Gerald Ford, informed political sources said today.

The opportunity may come when Tanaka makes a tour of Latin America and Canada, now scheduled Sept. 12-26.

The sources said a stop in Washington may have been discussed Thursday when American Ambassador James D. Hodgson met with the Japanese prime minister for almost an hour, the sources said.

DOUBLE TALK — Two heads are not always better than one, especially when the two heads belong to one very poisonous Tiger snake. An Australian farmer found this eight-inch long rarity on his property recently while clearing it.

GIs are leaving a path of destroyed children

MANILA (UPI) — Marylou Collins, 6, born out of wedlock to a Filipino bar girl and sired by a black American sailor, is malnourished and undercherished.

She is 21 pounds of lethargy. Her limbs resemble matchsticks.

Marylou's dull eyes vacantly peruse the ugly world in which she exists.

She shares a tiny room in a Manila slum with seven relatives. Her bed is the floor and she shares it with five young cousins and her aunt, a former bar girl whose children are illegitimate too.

Marylou rarely sees her mother, who at the age of 40 still works in a bar frequented by black American sailors at Olongapo City on the edge of the U.S. Naval base at Subic Bay.

In the words of William Stockdale McCabe, a towering American from Pittsburgh who cares about children like Marylou, she already is a "destroyed child."

McCabe, director of the Pearl Buck Foundation which aids children it calls "Amerasians," said Marylou is one of an estimated 50,000 or so mixed-blood children in this country, the great majority of them sired by U.S. military men.

MCCabe believes that many Filipinos value light skin and that those who have Spanish blood in their veins are proud of it. He said that several of the top Filipinos stars in the field of entertainment carry the blood of white American fathers.

"This is probably the best country in Asia for a half-American if he is not black," said McCabe."Children sired by American GIs generally are scorned in Japan and Korea."

Marylou, however, is black.

Her mind is so dulled by malnutrition she no longer responds when other children call her "nigger."

Unlike the governments of Holland and France, which offered mixed-bloods born out of wedlock in the colonies citizenship, the U.S. government has done virtually nothing for such children as Marylou.

"It is almost impossible for them to become American citizens because their parents were not married," he said.

McCabe said most Amerasian children live with their mothers, many of whom continue to work in the bars and engage in prostitution, and some live with other relatives. About 90 per cent of the children dealt with by the Buck foundation are emotionally disturbed.

McCabe said it is not difficult to understand why so many Amerasian girls "follow their mothers into the bars."

Despite the help, mostly in the form of medical care, the foundation and her sponsors, an American couple have given Marylou, McCabe believes she already has been "destroyed."

He contends the desperately poor family in which she lives withholds food from Marylou. It is true that the other children who live in the single room appear better nourished.

"What's the point in our continuing to give her medicine when she's dying of malnutrition?" he asked bitterly.

An unacceptable answer could be read in Marylou's vacant eyes and it said that the child with the matchstick limbs already had given up in a struggle she never really understood.

Women get no quarters

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Separate facilities will not be installed in fire houses when women begin training and working as fire fighters.

It has been determined that separate toilets will not be necessary, Assistant Fire Chief Dee J. Rogers said. "An 'occupied' sign will do'" he said.

However, he said inexpensive curtains or screens would be put up. They will not be costly and they seem appropriate for everyone, not just women, he said.

"We would make available some enclosures to give anyone desiring a curtain an amount of privacy," Rogers said. "After all, some of the men might be bashful."

Peace in doubt as premier of Loas leaves for France

For a dozen years, Prince Souvanna Phouma, the neutral premier of Laos, has been the man credited with holding his tiny country together as war tore at the seams of the Indochina peninsula.

Now, as he leaves for France to spend an anticipated one or two months recovering from a heart attack, he leaves the future of some 3 million Laotians once more in doubt.

Outstanding dates of the last four months are illustrative.

On April 5 after more than a year of negotiating a coalition government takes over leadership in Laos. At its head is Souvanna, trusted by the United States and communists alike.

Under terms of the coalition agreement, all foreign troops are required to depart Laos within 60 days. Specifically, this applies to the North Vietnamese, the Americans and Thai irregulars.

On July 9, after departure of the Americans and the Thais, the North Vietnamese remain. Souvanna says he has taken a "personal interest" in the matter and has told the North Vietnamese they must withdraw. The North Vietnamese forces are estimated at around 40,000.

On July 12, Souvanna suffers what is described as a mild heart attack.

On Aug. 6, he designates one of Laos's two deputy premiers to take over his duties. The designate is Phoumi Vongvichit, a communist, a veteran leader of the communist Pathet Lao, a negotiator of the Laos peace agreement and foreign minister.

The right wing of Souvanna's government is unhappy but Souvanna has recognized reality.

The right wing is disorganized. It is certain the Pathet Lao never would accept the authority of the other deputy premier, Leuam Insisengmay, a moderate rightist.

And so it was that, with tears in his eyes, Souvanna told his cabinet that in his absence it should "strictly abide by the peace agreement, avoid discussion of conflicting issues and place the people's national interest above all."

Behind him he left a government heavily weighted in favor of Laotian leftists of whom his half brother, Prince Souphanouvong, is titular leader.

On the one hand is the 12-man cabinet divided between the previous Vientiane neutralist government headed by Souvanna Phouma and the Pathet Lao, and on the other a National Political Council headed by Prince Souphanouvong "equal to" and "independent" of the cabinet.

A national assembly in which the Pathet Lao is not represented never has been allowed to meet.

The hope for avoiding a new upheaval in Laos is the fact that no one wants it. Another is that Laos itself always has been on the fringe of the Indochina war, useful to the Communists only as a conduit for supplies to South Vietnam and Cambodia and for that reason only subject to attack by the United States.

To the average Laotian, current government uncertainties probably will mean little.

Assuming peace is to continue during Souvanna Phouma's absence, economics will be the main problem. Estimates as to the number of refugees in Laos vary from 160,000 to more than 700,000. The national per capita income is just over $75, and the country's standard of living depends upon imports. It is expected it will at least 10 years before the country can feed itself.

Dangerous frogs loose

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — There is a "wanted" bulletin out for some dangerous escapers —African clawed frogs.

The California Fish and Game Department disclosed Wednesday that the frogs escaped from a medical laboratory at the University of California Davis, and fled into Putah Creek.

Officials said the frogs pose a threat to the ecology of the creek.

A big search for the frogs will take place when the creek is drawn down for a week.

An Indian (or Bengal) tiger measuring 11 ft., 1 in., weighing 857 lbs. and believed to be the largest ever taken in Indian, was shot in November 1967. It is on exhibit in the National Museum of Natural History, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C.

Additional baby selling charges against man

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) — Ronald Silverton, already charged with black market baby selling in Los Angeles County was indicted Thursday in Riverside County on similar charges.

Silverton, a former Los Angeles County crime commissioner, is accused of selling a human being and offering to pay a mother to give away her baby for adoption.

Silverton, 43, allegedly charged a Utah couple $1,000 for a 3-day-old baby. The couple turned out to be Palm Springs undercover agents who reportedly paid Silgerton's secretary, Lucy Sam of North Hollywood, for the baby.

Mrs. Sam has been granted immunity from prosecution in return for her testimony against Silverton.

Lee's back in the groove

Trevino paves way to PGA lead with third-round 68

CLEMMONS, N.C. (UPI) — Lee Trevino ran in crucial putts on five of the last six greens Saturday, shot a two-under-par 68 and took a one stroke lead after the third round of the PGA championship.

Trevino, sometimes serious and sometimes clowning—and visibly happy when a pretty blonde rushed out of the gallery to embrace him near the sixth tee, took the lead at the final green when he sank a birdie putt and Bobby Cole followed moments later with a bogey.

That birdie gave Trevino—a two-time winner of both the U.S. and British Opens but never better than 11th in the PGA—a 54-hole score of 207, three under par.

Cole, the South African who won the British Amateur at 18 in 1966 but never has won a major professional championship, and defending champion Jack Nicklaus were deadlocked just a stroke behind at 208. Cole had 71 Saturday, Nicklaus 70.

A half-dozen other players were within three strokes of Trevino's lead, assuring an interesting chase today for the $45,000 first prize in this, the final of the year's four major golf championships.

Hubert Green, the No. 2 moneywinner on this year's U.S. tour, and Frank Beard, trying to snap a three-year winless slump, were next in line at one-under-par 209. Green had a 73 and Beard a 69 that included two eagles.

Masters and British Open champion Gary Player failed to make a single birdie all day, shot 73, and headed a group of four players at 210, even par.

The others at that figure were John Schlee, the astrology buff who shared the first round lead and led by himself after the second round, with a 75 Saturday; Dave Hill, with 67, and North Carolina native Leonard Thompson whose round of even-par 70 included only five par holes.

On what at first appeared might be an easy scoring day— it did not rain here Saturday for the first time in a week and conditions seemed ideal—the leaders fought their way around trouble most of the day.

As many as four men were tied for the lead as late as the 13th hole, where Trevino, Cole, Schlee and Green all were at two under par.

That was the hole where Trevino started his "can't miss" putting.

He birdied 13, then birdied the 610-yard 14th too, his putt hanging on the lip of the cup for a moment and finally falling to put Trevino on top by himself.

A national television audience watched Lee apparently say something in glee that he shouldn't have, and Trevino quickly put a hand over his mouth. Later, he repeated the same gesture—in jest.

Cole, playing directly behind Trevino in the last group of the day, followed with a birdie of his own at 14 to tie Trevino at three under par.

Trevino made a twisting little par putt at 15 but bogeyed the par-three 16th where he drove into a bunker. That put Cole ahead again.

At 17, Trevino duck-hooked his drive far into the rough, needed two more shots to get to the green, then sank a 20-foot putt to salvage par.

And finally on No. 18, the 440-yard uphill monster, Trevino slashed his second shot four feet below the hill and made the putt for a finishing birdie.

Now Cole was tied for the lead, and he drove straight down the middle on 18. But his second shot was short, landed in the heavy fringe, and he made the final bogey that left Trevino alone on top.

Trevino, using a new putter he found this week in the attic of a widow's home where he is staying, said, "a lot of times if you get a strange putter in your hands, it's better," and this apparently was one of those times.

That would be a logical thought for a sleepless Trevino since that's exactly what happened to him Saturday.

Trevino started out like a house afire, sinking 15-foot birdie putts on each of the first two holes. But No. 4, a 420-yard par 4, was almost his undoing.

He had trouble getting out of a sand trap and then wound up three-putting for a double bogey 6.

"That double bogey didn't bother me as much as it would have if I hadn't made those two quick birdies," said Trevino. "Since I had gone 2 under, it only put me back to even so I wasn't all that upset."

However, Trevino, in a jovial mood after the birdies, was grim the next few holes and he ran off a string of eight straight pars before he could find his birdie touch again.

NOT SO FAST

Rams' defender Al Phillips (21) drags Cowboy running back Doug Dennison down after a short gain in Saturday night's exhibition at the Coliseum. Cowboys went on to win, 13-6.

Dodgers' Wynn ends L.A. woes

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

ST LOUIS — One reason why the Dodgers enjoy the best record in baseball is their ability to avoid long, damaging losing streaks.

The Dodgers have lost as many as three in a row six times this season but have never dropped four consecutive games.

It was the same story here Saturday evening as the Dodgers trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-2, to snap a three-game drought.

The victory enabled L.A. to maintain its 5½ game advantage over Cincinati in the National League West standings, while the Cardinals kept their 1½ game lead in the East thanks to Philadelphia's loss.

Jimmy Wynn, the hero of Saturday's win, is aware of the figures.

When congratulated for his 27th home run, two stolen bases, and a clutch throw to nail Lou Brock at the plate, Wynn just shrugged his shoulders and said, "We broke a three-game streak. That's my main concern."

Wynn put the Dodgers in front in the first inning when he ripped a Bob Gibson pitch into the leftfield seats after Bill Buckner singled.

With 27 homers, the Toy Cannon has hit the most roundtrippers by a Dodger since Frank Howard belted 28 in 1963, and there are still 48 games remaining on the schedule. He is also bidding to become the first Dodger since Duke Snider in 1956 to top the N.L. in homers.

Wynn is now two ahead of Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt.

Wynn figured he owed Gibson something.

"Gibby was just aiming the ball tonight," Wynn said about the 38-year-old veteran who is struggling with a 6-10 record. "I got even a little bit tonight. I figure I have hit only two homers against Gibson in my 10 years in the majors, but his ball wasn't exploding tonight the way it used to. It was like batting practice."

The Dodgers' top three run producers all came through in the win. Wynn built his runs-batted-in total to 84, while Ron Cey knocked in a pair in the fifth inning with a double to raise his season total to 77. Steve Garvey knocked in the other two with a pair of singles for his 75th and 76th.

Los Angeles scored all its runs against Gibson in pounding out 10 hits against baseball's winningest pitcher to disappoint a near capcity crowd of 45,293 at Busch Memorial Stadium. Three relief pitchers held L.A. scoreless through the final four innings.

The Dodgers would have had even more but Wynn was twice thrown out at the plate. He was called out by plate umpire John Kibler in the fifth inning in what at first appeared to be a bad call but tape replays indicated catcher Ted Simmons had blocked Wynn from the plate. Wynn was an easy out in the seventh in trying to score on Willie Crawford's base hit.

But Wynn made the defensive play of the game in the third when he made a perfect throw to get Brock at the plate when the Cardinal speedster attempted to score on a fly out by Bake McBride. It was a key play as Reggie Smith followed with a single to cut the Dodger lead to 3-2.

L.A. then broke it open with three in the fifth.

"Yes, I got that speed demon," Wynn grinned. "He can't outrun the Cannon."

McBride's fly wasn't hit that deep but most N.L. runners will test Wynn knowing he has a sore elbow.

"I think Wynn fooled them," Dodger skipper Walt Alston said. "When he has to, he can throw with something on it."

DODGER DATA — Don Sutton (9-8) will oppose Lynn McGlothen (13-7) in today's series finale. It will be televised by KTTV Channel 11 at 11:15 a.m.

Brock stole his 76th base in the third inning but he was gunned down by catcher Steve Yeager in the seventh, for the 18th time he has been caught this year.

The Dodgers activated relief pitcher Jim Brewer Saturday but Alston is still concerned about the catching situation.

Throwing error ruins Angels, 2-1

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Graig Nettles took advantage of a wild pitch and an ensuing throwing error by catcher Ellie Rodriguez to score from second base with the winning run in the seventh inning Saturday night to give the New York Yankees a 2-1 triumph over the California Angels behind the seven-hit pitching of Rudy May.

Pitching against his former teammates for the first time since the Angels sold him to New York in June, May allowed only one unearned run to capture his fourth win in five decisions since putting on a Yankee uniform.

May had to outduel Angel lefthander Andy Hassler, who gave up just four hits. Hassler struck out eight but walked six in absorbing his seventh setback against only two wins.

Nettles opened the seventh inning with one of the walks off Hassler. Then another exAngel, Sandy Alomar, sacrificed Nettles to second. With the count of one ball and no strikes to batter Jim Mason, Hassler unleashed a wild pitch and Rodriguez, retrieving the ball, threw it into left field in a futile attempt to get Nettles at third. Nettles easily trotted home.

An errant throw on a probable double play ball allowed the Angels to take a 1-0 lead in the third inning. Denny Doyle walked to open the game, and with one out, he took second on Rudy Meoli's infield single.

Trevino will go for broke

CLEMMONS, N.C. (UPI) — Lee Trevino served warning on his nearest competitors Saturday after grabbing the third round lead in the PGA championship.

"I'll be shooting for broke tomorrow (today)," said Trevino, one stroke ahead of co-runnerups Jack Nicklaus and Bobby Cole thanks to a 68-207. "I may shoot 80 and I may shoot 65, but I'm going for broke."

Trevino, twice winner of the U.S. and British Opens but never better than 11th in the PGA, started Saturday's round in sixth place, four shots behind pace-setting John Schlee.

He moved into a tie for the lead on two different occasions, but never held it alone until Saturday's final hole when he put his approach shot just four feet from the cup and rammed home the go-ahead birdie putt.

Then he said he planned to go out and play basketball and jog so that he'd be tired enough to sleep.

"No matter what anyone says, when you are leading, it's difficult to sleep," said Trevino. "When you aren't exhausted, you wake up in the middle of the night and think about making a double bogey at No. 4."

Rams fizzle before 46,468

Morton paces Dallas, 13-6

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

LOS ANGELES — Their hopes bouyed by last week's thrilling 24-21 Ram win and the fact that a number of veterans had reported during the week, 46,468 fans turned out Saturday night to see their heroes battle Dallas at the Coliseum.

But they were disappointed as Craig Morton, who is headed for the WFL Houston Texans next year, tossed the Cowboys to a 13-6 win over the Rams.

Morton connected on two big fourth-quarter pass plays to set up a game-tieing field goal and the game-winning touchdown.

With the score tied at 6-6, and ten minutes left in the game, Morton drove the Cowboys 94 yards in seven plays, passing five yards to Walt Garrison for the game's only touchdown.

The Rams had appeared to have the visitors taken care of following a 59-yard punt by Mike Burke, a second-year man from the University of Miami.

But with a second-and-six on the Dallas 25-yard line, Morton dumped a six-yard pass to Les Strayhorn out in the left flat. Strayhorn, a five-ten, 205-pound running back out of East Carolina, caught the ball at the Dallas 30 sprinted down the sidelines 54 yards until Cullen Bryant knocked him out of bounds at the Ram's 16-yard line, for a 59-pass play.

Garrison picked up a yard and then on the same type play that gave Strayhorn his long gainer, Morton hit Garrison in the end zone to his right for the score.

The loss drops the Rams to a 1-1 record in the exhibition season. The Cowboys, losers to Oakland last week, are also 1-1.

Morton played most of the game and stacked up impressive statistics.

The 6-foot-4, 215-pound University of California graduate completed 13 of 23 passes for 267 yards. His longest was 47 yards to wide receiver Golden Richards, a second-year man from the University of Hawaii, during a 76-yard drive earlier in the final period.

That helped set up the 21-yard game tying field goal by Tony Fritsch.

The Morton maddness negated two 22-yard field goals by Ram rookie Bob Thomas as well as John Cappelletti's first 100-yard game as a pro.

Cappelletti, the 6-1, 217-pound Heisman Trophy winner, averaged 7.8 yards per carry as he gained 108 yards in 15 carries.

Two Ram touchdown drives fizzled when Ron Jaworski had passes intercepted at the Dallas goal line and in the Dallas end zone.

"We just made too many mistakes," admitted Ram coach Chuck Knox. "We had the opportunities, but we weren't able to put them together. Late in the game we had them backed up, but they got out of it."

While Dallas used Morton mainly and Roger Staubach a little, Knox used all his signal callers with Jaworski seeing most of the action.

The "Polish Rifle" completed only three of 12 passes for 41 yards and fired the two blanks that were intercepted. John Hadl, who had only been in camp five days, hit on two of three in the first quarter.

John Harris, who also came into camp this last week, threw 11 times, completing three for 29 yards.

"We wanted to win, but we wanted to do it playing all the people we had planned to use and staying with the substitution plan we had pre-determined," Knox remarked.

Dallas coach Tom Landry, like Knox, did not make extensive use of the veterans at his disposal.

"We didn't have special preparation for this game," Landry said. "We had to go with the rookies because we have had our veterans in camp since Wednesday for the most part."

Landry threw in some compliments for Cappelletti. "He really is something," Landry enthused. "He has tremendous power and agility."

The Cowboys outgained the Rams 359 yards to 263 and out-firstdowned them 15-12. Each team punted six times. The Cowboys averaged 31.8 yards per punt, The Rams, thanks to new discovery Burke, averaged 42.1 yards per punt.

The Rams were penalized six times for 65 yards. The Cowboys were charged with five miscues and penalized 49 yards.

National Football League roundup

Keyworth keys Bronco victory

DENVER (UPI) — Machinelike John Keyworth, who played eight different positions at the University of Colorado, found a home at halfback with the Denver Broncos Saturday night, churning for 148 yards and two touchdowns to pace the Broncos to a 27-21 NFL preseason win over the Minnesota Vikings.

Only 23,119 persons crossed the informal NFL player picket lines to get inside 43,000 seat Mile High Stadium to see Denver even its record at 1-1. Minnesota, which like Denver does not have a single veteran from last years team in camp, opened its season with the loss.

The Broncos got a four-yard scoring run from Jimmy Jones and 11-yard touchdown pass from John Hufnagel to Tom Strahan to go along with Keyworths' bursts from one yard out in the first quarter and two yards out in the final period. Longmont, Colo., banker Bill Shoemaker kicked three of four extra points.

Minnesota opened the game's scoring when Randy Poltl ran 94 yards with a Hufnagel fumble less than six minutes into the contest. The Vikings added second half touchdowns on a 15 yard run by Marty Shuford and a seven yard pass from reserve Hal Chealander to Steve Craig with just 31 seconds left. Berl Simmons added the three extra points.

On the first play after Poltl ran the fumble in for Minnesota's opening score, Denver appeared to be in trouble. Keyworth fumbled on his own 31 but the loose ball wound up in the hands of Bronco right end Boyd Brown who ran to Minnesota's one yard line before defensive back Jackie Wallace caught him. On the next play Keyworth scored for the first time.

Dolphins, 45-20

MIAMI (UPI) — The Miami Dolphins sparked by 66 and 90-yard touchdown punt returns by rookie Charlie Thomas, rolled to a 45-20 win over the New Orleans Saints Saturday night in the half-filled Orange Bowl.

The world champions used none of the stars among the 34 veterans who crossed picket lines and reported to Coach Don Shula's training camp and only 41,524 fans came to see the wide open game.

Thomas, a 180-pound running back from Tennessee State, scored for Miami the first time they got the ball when he took a Donnie Gibbs punt behind a wall of blocking and ran 66 yards for a touchdown. Garo Yepremian, who booted a 20-yard field goal in the second period, added the first of six conversions.

Thomas scored again with 9:39 left in the game when he took another Gibbs punt on his 10 and ran 90 yards unmolested into the end zone.

Saints' quarterback Larry Cipa scored two of New Orleans' touchdowns—both on one-yard plunges that capped drives of 62 and 68 yards. New Orleans scored its third touchdown when running back Lincoln Minor plunged for two yards to cap a 38-yard drive set up when Dick Middleton intercepted a pass from Miami quarterback Don Strock.

Deacon Jones to Redskins

CARLISLE, Pa. (UPI)—The Washington Redskins acquired veteran defensive end Deacon Jones Saturday from the San Diego Chargers in exchange for a future draft choice.

The Chargers also gave up a future draft choice to the Redskins in the transaction. Jones, 35, is a 12-year veteran who played 10 years with the Los Angeles Rams before being traded to San Diego in 1972.

Ontario tumbles in Legion event

Five unearned runs by Anaheim Loara was the margin of victory Saturday night over Ontario in the Ontario Invitational American Legion tournament at John Galvin Park.

Ontario gave up runs in the second, fourth and sixth innings in the 5-1 loss, while managing only a single tally of its own in the fourth inning.

NFL owners, players still 'far apart'

By SAM FOGG
UPI Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — NFL owners and players negotiated 10 solid hours Saturday trying to settle the 41-day-old pro football strike, but finally recessed the talks until sometime next week, still far apart on some major issues.

W.J. Usery, Jr., the government's chief labor mediator, said he would decide Monday or Tuesday when to call the two sides back together.

"I'm very disappointed we were unable to consummate an agreement this week," he commented, "I thought we could have and should have."

Usery added, however, that the bargaining sessions through five straight days this week were "very good" and added: "I'm still convinced we can consummate an agreement next week."

However, Wellington Mara, head of the New York Giants and chairman of the owners' Management Council, declared that even on the money issue, "We're many, many millions apart."

He estimated that the difference between what the players were demanding and what the owners were willing to give amounted to more than $30 million a year. But Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players' Association, flatly denied there was that much difference on money matters.

Bill Curry, president of the NFL Players Association, declared he was optimistic about the progress which was made during the past week.

"We're going to work and make necessary compromises without giving everything away," the Houston Oiler center commented.

According to Curry, two small subcommittees from each side will probably be working together early next week on the general subject of player working conditions.

Mara declined to comment on whether any agreement had been reached on the controversial "freedom issue" demands by the players. But Curry commented, "We feel substantial progress has been made and some hard bargaining has taken place."

Mara told newsmen that NFL figures show that player payrolls have risen by $17 million from last season. He said that over 85 per cent of all money a player receives comes from his individual negotiations and less than 15 per cent from the union's collective bargaining.

"I think we're getting into a situation where the 15 per cent is to jeopardize the 85 per cent," Mara said, "and to me it seems that a very small tail is wagging a very large dog."

He said during the week that all 26 club owners reaffirmed their complete support of the policies and actions of the owners negotiating committee. Usery will be out of Washington next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, but in his absence, his deputy, James Scearce, would be on hand to conduct further negotiations.

WINNING FORM — Park Avenue's Bill Eldridge struck out nine and allowed only five hits to lead his team to 4-1 victory Saturday.

Eldridge earns 4-1 win, Park Ave. still undefeated

By TIM CLARK
P-B Correspondent

Bill Eldridge pitched his Park Avenue American Little League teammates to a 4-1 victory over Pomona Police Association in the biggest game of the day in the Major Division of the City Playoffs at the American Little League field Saturday.

In a previous match, the Meatcutters outslugged the Breakfast Optimists, 13-8.

Eldridge was brilliant in the nightcap, scattering five hits and striking out nine, a good deal of the "Ks" coming in clutch situations.

The only run scored off Eldridge came as a result of his own error in the fifth, when be booted a sharp grounder hit by Pomona's Mike Balzer with a runner on third.

"Bill's now won two games for us in post season play after winning nine during the regular season," said Park Ave. coach Roy Tolentino. "We're really pleased, since he always pitches in our most important games."

Park Ave. had its big inning in the fourth, when it scored three of its runs. Police starter Ron Lawson walked Eric Mendivil and Larry Malesky in succession. Mendivil scored when Police second baseman Mitch Bluethman couldn't handle the throw from Tom Newbeerry on a force attempt of Malesky on a ball hit by Steve Schaffer.

Malesky and Schaffer both scored when Troy Thomas drilled a double to left.

The Meatcutters scored eight runs in the second, and then five more in the third to wrap up its victory over the Optimists. The eight markers in the second were the result of five walks, two errors, and only one basehit, that coming on a two-run single by Robert Vincent. Vincent drove in three more runs in the third with a double to right.

The Meatcutters held a 13-1 margin going into the bottom of the sixth, but couldn't enjoy the luxary too long as the Optimists made things interesting by scoring seven runs off reliever Richard Goodwin.

Kevin Williams supplied spark for the Optimists in the frame by driving in three runs with a double off the right field wall.

The Meatcutters will now face Cal Credit Monday night at 5:30 p.m. The winner will square off with Pomona Police Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. Park Ave. will play the winner of Wednesday's game on Friday to determine the championship at 5:30 p.m.

Rankin wins Women's European title

SUNNINGDALE, England (UPI) — Judy Rankin, a 29-year-old blonde Texan, shot a final-round 73 Saturday for a five-stroke victory in the Colgate European Womens Open Golf Championship at Sunningdale, Berkshire.

Playing in England for the first time since turning professional 12 years ago, she captured the first prize of $9,600 with a two-over-par, 54-hole total of 218.

Her two compatriots, Sue Roberts, of Columbus, Ohio, and Mary Mills, of Gulfport, Tex., shared the second spot at 223.

The championship, the first of its kind to be staged in this country, was dominated by the American women pros, but captured the imagination of the public and is on its way to becoming an annual event.

Britain took the back seat in the tournament as Dinah Henson, a one-time British champion, came out of retirement to finish as the leading home player.

She had a third round of 76 for an aggregate of 234 to take home a silver Armada dish — the silver supposedly taken from the Spanish Armada.

Mrs Rankin, who was runnerup in last year's American women's pro tour money list, used the smaller British golf ball.

The second-round leader, Mrs. Rankin lost her lead on the first three holes, but swiftly regained her composure by knocking in an 18-footer for a birdie two on the fourth and holing a nine-footer on the sixth for a birdie three.

Foster's manager upset over WBC's decision

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (UPI) — Lou Viscusi, the manager of Bob Foster, Saturday termed' "ridiculous," the World Boxing Council's decision to strip Foster of his world light-heavyweight title.

The WBC announced Friday it was stripping Foster of his title for failing to sign for a title match against the No. 1 contender, John Conteh of England.

"The WBC has itself a paper champion," said Viscusi.

Viscusi denied the champion is ducking a fight with either Conteh or Argentine fighter Jorge Ahumada. It was Ahumada who carried Foster to a controversial 15-round draw in a title fight this summer in Albuquerque.

"I've been in the middle of negotiations to have two separate promoters in Miami and Denver hold a Foster-Conteh fight in November," said Viscusi.

Foster, a native of Albuquerque, has defended his title 14 times, the most by any lightheavyweight in history.

"They're (the WBC) admitting to the public that the greatest light-heavyweight champion the world has ever known can't be beaten in the ring so they will beat him on paper," said Viscusi.

The WBC said it had previously warned Foster to fight Conteh or face the loss of his title.

Finals today in softball tourney

Semifinal games were held Saturday in the Walnut Invitational Slow Pitch Softball Tourney.

Grand Inn and Foothill Dairy moved into today's championship contest, while the Covina Police and the Guzzlers will be matched up in the consolation tilt.

Grand Inn blanked Chick's Sporting Goods 5-0 and Foothill Dairy beat the Turkeys II 12-9 in action Saturday in the championship bracket. In the consolation grouping the Covina Police blasted the Toads 23-7 while the Guzzlers downed Miller's Outpost 17-10.

Crosby 'Cap to Rise High

DEL MAR, Calif. (UPI) — With Jorge Tejeira in the saddle, Rise High outlasted Tragic Isle by a neck at Del Mar Saturday in the $22,250 Bing Crosby Handicap.

Against The Snow was third with Beira, the 2-1 favorite and the high weight at 123 pounds, finishing a weary fifth in the field of eight.

Rise High, a 4-year-old son of Viking Spirit, was timed in 1:09 flat for six furlongs. Viking Spirit won the 1965 Crosby here.

Rise High earned $13,250 for his second triumph in seven starts this year and paid $14.60 to win. He is owned by Sidney Factor and trained by Larry Rose.

Tejeira, a 25-year-old Panamanian, won two other races Saturday to give him 31 victories, tops for the meeting.

Chino man started Regalado on U.S. golf trail

By PHIL ROCHE
P-B Staff Writer

Daniel Vasquez has been playing golf for some 40 years now in and around Chino, so when he saw a Tijuana caddy whip through a golf ball nine years ago, he knew that this 17-year-old was a potential champ.

Victor Regalado caddied for Vasquez in a tourney at Tijuana Country Club that day in 1965. At the end of the round Vasquez handed him an iron and said, "Let me see your swing."

Regalado hit a perfect arching shot to the green, the ball rolling to a few feet from the pin.

Vasquez later brought the Mexican youngster to his home in Chino, taught him the fine points of golf, matched him with the best players in the Southland, and started him off as a professional player.

Last Sunday, Regelado, now a 6 feet, 200-pound tour regular, beat out Tom Weiskopf as he scored a $40,000 victory in the Pleasant Valley Tournament in Sutton, Mass.

"I've kept in close touch with Victor," said Vasquez Thursday. "He's a very fine boy, and I'm very happy for him."

More than 60 phone calls flooded the Vasquez home in Chino after the Regelado victory. "They called to congratulate me and to let me know they remembered Victor and me when we played together.

"I am very interested in all young players," said Vasquez, "and I believe I can help them get started right in golf."

Daniel is now working with his son on special engineering projects at South Hills Country Club.

"Victor had a lot to learn when he came to Chino," said Vasquez, "but he was completely dedicated to golf. He was encouraged by Mr. Sullivan and Jack Kramer at Los Serranos, and he could really hit a ball."

"He can hit his irons ten yards farther on the average than Jack Nicklaus," said Vasquez who plays golf regularly in the 70s principally at Los Serranos and Ontario National.

"I mainly helped Victor with his putting, his short game and his attitude toward the game," says Vasquez. "I just enjoy helping people improve their golf."

Regalado, incidentally, fired a 70 and a 72 in the first two rounds of the PGA tournament Thursday and Friday.

Thanks to people like Daniel Vasquez, golfers like Regalado get great early training and inspiration.

To many golfers, when you say 97, it means their Sunday score for 18 holes.

When you say that to the living legend of Anaheim, George Herman "Dad" Miller, you mean his age. As for his score, that something else again. At 97 years of age, "Dad Miller" makes his usual round of 18 holes in the low 90's, 91 or 92. It wasn't always so.

When he first decided to take up the game, he was 55, and 21 years later, at 76, he turned in a sharp score of 71. He won a national seniors title at age 84, then topped that by recording two holes-in-one after his 84th birthday.

That's only part of the Dad Miller story. Other parts include five Dad Miller pro-am tournaments that have helped raise funds for the Braille Institute of Anaheim. This year, Sept. 7-8 will mark the 6th tournament bearing his name. Two courses will be used for the 36-hole partners best ball tournament, Anaheim Hills (a testy new course) and Anaheim Municipal.

As in past years, the tournament will be sprinkled with some of Hollywood's best golfers along with low-handicappers from Orange County.

The two-day 36-hole event will end with a huge banquet to be held in the Anaheim Convention Center on Sept. 8 starting at 6 p.m.

Steve Yeager: lots of perseverence paid off

UPI Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Throughout his career in the Los Angeles Dodgers organization, Steve Yeager has played in the shadow of Joe Ferguson.

In his first full year in the majors last season, Yeager appeared in only 54 games, hitting .254 with two homers and 10 RBIs.

Ferguson was the Dodgers' MVP, blasting 25 homers and driving in 88 runs while hitting .263 in 136 contests.

"I never really got a chance to play in the minors," said Yeager, a 25-year-old catcher. "During my whole career, I've always been told I can catch but I can't hit. And it always seemed that Joey (Ferguson) was ahead of me."

After playing in only 22 games at Bakersfield in the class A California League in 1969, Yeager nearly quit.

"I wasn't learning anything," he said, "and I was very close to giving it all up. It was my third year in pro ball and I was disgusted. The future looked bleak. I almost decided I'd rather drive a truck or work in a factory than go on."

But Yeager decided to persevere.

Playing behind Ferguson at Albuquerque in 1972, he picked up the telephone and called Al Campanis, the Dodgers' vice president of player personnel, here.

"I told him (Campanis) that if I couldn't play every day then I wanted to be traded," he said. "I said I had to play to improve. All I wanted was a chance."

An off-season resident of Dayton, Ohio, Yeager didn't get his wish, of course.

"I guess," he said, "there's no way a major league ball club is going to give up a good young catcher."

More perseverence.

"Yeah, it was pretty discouraging going into spring training," he said. "You know, Joey was coming off a big year.

"But I had a good winter (at Licey in the Dominican Republic) and then Joey got off to a slow start. I got my chance and I seemed to get a hit every time I got up my first month.

"It's been quite a year. It's a learning year. I'm learning how to hit because I'm playing. Maybe I'll even make the All-Star team next season."

That's a distinct possibility. Yeager belted a grand slam homer to beat the Cincinnati Reds 6-3 Aug. 5 on national TV and was hitting a solid .298.

Sparky Anderson, whose Reds are trying to catch the Dodgers in the National League West, said:

"If I had to, I'd pick Yeager over anybody else (at catcher) in the league besides Johnny Bench. He's that good."

Walter Alston still plays Ferguson but Yeager has emerged at Los Angeles' No. 1 catcher. Ferguson is an outfielder, too.

"All I'm going for this year is base hits," Yeager offered. "I'd rather have four hits than a home run. I know I can hit with power but I think I can play more if I hit singles instead of home runs."

The 6-foot, 190-pound receiver likes his club's chances in the NL West but he's not claiming anything.

"We're a better team than we were a year ago," he declared, "but we haven't won anything yet. But we're not cocky like we were last year and we're not taking Cincinnati lightly.

"If we have a five-game lead with four games to go, then I'll celebrate."

Detroit's Al Kaline:

Mixed emotions over 3000th hit milestone

DETROIT (UPI) — It's getting close now and Al Kaline is beginning to realize more fully just what that 3,001th base hit means to him. It means the end of his baseball playing career.

"I have mixed emotions about it," Kaline said of the hit which will put him in a category with only 11 other men who have played major league baseball.

"I'm going to be very happy to finally get it," he said. "And I'm going to be very sad, because I know that it will mean I won't be coming out here any more."

It has taken Kaline 22 seasons to get less than 40 hits away from 3,000 (he got his 2,960th Aug. 7) and if you're only 39 like he is that means you've been playing major league baseball more than you've been doing anything else in your lifetime.

Kaline doesn't live only to hit. He was known as one of the most complete players ever to put on a uniform. Nevertheless, he's getting his last necessary 139 hits to 3,000 as a designated hitter, which means no right field.

Because of that, he's going to get more at-bats, and more hits, than any season since the mid or late 1960s.

"I've held up very well," Kaline said. "It's very surprising because I didn't think I would. I lift a lot of weights with my legs, do a lot of running and a lot of exercises.

"I have to work harder to stay in shape than did when I was playing because I don't want to get a pulled leg muscle. I don't need one of those.

"Mentally," he said, "it's been rough — especially when I'm not hitting. I got upset when I went through that stretch just before the All-Star game because I couldn't go out and do anything on the field. I wasn't doing anything to help the team."

The American League's 1955 batting champion, and the youngest in history, is on a course that would have him rap out that magic base hit somewhere between Detroit's 150th and 162nd game.

"I hope I don't go down to the last day needing one or two hits to do it," Kaline said. "Then if I have a bad day swinging people might think I'm not going to do it just to come back next year.

"People might get the impression that I don't want to get it just so I can come back and get some more money out of the club."

The travel is getting to Kaline. Not so much the shifting from city to city, but the increasingly interminable wait for games to begin. He frequently gets to the park on the road hours before anybody else.

Ashe wants more blacks in tennis

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Arthur Ashe is disappointed that his personal breakthrough in the formerly lily-white realm of major tennis competition has not inspired more young blacks to follow his example.

"I'm not disappointed from a personal standpoint, like they should follow my example because I'm the great emancipator or anything like that," he said during a breather between matches in the recent $100,000 First National Classic here.

"I'm only disappointed there aren't more blacks in tennis from a sociological point of view," said the trim 31-year-old native of Richmond, Va., who has been among the world's top-ranked stars since joining the tour.

"It's a sad commentary on American life that a sport such as tennis has heretofore been exclusively the domain of a certain sector of American society. Blacks haven't belonged to country clubs and tennis clubs and until recently, that was the only way they could learn to play. That's just the way things are, but they're changing now and I suspect they will continue to improve."

Unlike professional baseball, where blacks invaded the sport in large numbers once Jackie Robinson broke the color barrier, pro tennis —like swimming and hockey — remains almost an all-white sport.

That is not because of any established Jim Crow policy on the part of tennis moguls. On the contrary, many tennis promoters would like to see more blacks on the tourney circuit to broaden the appeal to spectators.

Ashe said a large part of the problem in attracting blacks to consider tennis for a career is that it does not offer the immediate financial rewards that other sports do.

Hence, if a young black athlete has a choice whether to pursue a career in tennis, with its uncertain rewards, or some other sport providing a big bonus for signing, he will opt for the other sport in most cases.

"Take John Lucas (the Maryland basketball star) for example," Ashe said. "I would say he would be much better off going into pro basketball than tennis.

"With us tennis players, nobody puts a dime in your pocket on January 1. The following December 31, if you've won a certain amount of money, you've actually earned it. Nobody gave it to you.

"So in that respect —human nature being what it is —many athletes will want to go for the salary rather than go into a sport where you have to win to make any money."

In his own quiet way, Ashe has worked diligently as a missionary for his sport with young people of all races.

"He goes out of his way to make himself available for public clinics in almost every city he visits on the tour," said Sam English, co-chairman of the First National Classic and Ashe's host during his stay here.

"You can do only so much," Ashe added. "The rest of the motivation has to come from coaches, parents and others who have an influence on young people."

As a measure of the high esteem in which he is held by his fellow pros, Ashe recently was elected president of the Association of Tennis Professionals —the tennis equivalent of the Professional Golf Association.

"Some guys might regard that office as just an honorary figurehead position," said tennis commentator Bud Collins. "But not Arthur. He's not made that way. He will work hard at it to see that his fellow pros get the best shake possible. The time and concentration he gives to it may even detract from his tennis playing."

However, Ashe vows he will not let the position interfere with his playing career.

"If I felt this would hinder my career in any way, I'd quit the office tomorrow," he said.

The new President: another sports buff in the White House

(Editor's Note: Milton Richman, Sports editor and columnist for United Press International, recently visited Washington where he discussed sports with Gerald R. Ford. Part of that discussion pertained to the personal athletic background of the one-time University of Michigan football player now about to become the 38th President of the United States.

In the following dispatch, Richman tells of his conversation with the new President and offers his personal impressions as well as those of some sports figures who have come to know the man who is replacing Richard M. Nixon.)

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Old habits are hard to break, sometimes impossible.

Gerald Ford, the new President of the United States, talked to me about one he picked up as a boy.

"The first thing I do every morning is read the sports page," he said.

Then he laughed.

"I read it before I do the front page because at least on the sports page you have a 50-50 chance of being right."

He was still Vice President when he told me that. Now that he's President, he'll be much busier but I doubt he'll break his old habit. Gerald Ford loves sports.

So does Richard Nixon, the man he replaces, but there is at least one big difference between them.

The new President was an actual competitor; the old one had a uniform, but spent most of his time on the bench. I've watched both Ford and Nixon around professional athletes. Nixon always seems somewhat in awe of them. Ford is much more at ease, probably because of his football playing background at the University of Michigan and the coaching he did while at Yale.

Richard Nixon is a football buff. Remember him trying to send in a play to the Miami Dolphins before the '73 Super Bowl game?

Gerald Ford follows football closely, too, but having personally gone through it all himself once and knowing first hand what it's all about, he doesn't identify with the players the way Richard Nixon has a tendency to do. Moreover, he follows baseball pretty much the same way.

The team man

From what I've seen, Nixon leans more toward the star performers in sports. Ford, having been one himself, invariably goes more for the team man.

When I asked him if he had any favorite baseball player, somebody he like especially well, he didn't think very long about it.

"Al Kaline," he said.

Why him particularly?

"He's a good team man," said Gerald Ford.

Kaline, winding up his 22nd season with the Detroit Tigers, has been to Ford's office in Washington several times. Kaline has been there with his wife and with Robert Griffin (R.-Mich.), and always felt completly comfortable, never ill-at-ease, in Ford's company.

"He's a down-to-earth type person, easy to talk to and not stiff. He has a way of making anyone he's with able to relax," says Kaline. "I have a tremendous amount of respect for him. I think he'll make a very good President."

Ford has been described as "a journeyman player" when he served under coach Harry Kipke at Michigan.

That's not true.

He was a much better-than-average offensive center and defensive linebacker, and even attracted the attention of professional scouts after being chosen MVP on the Michigan team in 1934, his senior year. When I asked him whether he had ever thought of playing pro football, Ford said he has the normal feeling about it. He would've liked to see how well he'd have done, but he never really had a chance because the opportunity to study law and coach boxing at Yalecame along and he took it.

During most of his time at Michigan, Ford toiled in the shadow of Chuck Bernard, an All-America center. Bernard was one of the finest players in the Big Ten so Ford didn't really get to be the team's No. 1 center until his last year.

Ford led the fight

"Minnesota was the national champion that year," says Benny Oosterbaan, Michigan's modern all-time All-America end shadow of Chuck Bernard, an All-America center. Bernard and head coach of the Wolverines for 11 years. "We weren't supposd to have a chance against Minnesota, but our game with them the score was nothing-nothing at half time. We nearly scored twice. We had put up such a great fight and Jerry Ford was the leader of that fight with his tremendous linebacking.

"I was assistant coach and in charge of scouting that year. I remember being so proud of Jerry and all the rest of our players that tears came to my eyes in the dressing room at halftime. Of course, Minnesota swamped us in the second half. Our fellows had simply drained themselves dry."

Oosterbaan, now 68 and retired at Lake Leelenau, Mich., says it's "awesome" for him to realize that a former player with whom he once was associated, and one with whom he still has a cordial relationship, has gone on to become the President of the United States.

"But I'll tell you this much— he's an honest, square-shooting man of excellent character," puts in Oosterbaan.

In the course of researching the late Lyndon Johnson's crack about Ford having played football without his helmet too long, I discovered that Gerald Ford had too much sense to do something like that. He always wore his helmet. I also discovered he has a fine sense of humor, like Al Kaline says, he's easy to talk to, and has a deep sense of fair play.

He has had many chances, now and in the past few months, to second-guess Richard Nixon.

He never did.

He doesn't play the game that way.

Bennie Oosterbaan has Gerald Ford pegged pretty good. He's an honest, square-shooting man.

Sentimental grid fans scavenge old stadium

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — The University of Kentucky lost 227 football games in 48 seasons over 49 years at creaky old Stoll Field-McClean Stadium and the place is finally coming down.

But the 226 victories (and 22 ties) under coaches Fred Murphy, Harry Gamage, C.A. Wynne, A.D. Kirwin, Bernie Shively, Bear Bryant, Blanton Collier, Charlie Bradshaw and John Ray apparently meant something.

People are buying the old chairbacks and the benches where they sat to watch the Wildcats punt, pass, and run, often with their backs to their own goal-line.

"I got about 1,500 board feet of the benches to panel a recreation room in the house I'm building," said Dr. James Wheeler, a Lexington orthopedic surgeon who played tackle under Bryant in the early 1950's.

"I wanted a part of the stadium and my wife liked the idea. The wood is cypress. The university delivered it intact and all I had to do was cut the metal off."

Wheeler's paneling cost a scant dime a linear foot.

Chairbacks are going for $10.

In the stretch

The Western Harness drivers' quarters will be chock full of champions when the sulkies begin rolling again Aug. 22.

Of course, Hall of Famer Joe O'Brien will be on hand to defend his WHR title. But there will be plenty of blue ribbon talent ready to challenge the diminutive teamster.

Jack Bailey soon will be Inglewood bound, wearing the Vernon Downs blue ribbon as the top driver on his tunic. Gene Vallandingham already is at Hollypark, packing a trophy that denotes his victory in the Chicago Downs driving chase.

Gerry Longo has accounted for the Los Alamitos and Bay Meadows titles this year and Steve Desomer is heading south from Sacramento where he reigned as king of the Cal Cap chauffeurs. And past WHR winners Bobby Williams and Jim Dennis also will be on hand.

It all adds up to a real scramble for the 1974 WHR trophy.

Los Alamitos horsemen soon will notice more than a few changes in the neighboring scenery as a result of recent action by the Cypress Planning Commission.

The Commission recently approved conversion of the former home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vessels, Sr. into a new clubhouse for Los Alamitos Country Club. And as a result, the golf course will be arranged so that the first and 18th tees will be located near the new clubhouse.

An addition of 5,000 square feet is planned to the large old house, which was the home of Mrs. Frank Vessels, Sr. until her death. The enlarged facility will serve as a clubhouse, providing locker rooms for both men and women, and will include a coffee shop and restaurant with banquet facilities.

Western Harness officials are expecting a record turnout for the inital Saturday of the upcoming season, August 24. The reason? The Ike and Tina Turner Concert.

Looking at past performances, the expectations are justified. The Turners were on stage when Monticello Raceway, New York recently set a crowd mark.

"It's probably a blessing in disguise. It will help both me and my horses."

The speaker was driver-trainer Gene Vallandingham, the first harness horseman to arrive at Hollywood Park for the 1974 Western Harness Racing season that opens August 22nd.

"I suffered a hairline break in my right arm about three weeks ago in Chicago," Vallandingham explained. "So when I went to the sidelines, so did most of my horses. I figured it was a good time to freshen them up and ship West early. We both needed the rest — me and the horses, and we'll be ready to roll for the Western Harness meeting."

Vallandingham, third behind Joe O'Brien and Jim Dennis in his first WHR season in 1973, has set his sights high for the 1974 season.

"I'd like to win 70 races and keep my perfect streak alive," says the blonde-haired Golden Boy. "I know I can win 70 if I can get some catch drives. Actually, I'd prefer to drive nine a night."

Gene did not miss a program in 1973, driving on all 67 cards. He'll take aim at Jack Williams' record of 112 consecutive programs which he set through the latter of last season, only to have it snapped by a suspension.

Could it be that Tri Jet's record triumph in the historic Whitney Stakes last weekend at Saratoga will set the theme for the upcoming mass invasion of the east by western stakes stars?

Tri Jet, under Laffit Pincay, raced to a 1:47 flat score in the Whitney, knocking the socks of eastern favorite Stop The Music. The Hooper star had posted a brace of wins at both Santa Anita and Hollywood Park.

Hooper's Quaze Quilt earlier had taken a division of the Spa's Test Stakes and now is ready for a meeting with Chris Evert. And in the next several weeks Finalista, La Zanzara, Miss Tokyo and Quack will try the best in the East.

Finalista heads for Philadelphia's Liberty Bell and the $100,000 Hobson on Aug. 17. La Zanzara is slated for a series of late season distaff events in New York.

Miss Tokyo will get a crack at eastern whiz Ruffian in the $50,000 Matron next month at Belmony, while Quack will try the $250,000 Marlboro Cup a few days later. It may be do or die for the western hopefuls.

Russell Valles Key, who turned from the insurance field to become a leader in the harness racing industry, apparently will miss the upcoming Western Harness meet.

The Cypress veteran is still recuperating from his seventh and most serious spill, suffered during the last Los Alamitos session. It's likely that Campbell will handle "Valley's" stock.

Russ is nursing two fractured vertebra, an injured right elbow and a troublesome left wrist. But look for his trotters and pacers to have a good season.

Esteban Medina, the lively "Numero Uno" of past Caliente competition, is back in the headlines . . . The fiery Mexican presently is setting the riding pacer at Spokane's Playfair Course, handling the five-eighths mile in bullring professional fashion . . .

Joe O'Brien and his 23-year-old stepson, Stan Bayless, won Brandywine's second annual father-son driving championship last week . . . It was Bayless, however, that stole the spotlight, winning two races while Joe was held to a single win . . .

Racing Secretary Gary Buxton reports that more than 400 horses already are bedded down at Hollywood Park, awaiting the Western Harness meet . . .

Aaron Jones was among the onlookers as Charlie Whittingham was inducted into racing's Hall of Fame at Saratoga last Tuesday . . .

A list of mares bred to super horse Secretariat was released this week by Claiborne Farm . . . It includes two of the fastest ever to run in the West, Windy's Daughter and Crimson Saint . . .

A roster of Riva Ridge's ratings includes another former western flash, Bold Liz, who beat the boys in Hollypark's Juvenile Championship . . .

Through the first two weeks of the Del Mar meet, attendance showed a three percent decline, while wagering was on a par with '74 . . . This pattern has held for most California meets of late . . . Del Mar officials are hoping to lure Hall of Famer Steve Brooks from the midwest for the Rocking Chair Derby on August 28 . . . Brooks has been galloping horses for trainer Baldy Tinker in recent months . . . Steve guided Citation to millionaire status in the '51 Gold Cup at Hollywood Park.

Vegas hoop clinic set

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Former Cal Poly basketball coach Dan Ayala is inviting cage coaches, players and fans to a clinic here at the Flamingo Hilton Hotel on Sept. 2-3.

Ayala, who is currently serving on Jerry Tarkanian's staff at Nevada Las Vegas, said the clinic will feature Tarkanian, New Mexico coach Norm Ellenberger plus two outstanding high school mentors.

Cost for the lodging and clinic sessions is $42 per person. There will also be special rates for wives to attend.

Additional information is available by writing Ayala at 404 N. Horn St., Las Vegas, Nev. 89107 or by telephoning him at (702) 739-3234 before 6 p.m. or (702) 878-6300 after 6.

X-rays negative on Joe Coleman

DETROIT (UPI) — X-rays taken of Detroit Tigers pitcher Joe Coleman, who was hit on the knee by a line drive during Thursday night's Detroit-Cleveland game, proved to be negative Friday.

Although there was no fracture, Coleman's knee was very sore and a club spokesman said he will not return until the swelling goes down.

Coleman did not accompany the team on a three-game road trip to Texas.

Boat club has motor homes

IRVINE — A fleet of motor homes will be put into use by Newport III Boat Club for the group's planned boating activities as well as for the private enjoyment of members on an individual basis.

Open to public membership, Newport III headquartered in Irvine, Calif., offers a unique concept in boating recreation with an operation similar to tennis, golf and health clubs. Members of Newport III have the use on a reservation basis of several types and sizes of boats for cruising, skiing, fishing, scuba and skin diving, and other water-oriented actvivities.

"Now, with our motor home fleet, we can offer transportation and living accommodations at inland lakes," announced Tom Murphy, co-owner of the recreation club. "We have planned activities to such inland resorts as Lake Mead, Lake Mojave, Mammoth Mountain and Lake Havasu."

Leasing of the recreational vehicles can be arranged by non-members when the motor homes are not in use by the club or its members.

A nominal initiation fee and monthly dues are the requirements for membership in Newport III, based at Traveland, U.S.A , adjacent to the Santa Ana Freeway in Irvine.

Membership in the club enables an individual the use of an entire fleet of boats while eliminating such ownership headaches as maintenance, heavy financial burden, towing, storage, etc.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — When buying something other than clothes as gifts for elderly citizens, a box of favorite foods makes a most welcome gift. Each thing could be wrapped separately. There would be the fun of opening packages. In these days of fixed incomes and high food prices I find this most practical and acceptable. — GERT.

●

DEAR POLLY — Place clogged pot scrubbers and bottle brushes in the dishwasher carefully so they won't clog or jam it, and they'll come out sparkling clean and ready to use. — KATHY.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, % this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — When teaching a young daughter to sew, buy a yard of inexpensive but firm material. On it she can learn to put a hem, insert a zipper, put on hooks and eyes, snaps and buttons. This eliminates the hassle of a first big project where each little thing has to be taught as you go along. The practice material can be passed along to a younger child who will have hours of fun learning how to snap and unsnap, button and work a zipper — and she'll be well on the way to learning how to dress herself. — GINGER.

●

DEAR POLLY — I keep a strip of old inner tube in a kitchen drawer to use under a clamp-on type food grinder. It keeps it from sliding and protects the counter. — SHARON.

●

DEAR POLLY — To keep a long extension cord for a lawn mower or hedge trimmer from knotting, do this: Unplug cord from the appliance, straighten, and then plug together the two ends of the cord before storing. — PHYLLIS.

DEAR POLLY — When traveling it is often difficult or inconvenient to pack liquids (medicines and cosmetic aids). I transfer smaller amounts of many such articles to plastic containers and then place those in others a size larger as an added protection against spilling. — ERMA. (Polly's note — I have found it well worth the small added expense to buy small plastic jars and bottles to use for cold cream, mouth wash, etc., as the difference in weight is considerable.)

●

DEAR POLLY — Many colors of thread often make a problem to find a bobbin to match a spool of thread. Cut plastic straws to about three-inch lengths, then put a spool of thread and its matching bobbin on the same straw. Instant identification! — TAMI.

●

DEAR POLLY — My husband suggested I use one of the new tie patterns to make him ties to match new dresses I make for myself. The ties are beautiful and cause quite a stir at church when he wears one that matches my dress. —ORVALETA.

By ED SULLIVAN

DON'T GO OVER THERE, FERD! YOU'LL MAKE A FOOL OF YOURSELF!

NONSENSE! I'M GONNA TELL GEORGE WILLET WHAT I THINK ABOUT THAT WILD SON OF HIS!

BUT WILLIS APOLOGIZED FOR RUINING YOUR FLOWER BED AND HE'S PAYING FOR IT AS WELL!

I WANT SATISFACTION! GEORGE IS SOFT! HE'LL NEVER PUNISH THAT KID PROPERLY! GOODBY!

WILLIS, WHY DID THE GARBAGE TRUCK EMPTY THE CAN AND LEAVE THE REST OF THIS STUFF?

SEARCH ME! MOST OF IT IS YOURS, AND THEY PROBABLY KNEW YOU'D WANT IT AGAIN IN A WEEK OR SO!

HEY! WHAT'S THE IDEA?! COME ON, LIL, I'M STUCK!

TERRIFIC! I'M GOING IN FOR SOME LEMONADE!

IT IS NOT THE ADULT CLOTHES MOTH THAT EATS HOLES IN OUR WOOLEN CLOTHING. THE ADULT MOTH NEVER EATS. IT LIVES ONLY LONG ENOUGH TO LAY ITS EGGS ON YOUR CLOTHING AND THEN DIES. IT IS WHEN THE YOUNG MOTH IS IN THE CATERPILLAR STAGE THAT ALL THE DAMAGE IS DONE.

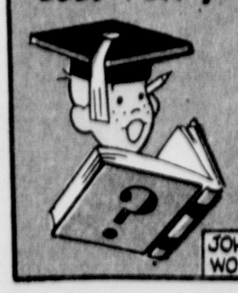
THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

HERBIE SIEKIERSKI OF BLOOMINGTON, IN, ASKS:

"WHAT ARE WATER TOWERS USED FOR?"



SOMETIMES THE WATER WE USE COMES FROM A TALL WATER TOWER. THESE BIG TANKS PROVIDE STORAGE AND HELP KEEP WATER PRESSURE HIGH AT ALL TIMES. GENERALLY, THE PUMPING STATION SENDS WATER THROUGH THE PIPES THAT LEAD TO YOUR HOUSE UNDER ENOUGH PRESSURE TO CARRY IT TO EVERY FAUCET. BUT SOMETIMES THE DEMAND FOR WATER MAY BE TOO GREAT FOR THE PRESSURE A PUMPING STATION CAN SUPPLY. THEN THE WATER MAY ONLY TRICKLE FROM THE FAUCETS. THE WATER IN THE WATER TOWER FLOWS DOWNWARD BY GRAVITY AND PROVIDES THE EXTRA FORCE NEEDED TO PUSH THE WATER TO THE FAUCETS.

Wax Museum—a nostalgic film visit

It Happened in Pomona

By Doc Peirsol

Shortages are old stuff

Sometimes I wonder why we call them the Good Old Days. For one thing, even right here in Pomona, we were experincing the same old shortages then as we are now and wondering what the heck to do about them. Take 1904 as a typical example. That was the year The Pomona Daily Review was complaining:

"The Eastern meat strike may leave us devoid of porterhouse and sirloin, and then what will we do? We have already lost our Tenderloin."

Quite a card that Review editor! But then he went on to describe the real nitty-gritty of the shortage situation.

"A shortage of soap is now a possibility," he informed his readers. "With empty stomachs because of the meat strike, and dirty hands and faces, the outlook is certainly gloomy enough."

But it wasn't only the 1904 meat and soap shortages that were causing Pomonans to shake their heads apprehensively and remark, one to the other, that the government ought to get on the ball and do something to straighten out the economy. They were also having to put up with a honey shortage. In the summer of 1904 The Pomona Daily Review also reported:

"The honey business is the poorest this summer it has ever been. Many of the men who have been in the bee ranching business in Pomona Valley for a long time have given up the occupation for good."

Of course those early Twentieth Century Pomonans didn't have a gasoline shortage to worry about but it may interest you to learn that taking pot shots at this country's oil tycoons was apparently a journalistic pastime just as popular with local newspaper editors in 1904 as it is today. On July 29 The Pomona Daily Review commented:

"John D. Rockefeller has purchased a new set of false teeth. — By the way, did that last can of coal oil cost you more than the previous one??"

Philatelic news

8-cent cycling issue from Canada

Gustav Detjen, Jr.

ING FROM CANADA

Canadian Post Office announced the issue of an 8-cent stamp to commemorate the 1974 World Cycling Championships to be held in Montreal, Canada, from August 14 to 25. The stamp, in red, black and silver, features part of a bicycle wheel and the international cycling logo in miniature. Designed by Burns and Cooper of Toronto, and printed by the British American Bank Note Company of Ottawa, the stamp was issued on August 7th. Collectors interested in obtaining official First Day Covers may do so by writing Philatelic Service philatelique, Postes Canada Post, Ottawa, Canada K1A 0B5. Minimum order is $1.00 and the costs for first-day covers runs as follows: single stamp — 28c, with horizontal pair — 36c, with plain block of four — 52c and with an Inscription Corner Block of four — 52c.

SOUVENIR COLLECTION OF CANADIAN STAMPS

The 1974 Souvenir Collection of Canada's Standard Postage Stamps went on sale as of the last week in July. This Souvenir Collection contains the 1972 High Value Definitives (Vancouver $1 and Quebec City $2), the 1972 Medium Value Definitives (Forests 10c and Oceans 50c) and the 1973-74 series of low value definitive stamps featuring Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II and seven former prime ministers. The stamps contained in this 32 page bilingual booklet are packaged in a cellopack and have a face value of $4.56. The booklet, and a package of stamp mounts, sell for $5.00, from Philatelic Service, Canada Post, Ottawa, Canada, K1A 0B5.

OLD BRIDGE ON AUSTRIA ISSUE

The Austrian Postal and Telegraph Administration has issued another value in their series of postage stamps depicting various Austrian scenes. The new stamp shows the old bridge over the river Inn at the Finstermuenz gorge.

COMMEMORATIVES FROM NETHERLANDS

Cattle, a crab and a lifeboat are shown on three stamps that the Netherlands have issued to mark various anniversaries. One 25c value marks the 100th anniversary of the Netherlands Cattle Herdbook Society. The stamp features the three breeds of cattle that the Society registers, with the design bleeding from stamp to stamp. Another 25c denomination notes the 25th anniversary of the Queen Wilhelmina Fund, which finances research into the causes of cancer and the fight against the disease. To signify the scientific element in cancer research, the crab (symbol of the Fund) that forms the central motif of this stamp is shown under a glass lens. The third of the new commemoratives is a 40c value for the 150th anniversary of two Dutch lifeboat societies. Shown on the multicolored stamp is a lifeboat at sea viewed through a telescope. Collectors can order this new trio of stamps from their local dealer or direct from the Netherlands Post Office Philatelic Service, Prinses Beatrixlaan 11, The Hague, The Netherlands.

NEW ISSUES FROM JAPAN

As the 2nd of the Nature Conservation Series, a postage stamp depicting the Japanese Otter which at one time was found throughout Japan. Only a few now survive in the district of Shikoku and the Japanese Otter has now been designated as a protected animal. A 20 yen commemorative will also be released to mark World Red Cross Blood Donation Year and three 20-yen stamps will feature additional Japanese Folktales, the 4th in the series. Collectors desiring additional information may write Philatelic Agency, Tokyo Central Post Office, Tokyo, 100 Japan.

FOR THE COLLECTOR OF TOPICALS

The American Topical Association, now with 10,000 members, is devoted to the collector of stamps featuring different topics, such as railroads, clocks, Americana, journalists and authors. Published bimonthly is their 100-page journal, TOPICAL TIME, which covers all aspects of topical collecting. ATA's 2nd edition enlarged book "HOW TO COLLECT TOPICALS FOR FUN AND RELAXATION showing prize winning album pages and a sample copy of TOPICAL TIME (a $3.25 value) will be sent for just $1.00 to interested collectors by writing Karl L. Keldenich, P.O. Box 1062-D, Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53201. Details of ATA membership and services are available free for a self-addressed stamped envelope.

New books

By MORT REED

A fabulous new book, "High Profits from Rare Coin Investments" by Q. David Bowers, is now on the market. Filled with facts, figures and other useful information, this 208-page book is available to all who hope to make a profit from their coins.

Q. David Bowers and the staff of Bowers and Ruddy Galleries, tell the secrets of investment success: how they have made fortunes for many of their clients and how you can realize greater profits from the buying and selling of rare coins. The author, writing in a lively and interesting manner, furnishes what may well be one of the most realistic and sensible guides to coin investments ever published.

Drawing on his experience of handling tens of millions of dollars worth of coins, including some of the finest collections ever sold and practically every variety, Bowers gives you information not readily available in other books.

Some Chapters in "High Profits from Rare Coins Investments" are "Introduction to Coin Investments," "Advantages of Coin Investments," "Investing in Gold Coins," and "Investing in Coins of the World."

Supported by charts, illustrations and photographs, this books sells for $3.95 and may be ordered directly from the publishers.: Bowers and Ruddy Galleries, Inc., 6922 Hollywood Boulevard, Los Angeles, Calif. 90028 — Postpaid

Whitman's 1975 28th Edition of "A Guide Book of United States Coins" by R.S. Yeoman has just been released. The annually revised book is the most up-to-date pricing guide on all U.S. coins.

This 256-page hardbound edition marks another milestone in U.S. coinage history and is a most necessary reference for both the experienced and the inexperienced.

Catalina INFORMATION
By Tim Mazur
Long Beach/Catalina Cruises

Did you know that Catalina Island is one of the very few — not the only — place in California where there are phone numbers that cannot be dialed?

"Operator, may I have Avalon 777 please"....a carryover from the old days....in fact, much of Catalina is a carryover from the old days — with fresh sea breezes, too.

In years gone by, virtually all of the boats sailed to Catalina left 9:00 or 10 a.m. and returned last at 4:30 p.m.

Long Beach Catalina Cruises still has its 9 a.m. departure but we have established our late noon return.

And what a year 1975 will be! The year is a 12 noon departure for trip to Catalina, plus evening ends, departures from Catalina to 10:30 p.m.

This has the added convenience of allowing you to sleep a bit on Friday, Saturday and Sunday morning, make your shopping or chores done, before leaving for Catalina in the afternoon, having dinner on the island, and not coming back until the evening.

So far, the response by the public to our afternoon trips has been very good.

Call (213) 775-2651 or (714) 826-2176 now, or mail the coupon today for details about a wonderful trip to unspoiled Catalina Island.

Movie nostalgia time

The Wax Museum: a visit to the past

Remember Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in "Top Hat?" Wallace Berry and Marie Dressler in "Min and Bill?" Lon Chaney in "The Phantom of the Opera?" The Marx Brothers in "Animal Crackers?"

Every day is movie nostalgia time at the Movieland Wax Museum at 7711 Beach Blvd., Buena Park, where startlingly lifelike replicas of scenes and stars from more than 70 motion pictures and television shows have been created in wax.

Story by JOSEPH H. FIRMAN
P-B Staff Writer

Ethel, John and Lionel Barrymore in "Rasputin and the Empress," Maurice Chevalier and Jeanette MacDonald in "The Merry Widow," Charlie Chaplin in "The Gold Rush," Charles Laughton in "The Private Life of Henry VIII"—the list goes on, a pantheon of the film industry.

With eye-opening accuracy of setting and costumes, enhanced by sound, lighting and—in some cases—animation, the Stars' Hall of Fame showcases more than 150 stars from such movie classics as "Singin' in the Rain," "High Noon," "Frankenstein," "Ben Hur," "Gone with the Wind," "The Wizard of Oz" and "The Thin Man."

Not all of the scenes are from old movies. Here are "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," "Doctor Zhivago," "Psycho" and "The King and I," and several television shows—The Beverly Hillbillies, the Lucy Show, That Girl, Laugh-In and Bonanza.

Movieland Wax Museum, owned by Six Flags, Inc., is the brain child of Allen Parkinson who spent much of his youth and youthful allowances in movie theaters. After becoming a successful businessman, he toured Europe and visited Madame Tussaud's world-famous wax museum in London. The idea was born.

The museum was opened with fanfare May 4, 1962, with "America's sweetheart," Mary Pickford, unveiling the dedicatory plaque. It has continued to grow since that day, with new scenes and figures being added by popular request of movie fans. Artists from Hong Kong, Mexico City, Avignon, France, and Hollywood add a few figures each year—each taking almost half a year to complete.

In many cases the stars donate the original costumes—Sophia Loren's dress in "Two Women," an original Cardinali outfit for Marlo Thomas of That Girl, and Jerry Lewis' wardrobe, including glasses and false teeth from "The Nutty Professor."

Lighting, mechanized action and original sound tracks are combined to enhance the movie experience. Trees wave spidery arms in "The Wizard of Oz," and Bela Lugosi attacks a lovely victim in "Dracula" as a coffin creaks open and wolves howl.

Adjoining the wax museum is the Palace of Living Art, which displays 25 three-dimensional reproductions of famous works of art, including 60 life-size figures, plus many marble and plaster reproductions of famous statues.

Admission to the museum ($3.25 for adults, $1.50 for children 4 to 11) includes the Palace of Living Art, so visitors can on one trip see the farm couple of "American Gothic" and Humphrey Bogart and Katharine Hepburn in "African Queen," Whistler's Mother and a scantily clad Brigitte Bardot in "And God Created Woman," Venus de Milo and Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy.

The museum is open every day of the year. Summer hours are 9 a.m. to 11 p.m., Friday and Saturday to midnight.

Judy Garland, as Dorothy, frolics along the yellow brick road in "The Wizard of Oz" with Jack Haley (Tin Woodman), Ray Bolger (Scarecrow) and Bert Lahr (Cowardly Lion).

On a recent visit to Movieland Wax Museum, comic Jerry Lewis checked out his effigy from "The Nutty Professor."

"Is a puzzlement." Yul Brynner in "The King and I."

ON THE COVER

One of the most popular scenes at Movieland Wax Museum in Buena Park is this wax duplication of a moment in the 1939 Academy Award-winning "Gone with the Wind," starring Clark Gable as Rhett Butler and Vivian Leigh as Scarlett O'Hara. Also shown is Hattie McDaniel, who won an Oscar for Best Supporting Actress.

Statement of values saves autobiography

By ROBERT MORSBERGER

A DAY NO PIGS WOULD DIE, by Robert Newton Peck. Dell, $1.25.

Though described as a novel, this is an autobiographical reminiscence of the author's boyhood as the son of a poor Vermont farmer in the 1920s.

(Robert E. Morsberger is professor of English at Cal Poly University.)

The father, Haven Peck, made his living killing, bleeding, and dressing pigs for the farmers of the neighborhood. Because he was illiterate, he was not allowed to vote, and his son got a D in English, his least favorites subject; but the father taught and the son learned integrity and perseverance.

It is easy to believe that Rob Peck's specialty was not book learning; he writes with the prose equivalent of Grandma Moses' primitive paintings, dealing with comparable subject matter.

The family were Shakers, disciplined to plain and simple living; but there is a puzzle here, as Shakers were vowed to celibacy and eventually died out through lack of succession. At any rate, the book extolls family loyalty, self-discipline, and the acceptance of responsibility. In its folksy didacticism it resembles "The Waltons," and it has similar virtues and weaknesses.

There is very little plot — rather a rambling, episodic narrative, tied together mainly by the boy's prize pig, his pet Pinky. The trouble is that Pinky has no real character; compared to the numerous dogs, horses, and assorted wildlife of children's literature, Pinky fails to arouse much interest except in her owner, who goes into repeated raptures over his wonderful pig. All Pinky does, however, is eat and put on weight.

For much of its brief length the book is mildly amusing and occasionally exasperating in its folksy mannerisms, preaching, and sentimentality. But it has a good deal of folk wisdom in its cycles of rural life, and the sentiment is counteracted by the matter-of-fact brutality of death on the farm, where "Dying is dirty business. Like getting born."

In our age of self-indulgence, self-pity, and passing the buck, the novel resurrects the traditional values of responsibility and respect for work well done.

As the father says, "Need is a weak word. Has nothing to do with what people get. Ain't what you need that matters. It's what you do."

Those who disfranchise the illiterate farmer "can't see how I true a beam to build

BOOK REVIEWS

Writing style mars flow of suspense

By MARY BROWN

A HILL OF MANY DREAMS by Richard Llewellyn, Doubleday, $6.95.

(Mary Brown is a Staff Member of the Pomona Public Library.)

Paul Denis, an art dealer trained to be scrupulously honest, allows a few suspicious transactions in his gallery. He is able to convince himself that, since the accompanying paperwork is in order, he can ignore the nibblings of intuition which indicate more investigation would be desirable.

More and more frequently, he finds his once reputable business the agent for paintings and sculptures illegally obtained by members of organized crime.

No longer able to condone the shady dealings to which he has given tacit approval, Denis sells his shop and moves to Israel. There he establishes an art colony in which very talented and unique artists live and work and fulfill their dreams in paint and clay, bronze and marble.

Smoking causes 90% of Lung cancer

Dr. Lamb writes of aging

By VONNE ROBERTSON
P-B Staff Writer

STAY YOUTHFUL AND FIT, A Doctor's Guide, by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., Harper and Row, $10.

As one of the nation's most distinguished physicians who set up the medical examinations for selecting astronauts, Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb is familiar to millions of readers through his syndicated column which appears in many papers, including the Progress-Bulletin.

In his newest book, he has outlined in understandable language the various processes of the body in aging. The book is extremely informative and should help create a better awareness of one's own physical changes.

Chapters in the book deal with the various organs and functions of the body and with the changes occurring during life.

In discussing the heart and the vascular system, Dr. Lamb says the greatest single deterrant to reaching old age in modern industrialized society is heart and vascular disease which causes over half the deaths in this country.

He says the enormous number is even more impressive because death from atherosclerosis of the arteries to the heart was unknown until the beginning of the 20th Century. The incidence has gradually risen in industrialized societies.

Dr. Lamb reports that the increase in fatty deposits in the walls of the coronary arteries, which causes the deaths, rises when a nation has abundant supplies of foods rich in calories and cholesterol and falls when a population's food intake is significantly decreased, such as occurs during wars or famines.

Lung cancer has become more important in recent years, Dr. Lamb states. Deaths from cancer of the respiratory system now represent nearly 10 per cent of the total deaths from cancer. Almost all people (over 90 per cent) who have lung cancer are smokers, the author states.

In discussing the digestive system, Dr. Lamb relates emotional and social problems to the appetite and offers a good analysis of the problems faced by older people who often have to live and eat alone.

Good eating habits have a profound influence on good health, the physician adds.

The book not only outlines the changes in the body as one gets older, but also offers sound advice for keeping fit. Diet problems and their solutions are outlined and reasonable exercises are diagrammed.

For a lay person interested in keeping healthy, the book is a valuable reference. It would make a good addition to libraries in churches, recreation centers, health agencies and schools.

Len Vaccaro, owner of the business, removes an automatic transmission from a customer's car.

Transmission specialists

Danny Pacheco examines a valve body.

The automatic transmission, like the internal combustion engine to which it is connected, seems like a wonderful, energy-saving invention until something goes wrong with it.

Then it is a pain in the neck.

Every car owner is familiar with the problems, delays and expenses involved in having the internal combustion engine and its parts repaired. Many motorists have had the experience of taking a car in for repairs, receiving an estimate of the cost, and eventually paying a bill much higher than the original estimate because of unexpected problems.

That experience, according to Al Rossi, a transmission repairmen with 10 years' experience in the valley, is something that his customers do not have to worry about.

Transmission Specialists at 307 W. Holt Blvd., Pomona, has a set rate for all of the work which its repairmen do. An overhaul of the automatic transmission of an American car costs $169.50 at Transmission Specialists, not including the tax and the price of oil. With tax and a charge for oil included, the total cost of a transmission overhaul is $184.

Rossi, the manager and salesman for Transmission Specialists, points out that the basic charge for a transmission overhaul at many other garages is more than $200 and often goes as high as $275.

The most common problem with automatic transmissions results from overheating, according to Rossi. An overheated automatic transmission will begin slipping from one gear to another, to the surprise and consternation of the motorist.

In an overheated transmission the rubber parts become brittle and the friction plates and bands begin to flake. This flaking requires an overhaul.

At Transmission Specialists an overhaul usually takes one full day. The repair shop does not have a loaner car for its customers, but it does give a written one-year guarantee on all of its work.

Three repairmen, each with more than 10 years' experience in transmission repair work, are employed at Transmission Specialists. Len Vaccaro is the owner of the business. Al Rossi, formerly the proprietor of A & A Rossi Transmissions, is manager of the business, and Danny Pacheco is a full-time repairman.

Rossi and Vaccaro came to Southern California from upstate New York. Pacheco is a native of this region.

"We won't raise our price after the customer brings his car in here," Rossi promises, noting that most of their customers come to them because of word-of-mouth recommendation.

Doobie Brothers

Rock group overcomes stadium acoustics

By BRUCE MEYER

It's a shame that so much of the best rock 'n' roll going down these days is ruined by the abominable acoustics of the immense barns the top bands are forced —by the sheer size of their followings —to play in. But as long as rock remains popular enough to draw audiences of 20,000 and more, I suppose we'll have to live with it.

The situation was brought to mind recently at a Doobie Brothers concert. It was easy to see —even feel—how hard the band was working, and the audience responded well. But the cavernous indoor stadium overcame even the electronic wizardry of the Doobies' awesome new PA system. Thousands of watts pumped through stacks of speakers ten feet high, but Tiran Porter's bass line was reduced to a distant rolling thunder while the interplay of guitar riffs and percussion that is the Doobies' trademark was lost in a muddle of echoes.

The fact that it was still an enjoyable evening is a tribute to the band's musicianship and professionalism.

When the Doobie Brothers' first album was released in 1971, I suggested that they were a band to watch. Then, as now, lead singer and guitarist Tom Johnston was particularly impressive, with his mellow voice and tightly syncopated guitar style —though the Doobies have never been a one-man show.

In those three years, they have more than exceeded my expectations, becoming one of the most popular bands in the country.

Their music has slowly evolved, retaining most of the delicate strength of their debut effort but expanding in both scope and complexity. They have had major singles hits in a variety of styles, from hard rock ("China Grove") to quasireligous ("Jesus Is Just Alright").

The Doobies' latest album, "What Were Once Vices Are Now Habits" (Warners W2750), is no startling change, simply another evolutionary step in their varied rock style.

Doobie guitarist Pat Simmons:

"We're getting into more kinds of music...becoming hipper to our own original influences —Latin music, soul, country and so on. When we first started out, the easiest thing to do was just hard rock 'n' roll and blues type things. But I'd played country music and folk-blues and Tom had done soul and Latin music, so we can draw on those things.

"'Long Train Running' is a good example of a tune that combined a lot of influences. My picking is more or less country-blues, but the riff that Tom's laying down is really a rhythmical soul-type; we combined the two with Latin percussion —and it worked."

And that's a fair description of the Doobie Brothers as well: they work. They are rarely stunning, but always to be counted on for a showing that'll keep the crowds coming back for more.

Ahead for the Doobies: another album, due out some time after Christmas, including some long-awaited writing efforts from Tiran Porter. Plus as many more live dates as they can cram into an already filled calendar.

CONNIE STEVENS, former star of TV's Hawaiian Eye and "The Star-Spangled Girl" on Broadway, leads a Las Vegas-type revue in the Showcase Theater of Magic Mountain, Valencia, at 8 and 10 p.m. through Sunday.

Away from it all

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Hikers in the southern Argentine mountain resort area of Bariloche will find scores of well-marked trails that can put them several hours, or days from the nearest civilization.

The most popular trails are dotted with "refugios" or cabins for overnight stays.

'Father's Day' set for Hartford re-run

"Father's Day," the Oliver Hailey comedy that recently completed a four-week engagement at the Huntington Hartford Theater in Hollywood, will return for a five-week run Sept. 18.

Unable to extend the original engagement due to the theater's commitment to present Eugene O'Neill's "Hughie," starring Ben Gazzara (now through Aug. 31), the almost immediate return of "Father's Day" thereafter is unprecedented in the history of the Hartford.

The original company which starred Carole Cook and Barbara Rush and featured Gwynne Gilford, Paul Kent, Jordan Rhodes and Tom Troupe will all be returning, with Troupe again handling the direction. Miss Rush will again co-produce in association with James Doolittle.

Opening July 10 with one of the lowest advance sales in the history of the Hartford, the play was acclaimed by the Los Angeles critics, propelling it to sell-out houses the final two weeks of the engagement.

Prior to the return engagement, "Father's Day" will play the Arlington Park Theater in Chicago under the auspices of managing director David Lonn, Aug. 15 through Sept. 15.

ROGER MILLER, winner of 11 Grammy Awards, will perform on the fifth annual "Show of the World" at the Forum in Inglewood Sept. 28. The star-studded program is a benefit for the Permanent Charities Committee of the Entertainment Industries.

our barn, or see that the rows of corn in my field are straight as fences. . . . They'll not care that I own no debt, and that I am beholding to no man."

Though they have no money, the father insists that the family are rich in the things that matter, and that there is no higher calling than farming.

During the final winter, with Pinky barren, the crops bad, and game gone, they have to butcher the pet pig. Rob does not think he can, but his father answers, "That ain't the issue, Rob. We have to . . . . That's what being a man is all about, boy. It's just doing what's got to be done." Thus when the father dies and is buried on a day no pig would die, the son is able to carry on.

Peck's book succeeds better as a sermon than as novel. Its characters and narrative are less than compelling, but it rises to eloquence in its statement of values.

More about Writing

However, the tale switches back and forth between New York and Israel, past and present, and conveys neither the suspense of mobsters insinuating themselves into a respected business nor the excitement of a man seeing his vision become reality.

In addition, author Llewellyn chose a terse style of fragmented sentences, incomplete thoughts, and conversations bereft of quotation marks which could be effective in a play or movie but is not well suited to the medium of the printed word.

In terms of plot development, character study, and imagery, "A Hill of Many Dreams" is a compilation of many yawns.

Marshall biography an 'expansive work'

By HYMAN J. BRADOFSKY

JOHN MARSHALL, A Life In Law. By Leonard Baker. Macmillan Publishing, $17.50.

Soldier, attorney, biographer, legislator, diplomat, land speculator, husband, father, and jurist. These and many more were the myriad roles of John Marshall, the fourth Chief Justice of the United States who presided over that august body of legal servants from 1801 through 1835, spanning the post-Revolution to the Ante-Bellum periods.

(Hyman J. Bradofsky is special counsel to the Pomona City Attorney.)

Leonard Baker has given the world an expansive work wherein he united the disparate facets of Marshall's life and career to form a titillating and delightsome reading excursion. The style is gentle to the mind, the content stimulating, and chronologically well ordered.

Here there is something for all. The account of this notable person of American constitutional law and jurisprudence is cast in a format which will appeal to the general reading public.

However, this volume is thoroughly researched. Baker is entitled to kudos for his efforts; the publisher, and engravers are entitled to credit for the illustrations which enhance the book and the overall fine quality of the printing.

Baker's effort is a definitive one which should be widely read.

The author paints a Chief Justice of even temper, uncomplaining, and encouraging to others. His was that rare quality of being able to elicit the best from those about him.

Although a rather unassuming man who led an almost mundane personal life viewed against the wealth and scandal ridden existence of many great men, Marshall's intestinal fortitude was of Herculean proportion, a fact well documented in accounts of his work at the Bar, and particularly in his handling of the controversial and significant decisions he wrote from the Supreme Court.

It is fitting that the regimental flag of the Culpeper Minutemen of Virginia in which he served as a Lieutenant in the Revolutionary War bore the coiled rattlesnake emblem, and that historical admonition of the free and independent American spirit, "don't tread on me." This rightly characterized his profound, and unlaterable commitment to resist encroachments on individual freedom and independence.

Marshall's little known romantic side appears among these glimpses. His personal papers describe a man keenly appreciative of feminine charms, and very much enamored of his wife. When apart, as the Marshall's frequently were by reason of his legal work, he wrote to Polly numerous and lengthy love letters, bordering on the poetic at times. When only 14, Polly set her cap for John, according to the accounts, and their love bloomed early. It did not fade even under the stress of rearing ten children.

Chiefly through land speculation, Marshall became affluent though not rich. He enjoyed athletics, and quoits, a game played with stone discs which are hurled at a goal post termed a "hob." The Chief Justice delighted in robust food, and a modicum of libation, surrounded by a generous portion of stimulating dinner conversation.

He and his colleagues from the Bar regularly spent an evening thusly engaged in discussion of government, law, and politics. These talk-feasts were closed to the ladies, however, as were the Saturday afternoon barbecues held near Richmond during the summer months where Marshall and local clerics, physicians, and others of the professional and business community gathered for quoits and satisfying viands.

We are indebted to Marshall for the original biography of General George Washington. But this was not a vain monument to the man whom Marshall idolized. That it remains a source of material about Washington's life and times is a notable tribute to the Chief Justice.

Facets of the Chief Justice's life not commonly in the public view are elaborated by Baker. His diplomatic mission to Europe as an American representative in the XYZ affair, for example, drew considerable public and official acclaim in then contemporary America. Marshall's accomplishments in the legislative halls of Virginia, Congress, law, as an acting United States attorney, and as Chief Justice are presented with color, and verity.

The arcadian frontier milieu in which Marshall grew to manhood infused him with physical stamina, and sturdy self reliance as well as an abiding regard for man's independence. Although exposed to much less formal education than Jefferson and Madison, he received two years of tutoring which was far more schooling than that of his close associates. By age 19 he had read Blackstone's "Commentaries on the Laws of England," the major legal treatise available to lawyers west of London at that time. Of greater importance than the extent of his formal academic preparation was the mental ability, perspicacity, and high regard for knowledge which he brought to his studies, and life's work. His father, Thomas Marshall, early imparted to John a sense of value of learning. He convinced all 15 of the Marshall progeny that education was the tool which would enable them to make their way and wrest their fortune from the land. John took this to heart, and applied it assiduously.

The citizens of Marshall's Virginia relied heavily upon judges to define and protect their rights under the law, and to insure justice and the realization of those rights in litigation. Early on, Marshall understood that in the American system of the rule of law where the law and not men control actions and sets limits upon man's activities, an independent judiciary to expound the law was imperative. This compelling need encompassed the law relating to relationships between individuals, and between man and his government. Marshall viewed law as the mechanism for harmonizing all of man's relationships for the mutual benefit of all persons.

Law as understood by Marshall is not a static but an evolving process—ever growing, and changing, building upon the principle of decency among people. While enduring the severe cold and deprivation of food, shelter and supplies at Valley Forge with Washington's troops as a young officer, Marshall perceived an urgent need for a strong union. The starvation, cold, and other hazards faced by him and his fellow soldiers he felt were unnecessary, and could have been prevented by a coordinated, strong central government responsive to the needs of its various bodies.

Food and supplies were available in the nearby States, but the loosely knit structure of the Federation of States proved incapable of meeting the General's requests for basic supplies. The ultimate concern of the new Nation and its people's well being depended upon and was inextricably intertwined with a vigrorous Union with a centralized government. His subsequent decisions as Chief Justice articulated this philosophy.

Writing as the Chief Justice of the United States during his tenure of 34 years, Marshall implemented this approach through decisions interpretating and applying the U.S. Constitution.

As enunciated from the bench in his truly meaningful prose, he established 1) principles of judicial review, 2) supremacy of the Union over the States, 3) sanctity of contracts, 4) regard for procedural due process in criminal matters, and 5) protection of individuals and corporate rights from arbitrary government invasion.

Through his decisions Marshall laid the ground work for other decisions and interpretations to come in the future. Clearly, Marshall realized the power of the court, and its potential for shaping the course of personal and national affairs and commerce. Moreover, he utilized this fulcrum fearlessly.

Marshall inscribed a legacy for Americans of all generations hence. He set in motion an on-going process of evolutionary expansion, redefination and interpretation which will never become stale; the heart of its capacity to effectively deal with challenges as yet unspoken.

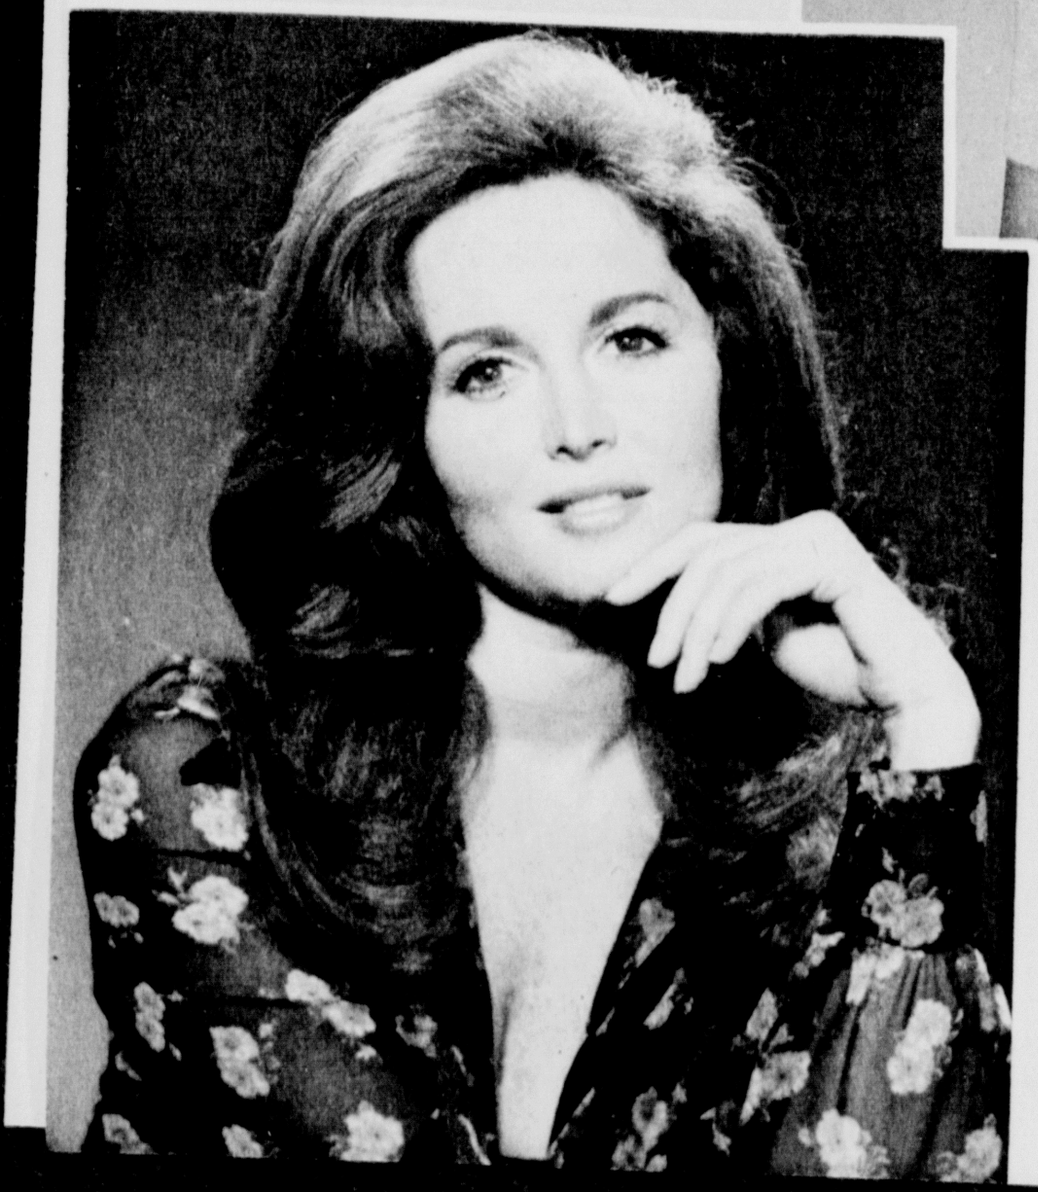
Blonde Mary Denham, Margo Stewart on NBC's daytime drama series The Doctors, hails originally from Northampton, England. Mary came to the United States at 18, following her marriage to an American; she is now an American citizen. Mary, who says she has been acting "since I was old enough to walk," did a great many children's roles in England and also acted in repertory theater productions ranging from Shakespearean plays to "Joe Egg." Arriving in America, the actress followed a friend's suggestion that she begin modeling. "It's a good way to earn money and I needed to help out while my husband was in law school."

Mary, who still models whenever she gets the time, has appeared on the covers of most of the leading fashion, homemaking and bride's magazines. "Theater, though, was my prime love all along and modeling only a temporary career," she said. She appeared with Jack Gilford in the Woody Allen comedy "Play It Again, Sam," in regional theater in Connecticut, and off-Broadway in "The New Step" and "The Real Inspector Hound."



Maggie Simmons, the young red-headed farm girl on crutches on NBC's Days of Our Lives, is played by Suzanne Rogers, former Rockette and stage actress. Suzanne, a product of dancing schools in her native Colonial Heights, Va., became a Rockette at 17. That made her, at that time, the youngest girl ever to perform in the famed Radio City Music Hall chorus line. After a few months, though, she vowed she would never become the oldest. Suzanne re-routed her ambitions to the musical comedy stage and landed a part in the musical, "110 in the Shade." She went from "Shade" to "Funny Girl" (on tour) to "Hallelujah Baby" to "Coco," in which she played the featured role of Noel, a young model from a poor family. Next stop, "Follies," in which she also appeared on tour. During the Los Angeles engagement of the show, she played the role of Phyllis Rogers Stone as a young girl; Alexis Smith played the mature Phyllis.

How Well Do You Know the Dark World of Dreams?

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen: An "Unknown" Texan Eyes the White House

By Hugh O'Brian: "How a Week in Deepest Africa Changed My Life Forever"

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR BURT BACHARACH

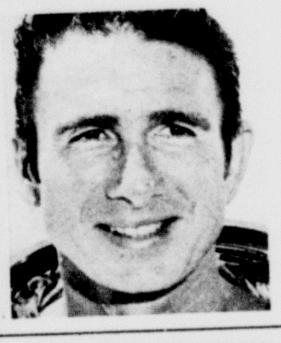
Do you ever worry about losing your touch as a composer?—M. Reilly, Winnetka, Ill.

● Yes, as a matter of fact, I do. I'm doing well now, but my song-writing talent might run dry one of these days, and I want to have something to fall back on. For the past few years, I've wondered what kind of business I should enter. My profession, which puts me on the road a great deal, involves eating out a lot. So I thought it would be a good idea to invest in some restaurants. Right now I have two, on Long Island in New York. And I recently built a motel next to one of them.

FOR ROSEY GRIER

I read that you prefer needlepoint work to poker. Is that true?—M. T., Visalia, Calif.

● I usually combine the two. While I'm waiting for my buddies to play, I do needlepoint. They used to get mad because they said I delayed the game. Actually, it gave me time to think. When they figured this out, and saw the good hands I was getting, some of them started doing needlepoint too.



FOR JAMES B. IRWIN, former astronaut

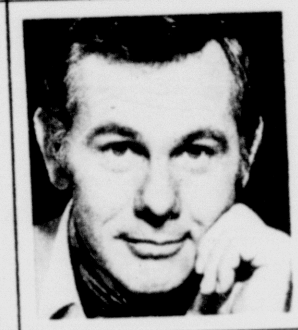
Did your trip to the moon have something to do with your decision to start the High Flight Foundation, the religious organization to which you are now dedicating all your efforts?—John Dailey, Austin, Texas

● Yes. After my journey to the moon I believed I heard God saying to me, "I have taken you this far, Jim. Now I want you to go farther." I interpreted that to mean I should go farther toward heaven in a spiritual way.

FOR CATHY RIGBY, gymnast

I have often heard that after using parallel bars, etc., you became as strong as a bull. True?—Susan Marsh, Albany, N.Y.

● Heaven forbid! A small calf maybe, but I'd prefer not to be likened to a bull!



FOR JOHNNY CARSON

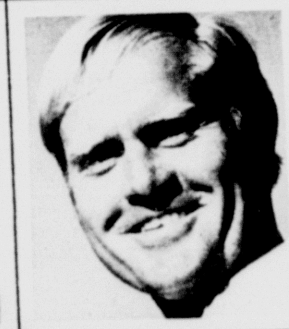
How much of your monologue is memorized and how much is ad-libbed?—Alan Brown, Steens, Miss.

● I have no script on the "Tonight" show, so my monologue is all ad lib in that sense. Actually I prepare it just before going on the air and have it in my head when I appear on camera.

FOR JACK LORD

Why do you think "Hawaii Five-O" has managed to stay on top so long?—J. Steed, Van Nuys, Calif.

● We're going into our eighth year because of a combination of things: the caring of the creator-producer Leonard Freeman, who died recently; the caring of myself, who had to take over many of the functions Leonard performed; plus the fact that we're 3,000 miles away from the network and have greater autonomy to do the things we want.



FOR JACK NICKLAUS, pro golfer

Arnold Palmer seems to be having a problem with his game. Have you tried to help him?—Don Miller, Chicago, Ill.

● Arnie's problem is mental. He has it fixed in his mind that he's having trouble. We all go through that, but Arnie is going through it longer.

FOR RONA JAFFE

Why haven't you ever married?—Becky Weldon, Clearwater, Fla.

● It's surprisingly simple. I didn't love any of the men who asked me to marry them; and the ones I loved never asked. I'm still old-fashioned enough to believe that without love there's no reason to get married.

FOR CHER BONO

Are your fingernails natural or artificial?—Monica Wenner, Nicollet, Minn.

● They're real. Keeping them is not easy—I have to be very careful. I really don't take any special vitamin or apply any special treatment. I'm just careful how I use my hands.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

I know Vanessa Redgrave is politically active, but what about her sister Lynn?—N. M., Coos Bay, Ore.

● Lynn Redgrave doesn't have any political leanings or ambitions, and the fact that her sister does has no effect on their relationship. The two sisters are very close and, according to Lynn, when they meet and talk, there is so much else to discuss—such as their respective acting careers—that they ignore the political scene. Also, they feel it's wise to keep off a subject that might result in an argument. By the way, Vanessa ran for Parliament in the recent British election—and was beaten very badly.

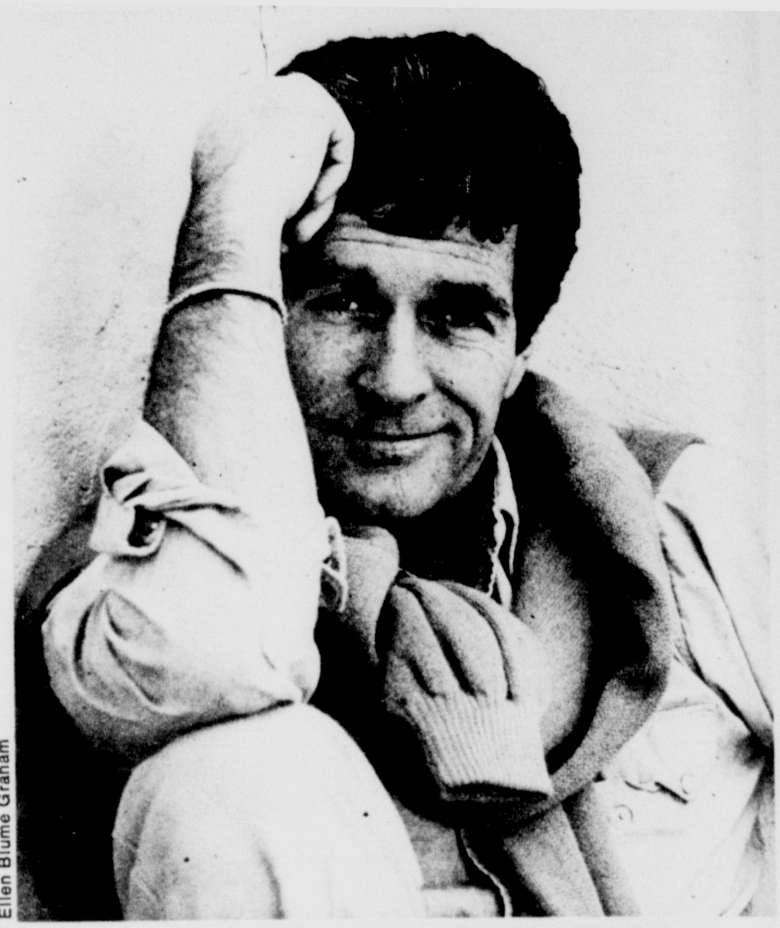
Hugh O'Brian:

How a Week in Deepest Africa Changed My Life Forever



Ellen Blume Graham

"Dr. Schweitzer convinced me that I should put something back into the profession that gave me so much."

By Hugh O'Brian

One lazy Sunday afternoon back in 1957, I read an article in "The Saturday Review" written by Dr. Albert Schweitzer. It so impressed me that I wrote him to ask if I could visit him in Africa. About three weeks later I got a cable inviting "Dr. O'Brian and party." I don't know what made him assume I was a doctor, but I wasn't about to knock the only chance I thought I might have to see the famous humanitarian.

A short time later I landed in Douala, Africa, where I was met by a German doctor wearing a pith helmet. He took me on a short flight in a single-engine plane to a grassy airstrip near Lambarene, where we transferred to a native dugout canoe. From there, in tropical heat that reached 115 degrees, we paddled upriver. Besides the doctor and myself, there were six oarsmen, all wearing bandages on various parts of their bodies. They were lepers who contributed their efforts to repay Dr. Schweitzer for treating them.

We had to paddle upstream about a mile past the clinic, which was on the other side. Then we cut across the river, paddling like mad against the current. As we approached the hospital, I could see an old man in a white outfit moving slowly and deliberately down the hill. It was Dr. Schweitzer.

The next week was the most impressive of my life. I ate every meal with Dr. Schweitzer and his staff in the combination recreation hall-dining room. After each evening meal, Dr. Schweitzer and I spent an hour or more talking.

The first night, after he talked about half an hour, he was very tired. No wonder. He'd gotten up at six o'clock in the morning, as he did every day. I told him that I feared I was taking too much of his time and suggested we continue our discussion the next morning. Dr. Schweitzer said, "Nein," and then added, "I am very old and you are very young. You have lots of time left. I don't."

What impressed me most, and what influenced me so much, was the Doctor's total preoccupation with his work, his lack of interest in any luxury, his passion for people and his ability to make the most out of every moment of the day. His appreciation of time itself was fantastic.

Most people who are in show business, actors in particular, are involved in charities and give many hours of time. They do benefits, give money, lend their names. But because most charities have large national offices, there is often something impersonal about them. After watching Dr. Schweitzer I decided I wanted to create something for which I was solely responsible, some worthwhile project that depended on my energy. It was the Doctor's preoccupation with youth that spawned the idea that eventually led to the Hugh O'Brian Foundation, which is dedicated to seeking out, stimulating and rewarding the leadership potential in young people.

Every year I sponsor a leadership seminar attended by about 70 boys and girls, at least one from each state, plus ten from outside the U.S. [Editor's note: Except for occasional and irregular contributions from others, Hugh O'Brian pays for this himself. All high school sophomores are eligible. The final selection is made by the National Association of Secondary School Principals in association with the United States Jaycees. For further information, write the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation, c/o United States Jaycees, Box 7, Tulsa, Okla.]

"Since I met Dr. Schweitzer I have become more aware of the soul, of the force called God, of a life-giving energy. It is hard to describe, but religion means more to me now than before."

There is always a different theme to these weeklong seminars. In 1968, for instance, it was to teach the basic principles of the democratic process. Half of the boys and girls went to the Democratic convention in Chicago. The other half to the Republican convention in Miami. In 1969 they attended a seminar on oceanography in Miami. From 1970 to '73 they went to Cape Kennedy to learn about space. In 1974 it was a leadership seminar on government, held in Washington, D.C.

Dr. Schweitzer, who gave up a lucrative practice when he went to Africa, and who inspired other doctors and nurses to do the same, also convinced me that I should put something back into the profession that gave me so much. That's why I started the yearly acting awards at UCLA.

These are but a couple of the more easily described results of my pilgrimage to Dr. Schweitzer. There were other benefits.

When I first became successful in Hollywood, it was easy to be part of the "Hollywood scene"—big house, expensive cars, the works. After I came back from Africa I began to see that I could live comfortably without being a status symbol. Today I am satisfied with my 1963 convertible. I have a house that is comfortable, but not exactly luxurious. I have a part-time housekeeper and a secretary who comes in when I need her.

"Time," Dr. Schweitzer said, "is the gift of life. Use it carefully." I suddenly found more time for my aunts, who were getting older, for my brother and his family. I spent more time alone. I haven't exactly become a hermit, but where at one time I couldn't appreciate an evening without a girl—when a relationship was meaningless unless it was physical—I now see a lot of girls who are just good friends.

Even my attitude toward marriage has changed. If I had not met Dr. Schweitzer, if I had not learned how devoted he and his wife were to each other, I would probably have gotten married a long time ago and just as probably would have divorced not once, but maybe several times. Now I realize what a marriage is really meant to be, and I am determined not to make that permanent commitment unless I find a woman without whom I simply can't live. That's the kind of companionship I'm still looking for and still believe I will find. So if I haven't made a girl happy by now, at least I haven't made a girl unhappy either. I think that is some kind of achievement.

Dr. Schweitzer's religion has left a mark on me, too. As a child I used to go to church regularly, but I enjoyed it mostly because of the association with my parents and with other kids. It was a social sort of thing. Since I met Dr. Schweitzer I have become more aware of the soul, of the force called God, of a life-giving energy. It is hard to describe, but religion means more to me now than before.

When I stepped into the dugout canoe for the trip back downriver, Dr. Schweitzer came to the water's edge. His last advice to me was that I should do whatever I could to motivate young people; to try to do whatever I could as an individual, no matter how small, because he firmly believed that individuals could eventually move mountains.

He certainly proved it.

AT LAST! A DOCTOR WHO SAYS:

Take Food, Not Medicine, If You Suffer from Any One of These Ills!

"Why do I avoid prescribing drugs?", says this brilliant and controversial physician, who has cured literally thousands of patients with nothing more than ordinary food alone!
"For these four vital reasons"—

1. Because drugs do not produce health. They merely mask the symptoms of a disease . . . cover up the condition, while the body struggles on valiantly to cure itself.

2. This is the reason why so many men and women, of all ages, no sooner fight their way out of one ailment, than they fall right into another. Why they are always "half-sick". Why they never really know what it means to be completely free of pain, in glowing health. Because they, and their doctors, do nothing more than merely fight off each new attack, and never drain out the poison that is left from that attack, or rebuild the vital weakened tissue before it can fall prey to a new disease!

It Is "Tissue Weakness" That Opens The Door To One New Disease After Another! And NO Drug—Only Food—Can Build REAL TISSUE STRENGTH Again!

3. The lasting way to fight disease, then, is not just to counter-attack each new symptom in its turn . . . but to build such sheer physical strength into each threatened cell of your body that the organism that causes that disease is either destroyed, or rendered harmless, the very instant it enters your body!

4. This is done in two ways: First, to use a medical-diet to drain out the poisons that make your body weak today. And, finally, to use a second, even more powerful medical-diet to pour Super-Nutrients—Nature's own medicines—into every crippled organ of that body . . . not only to force out that specific disease, as fast as humanly possible, but also to leave that organ perhaps even healthier than before it was first attacked!
For example—

See How This NATURAL Method Has Worked— In Thousands Of Case Histories, From Every Walk Of Life, And With Almost Every Ailment You Can Imagine!

We shall let Dr. Nittler's patients speak for themselves:
"When I came to you I suffered from swelling and tingling of extremities, almost constant hunger, periodic weakness, great sensitivity to glare and loud noise . . . Since becoming your patient I find myself energetic and alert until nearly midnight, awake fully by 7:30 or 8 each morning, in good spirits, not sluggish, and continuing throughout the day glad to be alive, performing challenging tasks!"

"Before I became your patient, I had visited several skin specialists hoping to find help in the removal of what appeared to be growths on my face. Biopsies were taken; result negative. I asked how to get rid of these growths; how to prevent their growing back. I received a shrug of the specialist's shoulder (later, his bill!); he didn't know! Dr. Nittler took one look at the area involved and prescribed (natural) medication for external application which within one week's time cleared up the difficulty. It has not returned."

And Still More Thrilling Results! All Told In The Patient's Own Documented Words!

"However, on Easter Sunday, March 29, 1970, I suffered not only another occlusion, but an acute cardiac arrest. This was preceded by three days of intense weariness, fatigue and restlessness . . . Only extreme good luck made it possible for me to write these words . . . They (his regular physicians) believed open heart surgery to be the only hope for giving me a normal life span . . . It was at this point that I was referred to Dr. Nittler . . . after his initial examination and after reviewing my medical history . . . he started me on his "basic heart program" . . . Within weeks, I noticed great improvement . . . an increased surge of well-being with each passing week. My family doctor continues to monitor my case. He cannot, at this point, rule out the open heart surgery recommended by his peers, but he is honest enough to admit I've shown great improvement. He says my heart is beating more slowly and stronger and that everything sounds good. My laboratory tests are all normal . . . I'm looking forward to returning to work and a normal productive life."

"I've been subject to asthma all my life. It would come with a cold or when I laughed or exercised too hard. The situation became dramatically worse when we moved to Santa Cruz in 1966. For some reason I'd catch a cold every four to six weeks . . . Only when I got it, it would go to my chest, develop into asthma, and I could hardly breathe. I was fed up with being sick and tired all the time . . . So I went through Dr. Nittler's whole program . . . Now (1971) the few colds I catch are very mild. I can't even remember the last time I had asthma with or without a cold!"

"In the latter part of November past, I broke out in an allergic dermatitis—severe hives . . . in addition to the hives, I would get a severe pain in an area above the right kidney . . . It was an acute shattering pain that immobilized me. I was next given cortisone. After 24 hours this would lessen the severity of both hives and pain. As long as I continued with cortisone . . . I was fine, but when I stopped, severe hives and pain recurred. Then back to cortisone for four or five days, followed by hives and pain. I seesawed back and forth in this manner for several weeks . . . A friend of mine gave me Dr. Nittler's phone number and begged me to call him. . . . Then on the tenth day under Dr. Nittler's care, something wonderful (to me, a miracle) happened—I was free of my ailments! A staggering weight had been lifted from both my shoulders and my wife's . . . Now I am in the thirteenth month after the doctor's care, enjoying the best of health and feeling great."

And Literally Thousands Upon Thousands Of Case Histories More! ALL STEMMING FROM NATURAL "SUPER-FOOD" TECHNIQUES LIKE THESE, THAT YOU CAN USE TOMORROW IN YOUR OWN HOME!

Again, to list only a few examples of the specific, step-by-step "Super-Food" Treatments given you in this great book:

Home treatment for constipation that works through your skin, and removes internal poisons, painlessly and automatically, at the same time it restores normal functions.

How to increase the blood flow (and therefore the life-giving oxygen) not only to your heart tissues, but your entire circulatory system. (As just one side-benefit of this new, natural therapy, cold feet simply feel warm and good again!) This process automatically lowers the work load of your heart, and your lungs, and so, as another marvelous side-benefit, almost immediately diminishes the ever-increasing shortness of breath that plagues most people!

How to get rapid relief from gallbladder pain. A treatment that also may enable you to actually, painlessly pass a stone or two (and get rid of them for good). And, at the same time, stimulate the flow of bile from your liver, and begin simultaneously stomach-healing food-therapy.

Why hemorrhoids do not have to be endured any longer! A simple capsule that may yield apparent benefits in a day or two, with restoration of normal function and comfort in a few weeks, just as it has in case after case in Dr. Nittler's own files!

How to keep from being poisoned by commercial food sprays. This method simply removes the spray from fruits and vegetables—in minutes!

A new way to brush your teeth that costs nothing. And that greatly increases your powers of digestion!

How, if you suffer from an acute illness, you can actually feed your body healing food-ingredients through the skin. That go to work to help you, in seconds!

How to cut down overproduction of stomach acid almost immediately, without taking a thing!

Liver Detoxification! Follow These Simple Rules, AND PAIN-CAUSING POISONS LITERALLY POUR OUT OF YOUR BODY!

The best and most ancient method of healing wounds. (Animals do this instinctively. But we've forgotten it.)

A do-it-yourself prostate massage that involves only a simple motion with the legs and soles of your feet . . . plus a little-known and delicious food that greatly aids in the normal function of this important gland.

What to do for repeated violent pains in the chest (called Intercostal Neuralgia, and often mistaken for heart trouble or even attack). How to tell the difference at once. And then use a simple natural spray that relieves this torturous pain in minutes, for hours!

The inexpensive food that has fantastic results with cold, and even flu! As Dr. Nittler says: "This remedy alone cures many cases of flu."

Why Dr. Nittler dares to say: "I have known very severe long-standing cases (of Athlete's Foot) respond dramatically after one application"!

And why he also says: "I have seen a deep nasty boil on a cheek drain through the skin in one night with the use of this (natural food product). The infection was on the pad, there was no infection left in the boil and no wound visible."

PLUS: emergency treatments for burns that prevent scarring . . . a simple remedy for poison ivy that works . . . how to melt away warts (and even some brown spots) . . . a non-prescription product (as are all the other remedies given here) that has a wonderful healing effect of the mucous membranes of the intestinal tract . . . home remedies for internal parasites . . . what you must do, at once, for diarrhea . . . how Dr. Nittler treats ulcers . . . how to rebuild weak stomachs, without aggravating them . . . how to break fever in emergencies, especially in children . . . the tested routine to follow for any virus infection . . . strength-foods for every part of the body . . . how your body can build up its own reserve supply of nutrients to fortify its natural resistance in terms of stress or epidemic . . . weight-reducing without tears . . . the most effective treatment ever invented for hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) . . . and much, much more!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Allan H. Nittler, M.D., received his diploma in medicine almost thirty years ago from the University of Cincinnati . . . has been associated since then with both the United States Army and the San Francisco City and County Hospital. He was one of the first physicians to recognize the need for vitamins in medical therapy and the radical difference in effect between synthetic and organic vitamins in therapeutic dosage. He is a frequent contributor to various magazines and journals, and is recognized today as one of the leaders of the new medical science of preventive nutrition as a major factor against both fatigue and disease.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Do You Understand the Dark World Of Dreams?

True or False: Women's dreams differ appreciably from men's dreams. (See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If most of your dreams are unpleasant, it's a sign you're neurotic.

2. Daytime dreams – such as those occurring during an afternoon nap–tend to be entirely different from nighttime dreams.

3. The younger you are the more you dream.

4. Women's dreams differ appreciably from men's dreams.

5. It's perfectly normal to have nightmares.

6. If you really want to know what you have dreamed, you must record it as soon as you wake up.

ANSWERS

1. False. Unpleasant dreams are par for the course, and perfectly normal. A study of the dreams of more than a thousand men and women college students showed that only about one dream out of four was pleasant. And an appreciable percentage were downright fearful.

2. True. Studies at the University of California show that daytime dreams tend to be uninteresting, so-what productions, short on action and excitement, and with tedious and commonplace scenes and happenings. Nocturnal dreams were found to be much more bizarre, emotional and romantic, more action-packed.

3. True–as evidenced by studies, conducted by a team of University of Florida dream researchers, which show that the younger you are, the more time you spend dreaming. By the time you reach adulthood, dream time has tapered off sharply–with the result that you dream only about half as much after you leave your teens as you did as a young child. When adulthood is reached, dream time stops diminishing and becomes more or less constant.

4. True. A psychological study based on 500 male and 500 female dreams has shown that "the contents of the dreams of men and women are quite different, and that while women frequently dream about being indoors and in familiar surroundings, . . . men's dreams are more adventurous and feature more physical activities." Fifty percent of the aggressive encounters in men's dreams featured brawls, fisticuffs and similar acts of violence. However, a study of boys and girls of high school age found that, contrary to expectations, many girls expressed more aggression in their dreams than boys. It was concluded from this that "girls can be as or more aggressive than boys when they are permitted to be so."

5. True. Nightmares are something that happens to most people now and then. In one study of a college-student population, for example, it was found that 86 percent experienced nightmares. Frequent repetition of this type of dream, however, may occur in connection with deep-seated emotional conflicts.

6. True. As Miami University psychologist Dr. Alvin R. Mahrer, who has made a special study of dreams, observes, "Using a tape recorder next to my bed, I am often surprised by the differences between what I later think I had dreamed and the actual content of what was recorded." His advice: Record a dream as soon as possible, describing in detail every thought and idea that occurred during the dream, especially during moments of peak feeling. Incidentally, dream studies show that the more abruptly you awaken, the more vividly you'll remember what you were dreaming about. A gradual awakening tends to make a dream become fuzzy.

To the 56,000,000 people who smoke cigarettes.

A lot of people have been telling you not to smoke, especially cigarettes with high 'tar' and nicotine. But smoking provides you with a pleasure you don't want to give up.

Naturally, we're prejudiced. We're in the business of selling cigarettes.

But there is one overriding fact that transcends whether you should or shouldn't smoke and that fact is that you do smoke.

And what are they going to do about that?

They can continue to exhort you not to smoke. Or they might look reality in the face and recommend that, if you smoke and want low 'tar' and nicotine in a cigarette, you smoke a cigarette like Vantage.

And we'll go along with that, because there is no other cigarette like Vantage. Except Vantage.

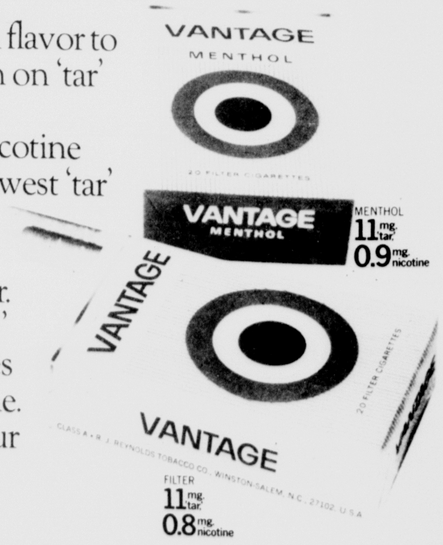
Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it and yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

Not that Vantage is the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette. (But you probably wouldn't like the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette anyway.)

The plain truth is that smoke has to come through a filter if taste is to come through a filter. And where there is taste there has to be some 'tar.'

But Vantage is the only cigarette that gives you so much flavor with so little 'tar' and nicotine.

So much flavor that you'll never miss your high 'tar' cigarette.



Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

Family Weekly COOKBOOK

By Marilyn Hansen
Food Editor

You may be on a holiday, but your family's appetites aren't! Here's a collection of simple recipes that can be turned out quickly so your own leisure time can be at a maximum.

Great Outdoor Recipes for Boat, Camp or Backyard

Bill Holland

Food ideas to charm captain and crew: steaming mugs of "Warm-Up," tempting "Chicken-in-a-Roll," a plate of "Spaghetti With Clam Sauce" and the "Day's Catch" with a special sauce.

Warm-Up

1 can (10¾ ozs.) tomato soup, undiluted
1 can (10½ ozs.) beef broth, undiluted
1 cup water
⅓ cup vodka*
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
⅛ teaspoon hot-pepper sauce

1. Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Heat just to boiling, stirring occasionally. Serve in mugs. Makes about 4 cups, 4 servings

*Variation: Omit vodka; increase water to 1 soup can.

Editor's note: One of my doctor friends loves to mix up soups on his 30-foot cruising sailboat. This "Warm-Up" is his choice to chase the chills on a cold, damp morning.

CHICKEN-IN-A-ROLL

2 cans (5-oz. size) boned chicken or turkey
1 jar (5 ozs.) Neufchâtel cheese spread with pimientos, room temperature
2 hard-cooked eggs, finely chopped
1 cup finely chopped apple
¼ cup sweet-pickle relish
¼ teaspoon onion salt
6 individual hero rolls

1. Drain broth from chicken, reserve. Chop chicken.

2. In medium bowl, gradually blend reserved broth into cheese. Stir in chicken, eggs, apple, pickle relish and onion salt.

3. Cut a thick slice from one end of each roll; hollow out soft center. Fill each hollow

The Fisherman's Catch, The Family's Meal

with about ½ cup chicken mixture. Wrap in foil or plastic film and refrigerate, if not serving immediately. Makes 6 sandwiches

Editor's note: This recipe was given to me by a woman who does a lot of boating and fishing with her airplane-pilot husband. She finds the rolls easy to eat in-the-hand.

SPAGHETTI WITH CLAM SAUCE

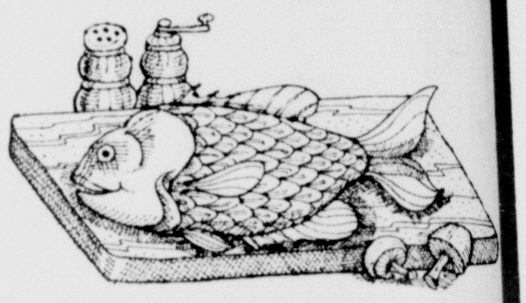
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup chopped onion
1 teaspoon Italian seasoning or oregano, crushed
2 cans (10¾-oz. size) tomato soup, undiluted
1 cup water
¼ teaspoon hot-pepper sauce
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
3 dozen small raw clams, scrubbed
½ cup water
½ lb. spaghetti, cooked

1. In 2-qt. saucepan melt butter; add onion and Italian seasoning. Cook, stirring, 5-8 minutes, until onion is tender.

2. Stir in soup, water, hot-pepper sauce and garlic powder. Heat to boiling, stirring. Reduce heat and simmer uncovered 10 minutes to blend flavors; stir occasionally.

3. Meanwhile, place clams and ½ cup water in large covered skillet or saucepan. Heat to boiling. Cover and let boil until clams steam open; drain. Add clams to sauce. Serve with spaghetti.

Makes about 3½ cups sauce, 4 servings



DAY'S CATCH

2 lbs. fresh fish, cleaned (bass, trout, etc.)
Cornmeal
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 can (10¾ ozs.) mushroom soup, undiluted
⅓ cup water
1 tablespoon ketchup
2 teaspoons parsley flakes
½ teaspoon dillweed
Hot cooked rice

1. On waxed paper, lightly coat fish with cornmeal.

2. Heat butter in skillet until hot but not smoking. Add fish and cook over medium-high heat until fish is browned on both sides and flakes easily when tested with a fork. Remove to serving platter, cover with foil to keep warm.

3. In same skillet combine golden mushroom soup, water, ketchup, parsley flakes and dillweed. Heat, stirring to loosen browned bits. Pour into sauceboat, serve with fish and rice.

Makes 1¾ cups sauce, 4 servings

Editor's note: We found that cornmeal is a favored ingredient in fish-frying on the Eastern Shore of Maryland.

Meat 'n' Potato Skillet to Satisfy Outdoor Appetites

Bill Holland. Camp Stove by Coleman.

A tempting trio for camping buffs: "Camper's Mix-Up Stew," "Meat 'n' Potato Skillet" and "Piney-Blue Pancakes."

CAMPER'S MIX-UP STEW

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 can (12 ozs.) luncheon meat, cubed*
1 can (16 ozs.) pork and beans in tomato sauce
1 can (14¾ ozs.) elbow macaroni and cheese
½ cup sliced ripe olives

1. Heat butter in medium saucepan until melted. Stir in chili powder and luncheon meat. Cook, stirring, until meat is lightly browned.

2. Stir in pork and beans, macaroni and cheese, and olives. Heat to boiling; stirring occasionally. Makes about 5 cups, 4 servings

*Variation: Substitute 1 lb. frankfurters cut in 1-inch pieces for luncheon meat. This is a child-designed recipe, for a little cook to make with adult supervision.

MEAT 'N' POTATO SKILLET

2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 lb. ground beef
1 can (11 ozs.) Cheddar cheese soup, undiluted
1 can (16 ozs.) cut green beans, drained
1 can (16 ozs.) small whole potatoes, drained
1 can (8 ozs.) stewed tomatoes
½ teaspoon basil leaves, crushed*

1. Heat vegetable oil in large skillet until hot, but not smoking. Add ground beef and cook until it loses its red color, breaking up with large cooking spoon. Pour off fat if necessary.

2. Stir in all remaining ingredients. Heat to boiling, stirring occasionally.

Makes about 5½ cups, 4-6 servings

*Or ½ teaspoon Italian seasoning.

PINEY-BLUE PANCAKES

1 pkg. (13.5 ozs.) wild-blueberry muffin mix
1 can (8 ozs.) unsweetened pineapple in juice
Water
1 egg
Vegetable oil
Maple-blended syrup
Confectioners' sugar
Butter, margarine or whipped topping
Crisp cooked bacon, optional

1. Following package directions, drain and rinse blueberries; set aside.

2. Drain pineapple; saving juice. Combine pineapple juice with enough water to make ¾ cup liquid. Add egg to liquid in measuring cup, beat with fork.

3. In medium bowl (or in rinsed-out milk carton) combine pineapple juice-egg mixture and muffin mix. Stir with spoon until just blended. (Batter will be slightly lumpy.)

4. Fold in drained blueberries lightly. In hot, lightly oiled skillet, cook 16 small pancakes, using about 2 tablespoons batter for each. Keep warm.

5. Brown pineapple slices lightly in same skillet and serve warm with pancakes.

6. Serve pancakes with syrup, confectioners' sugar and butter, as desired. Great for a special breakfast with crisp bacon or alone for dessert! Makes 4 servings

CRISP-FRIED FISH WITH TARTAR SAUCE

1 can (10¾ ozs.) cream of celery soup, undiluted
½ cup pickle-relish sandwich spread
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Elizabeth Gee

Serve it simply in the backyard: "Crisp-Fried Fish With Tartar Sauce" and "Summer Vegetable Medley."

1 egg
1 lb. fillet of flounder, sole or perch
¾-1 cup finely crushed packaged herb-seasoned stuffing mix
¼ cup vegetable oil

1. Make tartar sauce: In small bowl combine 1 cup soup, sandwich spread and lemon juice; chill.

2. Combine remaining soup and egg in shallow pan. Beat lightly with fork. Dip fish in egg mixture then in stuffing mix.

3. Using a large skillet or two 10-inch-size skillets, brown fish in oil; cook until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Serve with tartar sauce. Refrigerate any leftover sauce. Makes 4 servings, 1½ cups sauce

SUMMER VEGETABLE MEDLEY

4 slices bacon
1 cup thinly sliced carrots
1 cup thinly sliced onion
¼ teaspoon thyme or oregano leaves, crushed
1 can (11 ozs.) tomato bisque soup, undiluted
1 lb. zucchini, cut in ¼-inch slices (about 4 cups)
1 teaspoon vinegar
Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Cook bacon in skillet until crisp; remove and crumble. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons drippings.

2. Add carrots, onion and thyme to drippings. Cook, stirring frequently, 8-10 minutes, until just tender.

3. Stir in soup, zucchini, vinegar and pepper. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat; cover and simmer about 10-12 minutes, or until vegetables are tender. Stir occasionally.

4. Just before serving stir in bacon. Makes about 4 cups, 4-6 servings

SHOW-OFF ICE-CREAM CONES

As needed:
Sugar cones
Ice cream
Strawberry jam
Chocolate topping
Honey
Walnuts, coarsely chopped
Whipped topping, from Aerosol can or squiggle container
Sugar-wafer cookies, chocolate-covered wafer-stick cookies, chocolate-covered marshmallow cookies
Maraschino cherries, optional

1. Fill cones with 1 scoop favorite ice cream. Top with 2 teaspoons strawberry jam, chocolate topping or honey. Quickly sprinkle with walnuts. Top with a generous rosette of whipped cream; add cookies of your choice at a jaunty angle. Finish off with a Maraschino cherry if desired. The whole idea is to work quickly, handing each cone out as it is finished!! Makes as many as desired

Your baby's first foods should be plain and simple.

When your baby nears his first month, his world begins to broaden. Eyes begin to follow light . . . tiny fists unfold . . . as he discovers the world around him.

And soon it's time for one of the most unique experiences of all . . . the introduction of solid foods.

It's important that your baby begin on the simple foods. Traditional starters are single-grain cereals . . . one-fruit juices . . . plain strained meats. They'll make up the basic diet for your baby, not only helping to provide adequate nourishment, but also helping to broaden his tastes.

Keeping to the simple varieties at the beginning is important, too, in helping you and your doctor note any unusual reaction to certain foods.

How do you know your baby is ready for solids? It depends on individual needs and your doctor. Now the question is, which food will be used as a starter? For most babies, it's cereal.

Starting with cereal. Gerber single-grain cereals are excellent choices. They have an especially smooth texture. And the flavors are pleasantly bland, the way babies prefer them.

Rice and Oatmeal are the traditional cereals recommended. Like all Gerber dry cereals, each is enriched with iron, thiamin, and other important B-vitamins.

When first introducing cereals, it's a good idea to make the mixture quite soupy (4 or 5 tablespoons of milk or formula to 1 tablespoon of cereal). As baby gets used to the mixture, you can gradually make the cereal thicker.

Meats provide important protein. Simple strained meats are the best starting meats. And Gerber meats are high in the body-building protein that your baby needs during his first year—his fastest year of growth.

Gerber meats are lean and moist. They're processed the Gerber way to retain natural juices and lower the fat level, when necessary.

Time for variety. Your baby's interest in food at 6 months is likely to be higher than it will be at one year, so this is an ideal time to introduce him to a variety of foods.

Let your baby try one new food at a time. Small portions at first, then gradually increase the serving. And if you serve the new food at the beginning of a meal, when he's hungry, he'll probably be more ready to accept it.

Work for a balanced daily diet, including milk and milk products; meat and other protein foods; vegetables and fruits; cereals.

Feeding tips. Should you heat the baby food? Unless your baby likes it that way, it's not necessary. Try warming vegetables and meat, serve fruit and dessert at room or refrigerator temperature. Fruit juices should not be heated; it might destroy the Vitamin C.

Remember, too, that at the beginning, your baby will probably not be eating a full jar of food. So when you don't expect to use it all at one feeding, transfer the portion to be fed to a serving dish. Cover and refrigerate the unused portion. Try not to feed your baby directly from the jar.

And do relax. These are the times when your baby will form associations with food that will stay with him all his life. When mealtime is a happy sharing time, your baby will have a feeling of security and belonging.

Babies are our business...

The World's Most Elegant Breakfast: Eggs Benedict

Whether you've made this recipe before or you're a novice, you'll love our super-easy recipe for "Blender Hollandaise Sauce." It makes the whole production fun!

EGGS BENEDICT

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
4 pkgs. (8-oz. size) sliced Canadian bacon
Water
2 tablespoons vinegar
8 eggs
4 English muffins, fork-split and lightly toasted
Blender Hollandaise Sauce (recipe below)
4 sprigs parsley

1. Heat butter in electric skillet until melted. Sauté Canadian bacon slices in hot butter until lightly browned on both sides. Place on foil, cover and keep warm.

2. Poach eggs: Pour off fat from electric skillet, wipe clean with paper towel. Pour in water to depth of 1 inch, add 2 tablespoons vinegar to water. (The vinegar helps solidify the egg white.) Heat water to simmer, with bubbles rising and breaking just below surface.

3. Break eggs one at a time into the simmering water. (The fresher the eggs the higher and prettier the whites will be.) Baste eggs gently with simmering water, using large spoon. Cook until whites are firm, yolks soft.

4. Lift eggs gently from water with slotted spoon, draining liquid off eggs and blotting them with paper towel.

5. Meanwhile arrange Canadian bacon slices on toasted English muffins. Place 2 halves on each heated plate. Top each with a poached egg. Spoon a little Blender Hollandaise Sauce over each. Garnish with parsley. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings

BLENDER HOLLANDAISE SAUCE

3 egg yolks
2 tablespoons lemon juice
Dash salt
2 drops Tabasco sauce
½ cup (1 stick) butter or margarine

1. Place egg yolks, lemon juice, salt and Tabasco in warm blender container. Turn motor on and off at medium speed, just to blend.

2. Heat butter in small saucepan until bubbling and very hot.

3. Remove blender cover, turn motor to high speed; drizzle in hot butter slowly until all is added. Turn off blender. Serve warm. Makes about 1 cup

TIPS FOR PERFECT HOLLANDAISE

1. Yes, this is the same hollandaise sauce that is traditionally painstakingly prepared over simmering water in a double boiler. As you can see, this electric-blender method makes slow hand beating unnecessary. 2. To keep Blender Hollandaise warm, set blender container in pan of warm water. Just before serving, blend again to freshen.

Man to Watch

Senator Lloyd Bentsen

The Dark-Horse Texan Who Wants to Be President

Lloyd Bentsen does not believe in playing coy. Barely past the halfway mark of a freshman term in the U.S. Senate, the tall, tanned Texan looks, talks and acts like a presidential candidate. He even has a $365,000 campaign treasury to nurse the inclination.

"Am I testing the waters?" he tells those who ask him. "Sure I am. Would I like to be President of the United States? You bet!"

It is a dream that most Washington insiders would have hooted at three and a half years ago when the 53-year-old Democrat entered the Senate with a reputation as an arch-conservative. But no one is laughing these days. The advance notices were quickly cast aside when Bentsen began lining up against Senate filibusters and even supporting end-the-war legislation. Hard work, moderate political stances and a striking ability to get opposing camps together mark his style.

Bentsen—whose wife is called B.A. (for Beryl Ann)—was first elected to the House back in 1948 at age 27. He was the youngest freshman in that class, thanks to a campaign that openly borrowed its slogans from John F. Kennedy's first congressional race two years earlier. The energetic Texan served three terms as a protégé of Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Texas), then went back home, where he made himself a Houston millionaire as head of a financial conglomerate called Lincoln Consolidated. He decided to run for the Senate in 1970 because "I want to be remembered for something besides my bank balance."

The reentry began with a bruising primary battle against the liberal Democratic incumbent, Ralph Yarborough. Bentsen, a close associate of Lyndon B. Johnson and John B. Connally from earlier days, won narrowly, but the campaign, he confesses wryly, left many voters thinking of him as "somewhere to the right of Attila the Hun."

Headed back to Washington, Bentsen hired a consulting firm at his own expense to study some of the most smoothly run Senate offices and help him organize his own. It is regarded as a model of efficiency.

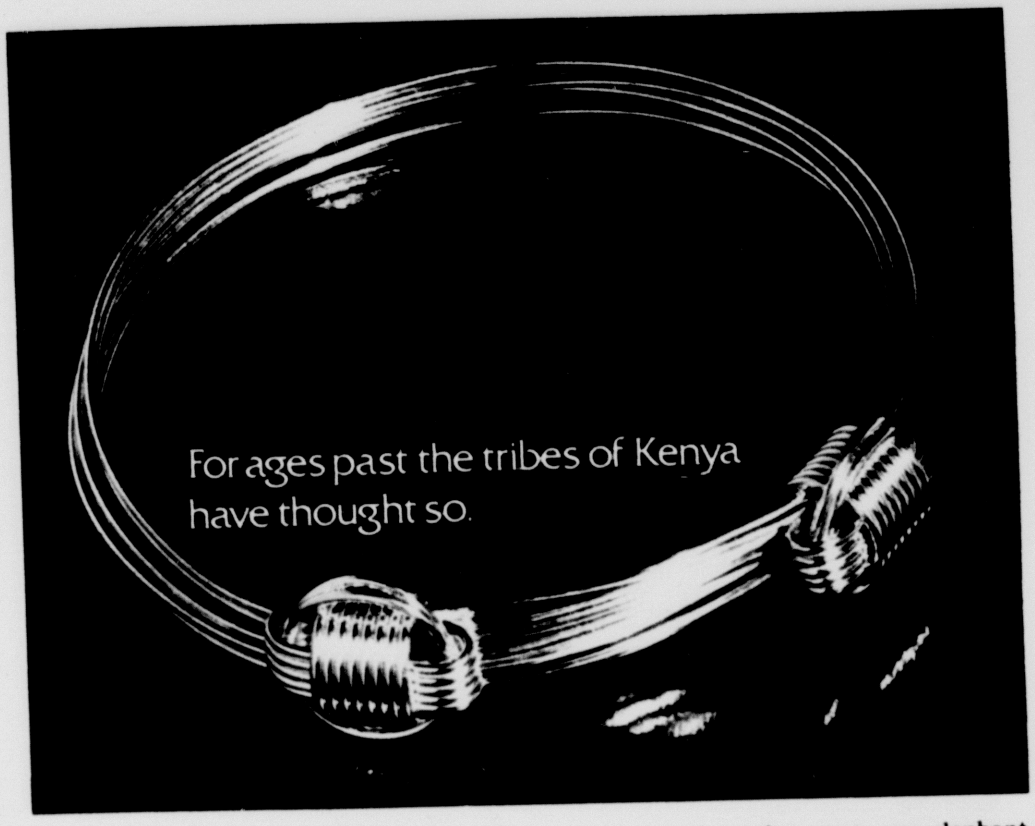
Bentsen woke up the Senate establishment in 1972, when he led the fight against a speedup of the Trident submarine system and did his homework so well that he very nearly won. More recently, he won high marks for his work in getting pension-reform legislation through the Senate, where it had been bogged down for years in a jurisdictional squabble between rival committees. Those who worked with Bentsen say his grasp of the technicalities of pensions was amazing.

"I want to be remembered for something besides my bank balance."

Liberals still regard Bentsen warily. He hotly opposes school busing. He helped fight off a "windfall profits tax" on oil companies. But Senate elders are highly impressed. "When we're up against him, we know we have to work," says Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott. "He's a heavyweight." Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield has been speaking of Bentsen as presidential timber for months.

Bentsen is still a very dark horse. A Harris poll in January indicated that no more than two percent of the nation's Democratic voters know who he is. But that doesn't bother Lloyd Bentsen. It's the same percentage that Texans gave him in 1970 when he first announced his candidacy for the U.S. Senate. Sometimes, he says, it helps to have "a new face." FW

WILL THIS TALISMAN BRACELET BRING YOU GOOD LUCK?



ORIGINALLY created with intricately knotted elephant hair, these bracelets were thought to inherently possess good luck and were often given by tribesmen to hunters after a successful elephant hunt.

Later, made in multi-strand gold, silver and copper wire, they became talismans of good fortune for either sex in finding a mate . . . getting and keeping good health . . . and success in any enterprise.

Can you solve the riddle of its ancient design?

The first question people will ask you about this Talisman bracelet is, "How do you take it off?"

When you mysteriously slip it off your wrist, you'll be asked more:

Is it all one piece of wire? Where does it start . . . where does it end? Does it really give you good luck?

And why have elephant hair styled bracelets suddenly become so overwhelmingly desired?

As old as Africa . . . as new as today!

Based on the original ancient design from the tribes of Kenya, these bracelets have been re-created in 5-strand copper, silver-plate and gold-plate wire. These handmade bracelets have an untamed, sophisticated look that is sure to attract attention wherever you go.

One of the most ingenious features of these unusual bracelets is that they're completely adjustable and look as well on men as they do on women.

At last at a price you can afford!

Only wearing these bracelets can show you how superior they are to any elephant hair bracelets you've yet seen.

The handmade feeling . . . the unusual knots . . . the way each bracelet adjusts . . . the mystery of its design can only be experienced by actually wearing one of these bracelets. The good luck is not guaranteed, but complete satisfaction is.

Please compare them with the $40 . . . $50 . . . and $100 elephant hair bracelets you've seen. Unless you feel these Talisman bracelets are superior, return for no cost.

Only $3.98 for the copper, $4.98 for the silver-plate, $5.98 for the gold-plate—or $11.95 for the entire collection.

Please rush me the following Talisman Elephant Hair Styled Bracelets on no-risk, 10-day trial. If not delighted, I may return for full refund.

____Copper at $3.98 each.
____Silverplate at $4.98 each.
____Goldplate at $5.98 each.
____Entire collection $11.95.

MONROE LOOK-ALIKE
Is she Marilyn's daughter?

Janet Raymond believes she is the daughter of the late actress Marilyn Monroe. Janet, 21, is an orphan. She was born in a Los Angeles hospital during the same period that Marilyn was an appendectomy patient there. According to sources, Miss Monroe's appendix was not removed. Peter Lawford, a very close friend of Marilyn's, has met Janet and is amazed at her strong resemblance to the star. Ironically, Janet even won a Marilyn Monroe look-alike contest a few years ago. She was also interviewed on an ABC-TV special, "Marilyn Remembered." For Janet, however, the resemblance is not much help. There isn't any way she can prove she is Marilyn's daughter. Janet, who worked as a secretary in Santa Monica Hospital, is a member of the Screen Actor's Guild and is determined to follow Marilyn's path to stardom.

Roger Williams has sold well over 15 million albums since his first hit, "Autumn Leaves," in 1955. Despite his vast success he still practices 10 to 12 hours a day when he is at his home in Encino, Calif., and two to three hours a day when he is on the road. "If you want success and all that goes with it, you must be prepared to pay a high personal price. For me, the price is discipline. I apply this same discipline to other factors of my life," says the 49-year-old Williams. "I still weigh the same as I did in high school. Discipline has me jogging two miles every day when I am home, and one hour in my hotel room, in one place, when I am on the road. This requires strong personal discipline. But it is the only way I know of attaining success. Practice and being in good physical condition." Williams, who has performed all over the world, has missed only one performance—when he was snowbound at an airport.

HANK AARON
His legs were rubbery

QUOTE: When Hank Aaron hit home run number 715, breaking Babe Ruth's record, "he remembered only his relief that it was over with, and the vague happiness that a weight 'like a stove' had been lifted from his back, and that his legs seemed rubbery as he took the tour of the bases, the Dodger second baseman and shortstop sticking out their hands to congratulate him. 'I don't remember the noise,' he said, 'or the two kids that ran on the field. My teammates at home plate, I remember seeing them. I remember my mother out there and she hugging me. That's what I'll remember more than anything about that home run when I think back on it. I don't know where she came from, but she was there. . . .'" HOME REMEDY

Dogs have been prescribed as "home psychiatrists" for depressed people.
—News item

You need not lie upon a couch
For this psychiatrist
And answer questions human sorts
Would probingly insist.

This "home psychiatrist" of course
Might lie down by your side
And asking not a thing of you
There calmingly abide.

Or else he might look up, warm eyed,
And seem to understand,
And maybe paw your sleeve a bit
Or even lick your hand.

He might relax, relaxing you,
And go to sleep, lie still.
Of this, however, be quite sure:
He wouldn't send a bill.

Deluxe Executive Knit Slacks!

You have seen 100% Polyester knits for over $20 a pair! This year you'll see them for even more, and wonder who's got the money to afford them. These Haband Slacks might be the answer: They always look fresh, never need ironing. The heavy two-way knit means two-way fit, and that means Double Value: More comfortable full fit in seat, crotch and thighs but also a trim straight look that never bags or droops.

MACHINE WASHABLE – No tensions or tight spots. No Iron. No Dry Cleaning. A simple spin through the home wash machine is all they need. What you get is top value Two-Way Knit Slacks and FREE COMFORT LIKE YOU NEVER FELT BEFORE!

Remember, Business Slacks are Haband's Business. Our experience positively shouts that knits are your best buy. Now our tremendous inventory carry-over makes this one last market scoop still possible:

2 pairs only $19.95. But hurry, knits are in huge demand!
